Bankers: THE NATIONAL BANK OF AUSTRALASIA.

Brokers: CHAPMAN and WAKELEY, Limited, 28, Queen-street, Melbourne. T. J. THOMPSON and SONS, 92, Pitt-street, Sydney.

Office of the Company: 15, QUEEN-STREET, MELBOURNE.

The object of the Company is to provide Broken Hill and the surrounding district with an abundant supply of pure water for domestic and other purposes, for which, at present, there is no adequate provision in this important and largely-populated district, already numbering about 12,000 inhabitants, and daily increasing.

The promoters have had careful surveys made of the whole of the surrounding district, and have found that an ample supply of pure water can be secured and obtained by conserving water in the rocky gorges of Stephens Creek, at a point distant about 10 miles from the township of Broken Hill. Estimates and plans of the necessary works have already been prepared by J. D. Derry, M. Inst. C.E., and approved by George Gordon, M. Inst. C.E., both of whom are well-known water-works engineers. A summarised report and plan are appended hereto for general information.

The cost of carrying out this scheme is estimated at about £140,000, of which only £52,500 will probably be called up, and the balance it is intended to borrow at a low rate of interest on debentures in London or elsewhere, the large amount of uncalled capital providing an adequate guarantee and security to the debenture holders.

Extensive and valuable water rights, leases, and reservations have been secured by the promoters from the Department of Mines and Lands, Sydney, and arrangements have been made for the introduction of a bill in the New South Wales Legislature to confirm and extend the above rights and privileges.

The scheme has already received the approval of the official heads of the Government departments interested, and the Government have given the assurance of their support to a bill to be brought forward, and have encouraged the development of the present scheme.

The rights obtained under the Land and Mining Acts and Regulations are, however, regarded as sufficient for all present purposes.

The urgent necessity for the speedy accomplishment of this scheme is exemplified by the fact that the present cost of water, which is by no means free from impurities, delivered in the township is 8s per 100 gallons, whereas this Company will be able to deliver pure water, with great advantage to itself, at a cost of probably one-fourth of the present charge. The precarious character of the present supply can be understood from the fact that arrangements have been made by the Government for carrying water by railway a distance of 22 miles to Broken Hill. This has induced the promoters to accede to the urgent wishes of the inhabitants, and at once put this scheme before the public.

The catchment area to supply the storage referred to is estimated at 170 square miles. The district, although very dry, is subject to heavy tropical storms, which will yield an enormous volume of water to the reservoir, as is evidenced by the existing flood-marks along the banks of the creek.

The water will be pumped from the storage reservoir referred to through a wrought iron main into a covered service reservoir in the town, giving ample pressure for reticulation throughout the towns formed at Broken Hill, Round Hill, and Broken Hill South. The natural features of the country present no difficulties in carrying out the proposed scheme.

Attention is directed to the magnitude and permanency of the mining undertakings embraced in the area of this scheme, which have been established beyond doubt.

The Provisional Directors and their professional advisers are of opinion that the venture will prove a highly remunerative one for the shareholders, and place it before the public with every confidence, as it is certain that an almost unlimited demand will exist for any surplus water available after domestic wants are supplied, for purposes connected with concentrating the enormous quantity of low grade ores already in sight.

In the event of the shares being overapplied for they will be allotted pro rata, but, to prevent disappointment to intending investors, the share list will be closed as soon as the full number is applied for.

REPORT ON THE WATER SUPPLY TO THE TOWN OF BROKEN HILL AND DISTRICT.

SUMMARY OF ENGINEER'S REPORT.

1. The value of a water scheme depends on the reliability of the source of supply, and since the rainfall in the Broken Hill district is intermittent, an ample storage is essential.
2. Such a storage can be formed on a grand scale, within 10 miles of the town of Broken Hill, by intercepting the flow of Stephens Creek, where it passes through steep rocky ranges at a point in which the most favourable conditions exist for the construction of a storage embankment and an ample bywash, so that, by the expenditure of about £40,000, a storage capacity can be obtained exceeding that of the Yan Yean Reservoir, which is 1000 million cubic feet, or 6250 million gallons.
3. The catchment area to supply this reservoir is about 170 square miles, which, with 3in. of rainfall in 24 hours, would yield a supply that would more than half fill it.
4. The reservoir, when full, would give a supply to a population of 25,000 people, at the rate of 60 gallons per head per day for over 4 years, without receiving any addition; but from the local rainfall records of the past 12 years, there has been no year in which it would not have been replenished more or less, and it would have been filled to overflowing several times.
5. The supply to the town from the reservoir or lake can be effected by pumping through an 18in. wrought-iron main to a reservoir most favourably situated in the town to give an excellent pressure for domestic and fire-extinguishing purposes all over the town.
6. The present price for water delivered by carts from Stephens Creek is 8s. per 1000 gallons, and even this costly supply is precarious, for want of storage.
7. Having made a complete survey, and obtained the necessary data, I have already prepared the workings, so that tenders may be called at once.
8. I estimate the cost of the scheme to be about £140,000.

LAW REPORT.

SUPREME COURT.—Tuesday, August 28.

In Banco.—(Before their Honors the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Windeyer, and Mr. Justice Stephen.)

A. J. S. BANK V. ARMSTRONG (PART HEARD)

The Court delivered judgment in the above matter, which was argued yesterday. It was held that the bank was entitled to recover, and that even if the bank manager had been willing to release the defendant from his liability of £279 18s. 2d. upon a verbal agreement alleged by the defendant to have been made subsequent to the signing of the cash guarantee bond, he had no authority from the bank to do so. In order to hold that the parole agreement set up by defendant was good, some consideration must be shown for it, and it must also be shown that the bank manager had authority to make the release under such an agreement, but there was no evidence of either. On these grounds the bank was entitled to recover, but seeing that it was quite clear that Armstrong had been allowed to leave the bank under a misapprehension, the Court thought that some arrangement might well be come to.

The amount to be paid to the plaintiff was, after consultation between counsel, fixed at £375 19s. 10d. in addition to the £19 15s. 4d. paid into court at the trial.

Rule made absolute to increase the amount of the verdict. No costs of the motion.

IN RE THOMAS BROUGHTON—BLACKMAN CAVEATOR.

There being no appearance in this case it was struck out.

ALISON V. BURNS.

On the motion of Mr. Pring, who appeared for plaintiff, leave was given to appeal to the Privy Council against the decision of the court in this case on the usual terms.

IN RE LUKE FEATHERSTONE—COLLINS CAVEATOR.

Dr. Sly appeared for the applicant, Featherstone, and moved to make absolute a rule nisi to set aside an order of Mr. Justice Foster on the 17th August in favour of the caveator restraining the Registrar-General from further proceeding upon the application of Featherstone to bring certain land under the provisions of the Real Property Act. Mr. Gordon appeared for the caveator. The ground of the present application was that the caveat had been allowed to lapse for a very considerable period, and that the order was contrary to the recent decision of the Court in the case in re Broughton—Knapp caveator.

After hearing argument,

The Chief Justice thought that the Court was bound by the decision in the case of in re Broughton—Knapp caveator, and he was of opinion that that decision was rightly arrived at. It was impossible to look at the 3rd section of the Real Property Act, and the 4th section of the Amending Act, without seeing that the decision was perfectly correct, and, that being so, it was perfectly clear that a caveator who desired to continue his caveat must come within the period required by the 23rd section before the Court would grant him an injunction. That period was three months and if the caveator allowed that period to elapse it was decided by Act of Parliament that the Registrar-General should proceed in accordance with the Act to bring the property claimed by applicant under its provisions. The Court was now asked to set aside an order which beyond all question was made on imperfect information. The Court did not propose to deliver judgment on that application, so that the caveator would be enabled to take such proceedings as he might be advised in a Court of Equity, to obtain, if he could, an injunction upon equitable grounds to restrain the Registrar-General from proceedings. He had hoped that the Legislature would have intervened before the close of last session, and put the matter right, as there had certainly been some misunderstanding on the part of the Lands Department. At present the Court would not set aside the order, although they were of opinion that it was improperly granted, and the matter could be mentioned again on Friday.

EX PARTE WILLIAM WHITEHOUSE COLLINS.

Mr. Wise, instructed by Messrs. Burns and Burns, appeared for the applicant, and Mr. Pring, instructed by the Crown Solicitor, for the respondents. This was an application to make absolute a rule nisi for a prohibition to restrain Mr. Addison, S.M., and Sub-inspector Bell from further proceeding upon the conviction and fine of William Whitehouse Collins in May last under the 2nd section of the 43rd Vic. No. 4, for selling an obscene book, namely, Besant's "Law of Population: Its Consequences and its Bearing Upon Human Conduct and Morals." The grounds of objection were (1) That the words alleged to be obscene were not set out in the information; (2) that the book or publication was not an obscene book, but a scientific and philosophic treatise in relation to social and political economy.

Mr. Wise said that the first ground of objection was taken in consequence of the decision of the Court of Queen's Bench in the case of the Queen v. Bradlaugh. The 15th section of the Vagrancy Act, 15 Victoria, No. 4, and the proviso to that Act were what the learned counsel for the Crown relied upon. The first point taken by the applicant followed upon the decision of the Court of Queen's Bench in the case referred to, where it was held that in an indictment for publishing an obscene book it was not sufficient to describe the book by its title, but that the words alleged to be obscene must be set out. He contended that there was nothing in the statute relied upon by his learned friend, or the proviso, which rendered it unnecessary for a prosecutor to properly describe the offence; and to describe the offence merely by saying that the thing was obscene, was not a description within the terms of the statute itself.

The Chief Justice: I suppose that the argument for the Crown is that the 2nd section of the 43rd Vic., No. 24, describes the offence to be the selling, or exhibiting for sale, of any obscene book, and that by the proviso it is sufficient that the offence should be stated in the words of the section—namely, selling or exhibiting for sale.

Mr. Wise contended that that did not make it unnecessary to set out what the particular character of the thing complained of was, just in the same way as the name of the person charged was set out. The matter submitted for the consideration of the Court was one in which the Court could derive very little assistance from any decided case, for this reason, that all decided cases dealing with indecent publications and obscene libels had turned upon the question of the circumstances and motive of the publication. There had been no case, with the exception of the Queen v. Bradlaugh, in which the defence set up was that the words were not obscene, and where there was an absolute denial of the obscene character of the book. There was no case, so far as he had been able to find, except that of the Queen v. Bradlaugh, where the defence set up had been a positive denial of the obscenity of the work, and a justification of the work, and the Court, therefore, would have to exercise duties rather different from those which it usually exercised. This was emphatically one of those cases where the Court must to a certain extent make the law; that was to say, that there was nothing in the Act itself which defined the term "obscene." There were certain statements made as to what was or was not an obscene work, but there was no express decision, so far as he knew, which would enable the Court to say positively one way or the other, that such and such a thing was obscene.

The Chief Justice: The judgment of the late Chief Justice, Sir James Martin, in Bremner v. Walker throws a good deal of light upon it.

Mr. Wise: Yes, Sir James Martin gave a definition of the word "obscene," but still that was a definition which would carry the Court very little further. There was nothing to prevent the Court from holding that in giving a judicial interpretation to this word they would take into account the feelings and circumstances of the time in which the decision was pronounced. Supposing that this case had come up 100 years ago, the Court was not bound to accept that decision, which might be inapplicable to the changed times and altered conditions of things which existed at present. He cited the judgment of Lord Chief Justice Coleridge in the Queen v. Ramsay, G. and E. Reports, page 135, which he thought was analogous to the present case. The Court would, he submitted, look at the changed conditions of society, and the legislation which was intended to cure existing evils: they would also look at the general tone of philosophical writers on this subject, and the progress of civilisation before arriving at any judicial determination that a work of this kind was obscene. As far as there were authorities he might mention them. The first was a very great authority—Sir James Fitz-James Stephen—though, of course, his opinion was not binding upon the Court (the learned counsel cited from Stephen's Digest of Criminal Law, page 117). The work for selling which the applicant was prosecuted was a book called "The Law of Population: Its Consequences and its Bearing upon Human Conduct and Morals," and began by pointing out the well-known scientific fact of the tendency of the world to over-population, and it also established that fact, which, he supposed, there was no disputing, by quotations from Malthus, M'Culloch, Darwin, and John Stuart Mill, and others, and the fact it further established was this, that if no check was given to population the tendency of the world was to become over-populated beyond the means of subsistence. There was no question that that proposition was couched in most chaste language, and indeed the only language to which objection was taken was contained in the pages from 32 to 35 inclusive. The writer then proceeded to consider what the consequences of this overpopulation would be, and she pointed out again in clear and unobjectionable language that the results would be disease, overwork, child-murder, overcrowding, and filthiness of habit physically and mentally. She pointed that out in calm, temperate language, and with a force of reasoning which he thought could hardly be gainsaid. It was not necessary to pile up instances to show that the progress of civilisation in arresting disease, and in improving the environments of life among the poorer classes, had had a marked effect upon the mortality rate. Then the writer proceeded to consider the remedies for over-population which the very sanitary provisions introduced by present civilisation tended to promote. The learned counsel, after glancing at the proposition in this respect laid down by the writer, quoted the Rev. Dr. Chalmers's work on political economy, published in 1832, in connection with the moral state and prospects of society. John Stuart Mill, Matthew Arnold, and Montague Cookson had argued that the writers above quoted held that there should be more plain speaking, and that they deprecated the "sickly sentiment" (as Mill put it) which prevented persons from considering what was a very clear duty to themselves and others on this great question. He contended that there was nothing in the scope of the work which was per se obscene, nor was there anything obscene in the way in which it was put forward, even taking the pages which were considered specially objectionable. Finally, to adopt the language of Chief Justice Whiteside, if this prosecution was upheld, the only result would be to stifle discussion upon a most important subject.

Mr. Pring submitted in regard to the first point that the 2nd section of the 43 Vic., No. 24, was really conclusive on the matter, because that section said that the provisions of the Act should be read and considered cumulatively with the provisions of the Act 15 Vic., No. 4, and in that Act there was a section which distinctly said that it should be sufficient to set out the offence under the statute. In the case of Bremner v. Walker this very point was taken, and the case of the Queen v. Bradlaugh was referred to by Walker in support of his argument that the circumstances should have been inserted in the information, but the Court held that it was not necessary. As to the second point, which was really the material one in this case, it seemed to him that his learned friend had really misunderstood what the law was in reference to the case. The definition of the word "obscene" was clearly set out in the case of Bremner v. Walker, in the judgment of Sir James Martin, and he thought that the Court would be guided by that definition in determining the present appeal. The motive would explain in a very great degree the nature of the publication, and in the case of the work now under the consideration of the Court the motive must, he thought, be held to be evil. He submitted that the conviction was perfectly right, and must be upheld.

Mr. Wise replied, and the Court reserved judgment.

EX PARTE HARRIS ROBSON.

Mr. Bennett appeared for the applicant, and moved to make absolute a rule nisi for a prohibition to quash the conviction of Robson on a charge of unlawfully detaining a mare the property of Thomas Bertram, of Corrinal, near Wollongong. Mr. Butterworth appeared for the magistrates.

The Court, after hearing the evidence, held that the magistrates who convicted were wrong, and the rule was made absolute for a prohibition, with costs.

EX PARTE SCHOLES.

On the motion of Mr. Bennett, a rule nisi was granted calling upon the Borough of Woollahra to show cause why a mandamus should not issue to compel them to register the applicant as a licensed milk vendor under section 4, subsection 4, of the Dairies Supervision Act, 50 Vic., No. 17.

EX PARTE THOMAS POWER.

Mr. Cohen appeared for the applicant, and moved to make absolute a rule nisi to set aside the conviction of Thomas Power upon a charge of obstructing a bailiff in the execution of his duty, the ground of objection being that the bailiff had abandoned possession. Mr. Healey appeared in support of the conviction.

The case stands as part heard.

No. 1 Jury Court.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice Innes and a special jury of 12.)

DIBBS V. DAILY TELEGRAPH NEWSPAPER COMPANY, LIMITED.

Mr. Pilcher, Q.C., Mr. Want, Q.C., and Mr. O'Connor, instructed by Mr. M'Laughlin, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Rogers, Q.C., Mr. E. Barton, and Mr. G. H. Reid, instructed by Messrs. Stephen, Jaques, and Stephen, for the defendant company.

This action for alleged libel brought by Mr. G. R. Dibbs, M.L.A., against the Sydney Daily Telegraph Newspaper Company was resumed this morning.

The examination-in-chief of the plaintiff Mr. G. R. Dibbs was continued. He said Mr. Burns became Colonial Treasurer after he left office, and continued in office some few months; during his tenure of office Mr. Burns made a financial statement, and appeared to have adopted witness's estimates of revenue—the whole of them, with the exception of two items—viz., the stamp estimates and the railway receipts; the sum total of the estimate of Customs revenue for 1886 was £1,087,700; the excise amounted to £151,000, stamps to £250,000, land sales to £1,497,000; the interest on land conditionally purchased was £160,000; pastoral occupation, £718,400—exactly what he had made it; the unclassified receipts amounted to £217,300, which was an increase of £15,000 on his estimate; the total amount of revenue for 1886 was £8,854,050, and the expenditure £8,655,834.

Mr. Pilcher then handed in as evidence the financial statement made on the 11th December, 1885, by Mr. Dibbs. Also, a tabulated statement showing, in a comparative form, the estimates of probable revenue and expenditure prepared by Mr. Dibbs, Mr. Burns, and Sir Patrick Jennings.

Mr. Dibbs, continuing his evidence, said that when Sir Patrick Jennings made his statement on the 6th April, 1886, he had the advantage of the returns for the first quarter of the year, which would show what revenue had been realised during that period; when witness made up his estimates he endeavoured to calculate as fairly as possible the revenue which would be received from each source; when Mr. Burns made up his financial statement in February, 1886, he had the advantage of having the completed returns up to the end of the year, which were not, of course, available for witness; the Stuart Government did not go out through their financial statement, but retired because they had only a majority of two in the House; the Robertson Government was sent from office by an adverse vote, the difference between the two Governments being that the one retired voluntarily, and the other was kicked out; knew the editor and sub-editor of the Telegraph in a casual way during 1885, and had had several conversations with Mr. Brient; a conversation took place in 1885, at the time witness was about forming a Government after the resignation of the preceding Government, and the day after an article appeared in the Daily Telegraph; witness had been led to believe that Mr. Brient was sub-editor; had seen him frequently working in the sub-editor's room, and had also had communications with him in the House; had had several communications with Mr. Ward, editor of the Daily Telegraph, on public matters, as well as with Mr. Brient, and believed that Mr. Ward was editor.

At this stage of the proceedings Mr. Pilcher called, as a witness, Mr. Watkin Wynne, manager of the Daily Telegraph. Mr. Wynne deposed that Mr. F. W. Ward was editor of the Daily Telegraph in 1885, and had been so ever since; Mr. Brient was leader of the staff and news editor; he had charge of the news apart from the editorial department; he never performed editorial duties; Mr. Nall was sub-editor in October, 1885; the editor was responsible for the articles that appeared in the paper, and the news editor, who was his subordinate, took charge of the staff and apportioned the duties of the reporters.

Mr. Pilcher: Can you tell me who wrote the articles mentioned in the declaration?

Mr. Rogers objected to the question. If the proprietors put the articles in the paper, it did not matter who wrote them.

His Honor thought that the question was one the answer to which might show animus, and to a certain extent might influence the determination of the question of damages. They had to consider whether animus might inspire the writing of the articles. It seemed to him that the question was admissible.

The witness said that the article headed "A Challenge to Mr. Dibbs," which embraced the matter commencing "There is on record in every newspaper in the country a charge against Mr. Dibbs," was written, he believed, by Mr. Brient; as to the other articles, Mr. Ward wrote some, Mr. Gullett some, and Mr. Courtney some; any article not written by the editor would have to be approved of by the editor before it was printed; the manuscript of the articles mentioned in the declaration had been destroyed; the rule of the office was to keep ordinary manuscript for three months, but as a matter of fact they did keep manuscripts for five or six months and they were then destroyed; they received Mr. M'Laughlin's letter two days after the article appeared, and the writ came a short time afterwards; witness did not know by whom the manuscripts were destroyed.

By Mr. Rogers: A leading article might be accepted from anyone, but it was only published after the editor had reviewed it.

By his Honor: Occasionally they received articles from persons who were not on the staff but had a special knowledge of certain subjects.

By Mr. Rogers: In respect to the destruction of manuscripts, they had not departed from the usual practice; the manuscripts of the articles in the declaration were not asked for until a few days ago; it was the 8th or 9th of this month that the first application was made for the manuscripts; they received no requests for the manuscripts until months after they had been destroyed; all advertisement copy was, as it formed the basis of contracts, kept for several years; witness had held his present position in connection with the Daily Telegraph since 1885; during the St. Leonards election the Daily Telegraph was supporting Mr. Dibbs.

Mr. Pilcher objected to the question.

His Honor said the best evidence of the fact would be furnished by the production of the articles themselves.

Mr. George Richard Dibbs, the plaintiff, then re-entered the witness-box.

Mr. Pilcher said he now proposed to ask Mr. Dibbs what Mr. Brient said to him.

His Honor thought that Mr. Wynne's evidence had taken the ground from under the feet of the learned counsel.

Mr. Pilcher said he wanted to show that Mr. Dibbs had a conversation with Mr. Brient, and afterwards the editor wrote an article in accordance with that conversation.

His Honor said that the counsel for the plaintiff had ascertained what Mr. Brient's exact position was, and he had moreover the fact that he wrote the article headed "A Challenge to Mr. Dibbs;" and at the proper time all that might be made matter of comment. Then, again, the intimate relation of Mr. Brient to the editor might be made matter of comment. He (the Judge) did not see anything whatever in Mr. Brient's position to make the paper responsible for anything he might choose to say. Assuming that Brient said anything improper, he did not see the paper was responsible for it.

Mr. Pilcher, to witness: At any rate, Mr. Brient had a conversation with you?

Witness: Yes.

Mr. Pilcher: What did you do?

Witness: I ordered him out of the room. I said something to him, in consequence of which he retired.

Mr. Pilcher: Very quickly?

Witness: Yes. (Laughter.)

Mr. Dibbs, continuing, said: There was not a word of truth in the charge made that he had criminally manipulated the public finances; he had never appropriated any funds in his life; there was no truth in the statement that he had criminally concealed the deficit; the actual amount of the deficit at the end of 1885 was about £1,052,000; he stated the actual amount of the deficit at the time; he had put in evidence every statement and document connected with the finances.

Cross-examined by Mr. Rogers: The estimates produced were the Ways and Means for 1886; witness first became aware that there was likely to be a deficit for 1885 about the time of the retirement of the Stuart Government—this was in October; about a month or two before that he suspected that there would be a deficit; about the time mentioned a dissolution and a general election took place; witness was then a candidate for St. Leonards; within a month or so of that time things looked gloomy; witness was very ill with fever during that year, and whilst ill he received a letter from Mr. Thomson, and that was the first intimation he received to lead him to suspect that there would be a deficit; he admitted that he wrote the letter to Mr. Thomson which was published; he could not say now whether he received a letter from Mr. Thomson before he wrote to him or not, but he should think he did; Mr. Thomson sent him a communication in answer to his note; he could not say what had become of the note; he believed it was to the effect that Mr. Thomson had prepared for Mr. Dalley a short statement with regard to the finances, in order that he might say something about it in his speech at Albury; and Mr. Thomson wished him to impress upon Mr. Dalley not to touch upon the question of finance; the Daily Telegraph supported him fairly up to the time he had the interview with Brient or up to the commencement of the elections—to about the 8th or 10th of October, 1885; the Daily Telegraph might have supported witness as against Sir Henry Parkes at the St. Leonards election, but the paper had written an article against the Government; the avowed hostility of the paper was because witness refused to be led by them; he could not say whether it was on account of the inclusion of a certain gentleman in his Cabinet or not; the Ministry which was formed on the retirement of Sir Alexander Stuart included Sir Patrick Jennings, Mr. Abbott, Mr. See, Mr. John Want, Mr. Wright, Mr. Slattery, and others; had read an article in the Daily Telegraph, of the 8th October, headed, "The New Ministry." The article, of which the following is the substance, was then put in as evidence and read:—"Mr. Dibbs has succeeded in persuading four of his old colleagues and three self-sacrificing gentlemen, who are strangers to the cares of State office, to join him in forming a new Ministry on the Stuart-Dalley lines. . . . Mr. Dibbs has waited patiently for his chance, and it may be presumed that if he is not altogether satisfied with the strength of his team he is sanguine enough to believe that his handiwork will not break itself upon the popular will. . . There is no doubt that Mr. Dibbs's choice has wandered over a rather large field. Ultimately he appears to have deemed it a debt of honour to include the majority of his former colleagues. The two exceptions, Mr. Norton and Mr. Cohen, most worthy citizens, and successful in their professions, are entirely justifiable. . . . The pity is that Mr. Dibbs did not exclude Mr. Trickett. . . . Mr. Trickett has not made any sort of impression either inside or outside Parliament. The new Premier should be one of the best known men in New South Wales. He has been prominently connected with mercantile and political affairs for many years. Yet it is only the truth to say that it is his misfortune not to be as well known as his real merits deserve. Deficient of tact, much more of craft, he has often misrepresented himself to his own considerable disadvantage. Impetuous in temperament, often imperious in manner, he has irritated where other men, quite as independent, would have conciliated, and he has heedlessly multiplied his enemies and at times alienated his friends. Consequently he has had to struggle throughout his public life against a varying amount of personal unpopularity. Whatever he believes he believes with all his soul and avows with a defiant superabundance of courage, delighting to take the risk of his opinions, and apparently happiest in the face of the most strenuous opposition. At times the spectacle of this British stubbornness appeals favourably to the popular imagination. At times it rouses the popular anger. For Mr. Dibbs can get hold of a wrong belief, and then it is easy to perceive in him the elements of an overbearing tyrant, of a man who can let no other belief live in the neighbourhood of his own. But beneath all the surface expressions of character there is in the Premier a rich manhood. He shares the chivalrous manhood which endears such men as Sir John Robertson and Mr. Dalley to the people. He is free of meanness and vindictiveness, and those who have watched his Parliamentary career must join those who are familiar with his mercantile career in the admission that he has a robust intellect—undisciplined in proportion to its strength, perhaps, but unquestionably robust. It is the lack of self-control which is the most serious weakness in his character as a politician. And a Premier, of all politicians, should be a self-controlled man, for his blunders reach far in their effects, often imperilling the execution of his most deliberately-pondered plans and purposes. A zealous temperament and a vigorous mind need the constant companionship of discretion. A discreet Mr. George R. Dibbs would be much more cheerfully accepted by the country as the head of the Government than the Mr. George R. Dibbs we have hitherto known. Next to Mr. Dibbs in relative importance in the new Ministry, not inferior to him if measured from a comprehensive point of view, is Mr. J. P. Abbott—a coming Premier, if he will only add a little sweetness to his light. A search throughout the colony would not find more competent hands in which to place the portfolio of Lands . . . To Mr. Wright's inclusion in the Ministry we are utterly opposed, and we cannot help thinking that if he wished well of his party he should have firmly declined his old colleague's overtures. . . . It is extraordinarily inconsistent that in the same Ministry we should have Mr. Abbott protecting the officers of his department from the influence of the Parliamentary land agent, and Mr. Wright imagining that the public sensitiveness will be allayed by his passing from one department to another. The Opposition is entitled to all the capital it can make out of this obstinacy. . . . Of the new men whose allegiance Mr. Dibbs has secured, Sir Patrick Jennings is by far the most distinguished. . . . Mr. Want is quite an unanticipated Attorney-General, but he may sustain Mr. Dibbs's expectations. . . . As a whole, the new Government is capable of carrying on the business of the country as intelligently as can be asserted of its predecessors. But the question is whether it is the best available Government. What the country wants is the best that can be had. The Opposition has not yet formulated its policy, but that policy will have to be something more than entered into Sir Henry Parkes's oration at Parramatta. On the one side the measures have been produced and the men named, and the sooner the other side comes into the field with closed-up ranks and definite promises the better for its prospects in the elections." On October 10 remembered a sub-leader entitled "The Premier at St. Leonards." (The article was then put in and read). At his speech at Manly on the evening of 12th October, witness referred to the fact that he had been twitted with being reticent, and estimated that there would be a deficit, but not a large one, owing to the drought; the report of his speech was a very fair one.

Mr. Rogers also read the following article published in the Daily Telegraph of October 13, dealing with the speech delivered by Mr. Dibbs on the previous evening:—"The speech delivered by Mr. Dibbs last evening at St. Leonards was an able, manly, generous deliverance, which could not but impress every hearer, as its report will convince every reader, of the perfect straightforward honesty of the man. Whether it was a statesmanlike speech for a man in the position of Premier of an important community is another question. We are satisfied that the speech, with its perfect frankness, its good-humoured tone, and its honest indignation with regard to the reckless and malignant slander in which his chief opponent so unscrupulously indulges, will confirm the high estimate in which the personal qualities of Mr. Dibbs are held by the community. The Premier evidently secured the sympathy of his audience by his denunciations of the systematic obstruction, and obstruction by means of scandalous imputations, to which the Opposition resorted in the late session, which made it at last necessary to shut up that 'slander-house' by the means of dissolution. What we fear is that, by engaging in these barren recriminations with so skilful a master of such weapons as his chief opponent, he is giving advantage to his enemy which will certainly be unscrupulously used. And in the meantime, while Mr. Dibbs was wasting his forces in warfare of this kind, he was giving insufficient attention to those points on which the public require some explicit assurance, which somehow is not forthcoming. The chief of these is the subject of the finances. This lies strictly and properly within the province of Mr. Dibbs to speak of. He has been Treasurer and he is Premier. In both capacities he might, with perfect propriety, have anticipated the ordinary course of events and given us a general statement of the appearance of the public balance-sheet. We do not care about Sir Henry Parkes's phantom, two and a quarter millions surplus, which he is constantly telling us he left in the Treasury. What we want, what the colony wants to know, is the state of the Treasury now. We are aware that the revenue has fallen very short of the expectations of the Treasurer. What we do not know is how far this deficiency may have been made up by economy of expenditure. If we shall soon be called upon to face a large deficit we ought to know it when a Government is asking for the support of the country at a general election. If there will be no such deficit, or only a small one, it would be very reassuring to be told so by the proper authority. In any point of view, reticence can only be disquieting. Moreover, reticence at such a time is naturally treated by the Opposition as confirmation of its worst statements. Mr. Dibbs gave last evening an outline of what he called the policy of the Government. To put it in a few words, it is to reintroduce and carry on the bills prepared for last session. Is that a full and adequate policy on which to ask the suffrages of the country at a general election? Those bills may have been a sufficient programme of work for a short winding-up session. Are they sufficient as the policy of a new Government and new Parliament? How can this be regarded as a statement of policy which wholly ignores finance and the financial adjustments which must inevitably be found necessary? We make these criticisms in the utmost friendliness to the Government, and in the hope that they may serve as suggestions, and elicit from the Premier a fuller statement of policy than that he submitted last evening. His speech secured its immediate purpose. It carried with it the sympathy and goodwill of its audience. We trust that it will be supplemented at an early opportunity in such a way as to preclude the hostile attacks to which it is now open." Witness remembered that article; he remembered a sub-leader published in the Daily Telegraph of October 15 relative to the election for St. Leonards, and also a leader published in that paper on the 16th with reference to the same subject; witness was not successful in that election at St. Leonards; he remembered the article published on October 17, in which it was stated that Mr. Wright, who was defeated at Redfern, had "wrecked the ship," and the following article published on October 19:—"Sir Henry Parkes had a congenial occupation at St. Leonards on Saturday. Kicking the political carcase of his fallen foe, he seemed to relish even more than blackening his character while he stood before him alive. After revelling in this exhilarating work to his heart's content at North Shore, he hurried away to repeat the performance at Manly. Probably the garish incongruity between the name of the beautiful seaside village and the characteristic action to which he made it a dishonoured witness added a sardonic zest to his enjoyment on the latter occasion. He assures us that, like the typical Englishman, he was taking his pleasure solemnly on Saturday. The nature of the pleasure was, however, the very opposite of that which the typical Englishman is fond of. After the battle is over, and victory has 'calmed and sobered' the true Anglo-Saxon, it affords him no pleasure to kick the body of his prostrate opponent. However, we have no word of remonstrance to offer Sir Henry Parkes on that particular subject. It is his right and privilege in this free country to gloat over the defeat of his enemies to whatever extent his good taste may dictate. It is a sorry reflection, however, to think that the 'calmed and sobered' mind of the man who has been Premier of this country for ten years, and hopes to be Premier again, sees nothing to regret in the whole of his conduct throughout the present most disgraceful and demoralising political campaign." He remembered having read the paragraph commencing "The Colonial Treasurer expected great things from the present year," published on October 2, 1885; the Colonial Treasurer could tell what his revenue and expenditure were for any quarter that had expired; but, taking the present year, and assuming that he were the Colonial Treasurer he, even with the aid of the daily sheets, and the assistance of the officers of the department, could not ascertain precisely what the amount of revenue for this year up to to-day was; all he would be able to do would be to get a rough idea of what it amounted to; it was usual for a tabulated statement to be placed before the Treasurer every day, in order that he might see what the revenue receipts were, and a statement was also placed before him at the end of every month, showing the receipts for the month as compared with the receipts for the corresponding month in the previous year; it was very probable that statements were made about the deficit in the House before September, 1885; it was quite likely that the leader of the Opposition (Sir Henry Parkes) made repeated reference to it; the House was in recess during the time witness was ill, and met again early in September; witness might have written to Mr. Thomson asking him to prepare some paragraphs for insertion in the Governor's speech; it was usual for the Governor's speech to be inspired by the Ministers of the day; each Minister brought forward a paragraph referring to the success or otherwise of the Department over which he presided, and the whole thing was afterwards dealt with by the Cabinet; he remembered Mr. Thomson giving him several paragraphs to prepare his portion of the speech from; there were five paragraphs, any one of which could be used in the Governor's speech; the paragraphs were to some extent contradictory; he remembered the Governor's speech which was delivered on the occasion in question; he distinctly remembered the financial portion of it which it was his duty to inspire; the speech was reported in Hansard under date September 8, 1885; at the time he made that speech he knew there would be a deficit in round figures of about £300,000 or £400,000; but any estimate of the deficit he made then could only be purely speculative; witness did not take much notice of any suggestions which emanated from the then leader of the Opposition; and he did not remember any members of the Opposition suggesting before September, 1885, that there would be a large deficit; they might have said so; had said to the leader of the Opposition, when he asked what the deficit would be, "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof," and he thought this was a very proper answer to make; the reply was made in answer to a question asked without notice in an interjectional sort of way; an allusion had been made in the Governor's speech to the falling off in the revenue caused by the drought, but that there would be no additional taxation, the revenue showing an improvement on the corresponding period of 1884; this speech was made while witness was Premier, and had been put into the Governor's mouth by him; witness remembered meeting Mr. Thomson at the Treasury on Sunday, December 7, and going over the accounts for 1884-85 and the previous years, and Mr. Thomson explained them fully; they prepared the matter for the financial statement, but the matter dealt with was not the amount of the deficit for 1885; Mr. Thomson had lunch at the Treasury with him on that day; he did not think that on that Sunday Mr. Thomson told him what he believed the deficit for 1885 would be, for it would be impossible for Mr. Thomson to do so, as he could not have known it himself for three or four days; he might have given him an estimate, but not a final one; on that Sunday Mr. Thomson might have given witness an estimate of what the deficit would be; if he gave witness any estimate, it was nothing near a million; he did not think Mr. Thomson showed him a paper on which an amount was marked as to what the deficit would be; it might be true that on the 11th December the Cabinet was engaged the whole day on the Estimates, and they were afterwards sent over to the Treasury; some Treasury inspectors and some other officials were kept late at the Treasury that night to prepare the accounts, of which the Estimates would form part; witness might have said to Mr. Thomson, "Do you think that there will be a surplus of £300,000 or £400,000?" Mr. Thomson might have replied that it was quite impossible to say until the balance was made up; witness went to the Reform Club, and Mr. Scarlett came for him; he went back to the Treasury with Mr. Scarlett; Mr Thomson might then have said to witness, "Instead of there being a surplus there is a deficiency of £473,000 odd," but he did not think Mr. Thomson told him that; Mr. Thomson spoke generally of the figures not coming out as he (Mr. Thomson) had represented to him; he would undertake to say that there was something said at that time of the deficit of £1,052,000; witness did not that night say to Mr. Thomson, "I had better resign;" Mr. Thomson advised him to delay the delivery of his statement; witness replied, "I will not do so; I promised to make it, and I will make it, come what may;" witness did not say to Mr. Thomson, "This must be some d— blunder of yours," but he said, "This must be some blunder of yours—let me see the estimates;" he did not say, "I had better resign," but he said, "That thing will be the ruin of the Government;" they had then under consideration the deficit for 1885 and the statement of accounts for 1886; the deficit for 1886 was mentioned, and it was about £473,000; when he saw that deficit he did not say, "Let's go to work so as to procure a surplus;" he said nothing of that kind; he did not say to Mr. Thomson, "Well, this won't do, I cannot tell them that in addition to the deficit of 1885 we are to have one in 1886;" Mr. Scarlett was present at the whole of that interview; witness did not say, "Let's to work;" that was rather a Shakspearian expression, which he did not use—(laughter); he did not say, "Let us go to work so as to produce a surplus;" they dealt with the expenditure estimates first, and Mr. Thomson made the alterations at witness's dictation; it was not true that Scarlett sat on the other side of witness for the purpose of stopping them when they had done enough; Scarlett was there simply to take a note; they went on until a surplus of £209,000 was produced; witness had a memorandum made of what was taken off the expenditure; the memorandum produced might not be all that Scarlett wrote that night, but was all as far as his recollection went to show; it was not true that they stopped when a surplus of £209,000 was produced, but went clean through the Estimates, and deducted all that they thought might be fairly deducted, and added all that they thought might be fairly added; he did not remember Mr. Thomson saying at the time the alterations were made that witness ought to inform the Cabinet of what alterations had been made, and he never said he would do so on the following morning; on the night in question the clerks were kept at the Treasury at work till 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning; witness went to bed at about 3 o'clock that morning, and later that morning he remembered Mr. Thomson showing him a statement with regard to the surplus, but he could not remember whether it differed from the surplus arrived at on the previous night; Mr. Thomson might have shown him a different statement, but he could not say whether it was £243,111; Scarlett had nothing to do with the matter, but acted simply as an amanuensis, and took down what he was told to take down; he believed he told his colleagues on the following day what was done; he believed Sir Patrick Jennings was present at the Cabinet meeting which was held; he believed all the Ministers were present; it was not a formal meeting; he delivered the financial statement on that night; his Government retired from office after the delivery of that financial speech, and then Mr. Burns took office; the speech produced was Mr. Burns's financial statement, made after his Government retired; he had heard it delivered and had commented upon it as it went along; a speech in the House was much like one from the barristers' table in the court, only they were kept in better order here than at the House; Mr. Burns, with one or two exceptions, had adopted witness's estimates. (Mr. Rogers then tendered Mr. Burns' speech as evidence.) Could not say whether the memorandum produced was written on the same night or not; it was in Mr. Scarlett's handwriting.

The hearing was then adjourned until to-morrow morning, his Honor stating that the other jury summoned for No. 1 Court would not be required to-morrow (Wednesday).

No. 2 Jury Court.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice Foster and a jury of four.)

DUNLOP V. BOROUGH OF WAVERLEY (PART HEARD).

Mr. Barton and Mr. O'Connor, instructed by Mr. W. T. Coonan, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Wise and Mr. Rolin, instructed by Mr. T. B. Rolin, for the defendants. This was an action brought by John Charles Dunlop, hotelkeeper, carrying on business at Bondi, to recover compensation from the plaintiff borough for inconvenience and loss sustained by him in December last in consequence of the borough having so negligently, carelessly, and improperly repaired the road in which plaintiff's premises were situated, and leading down to the beach, that access to and from the hotel was impeded, that the street became impassable by reason of the obstructions placed there, and that plaintiff, by reason of the circumstances mentioned, lost a large number of customers and boarders. Damages were laid at £2000.

The evidence on both sides was concluded, and counsel having addressed the Court, his Honor summed up. The jury, after about half-an-hour's consideration, found a verdict for the plaintiff with damages £100.

In Equity.—(Before his Honor the Chief Judge.)

RE SYDNEY SAFE DEPOSITORY COMPANY.

Mr. Lingen made an ex parte application in the matter of the Sydney Safe Depository Company, Limited. The petition was represented by the Australasian Trust Management, Assurance, and Investment Company, Limited. The petition stated that a demand had been made for £323, which had not been paid. It was a guarantee company. The principal shareholders were Messrs. Carter, A. Godfrey, and C. J. Cameron. The petition was made returnable for September 6.

PROUDFOOT V. LOGAN (PART HEARD).

Mr. C. J. Manning, instructed by Messrs. Fisher, Ralfe, and Salwey, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Walker, with whom was Mr. Campbell, instructed by Messrs. M'Donald and Moffatt, appeared for the defendant. This was a suit entered by Mr. Proudfoot praying the Court to decree that the defendant deliver full accounts in the matter of the contract for the construction of the third section of the Illawarra railway. It was contended that under an agreement entered into between the parties who contracted for the railway that the plaintiff should stand out as a sleeping partner and that the defendant should carry out the contract, and, finally, plaintiff should receive one third part of the entire profit derived from the contract, and that during the progress of the work defendant should render to plaintiff monthly statements of all matters relating to the work. Plaintiff alleged that the accounts rendered were not such as would enable him to form an estimate of the work, nor were they sufficient to enable plaintiff to check the disbursements. The defence was that the accounts supplied contained as full information as was necessary under the terms of agreement. On the case being resumed, his Honor delivered judgment. He said the parties appeared to have had many disputes, and a considerable amount of litigation. On the 29th October, 1887, David Proudfoot and George Proudfoot came to an agreement with Logan for the purpose of settling the matters in dispute and to put a stop to litigation. The agreement provided that Logan should carry out the work without interference on the part of either of the Proudfoots, who should be entitled to one-third of the profits derived under the contract, and that Logan should have two-thirds of the profits. The tenth paragraph of the agreement provided that monthly statements should be rendered to the Proudfoots. The question his Honor had to determine was as to whether the accounts prepared by the defendant for the plaintiffs were proper statements within the meaning of the 10th section of the agreement. These statements should be full and contain details of all matters necessary for the parties to have in their minds in determining the amounts of the profits. The accounts furnished gave no information as to the expenditure of the large sums of money. It might just as well have been stated, "Expended £5000, received £4000." Mr. Proudfoot took exception to the item for wages, which gave a lump sum of £3400. It did not state how many men were employed, or what were the rates of the wages. This was a matter requiring more inquiry. It might be that the wages did amount to a round sum, but it was certainly unusual that so large a sum should expended in wages without either odd pounds or shillings. Then there were a number of items for the purchase of machinery, such as "Vale and Son (£47), Parsons (£47), Ivy (£89), Mason Brothers (£120)." There was no mention in the statement as to what those sums were for. He was of opinion that the accounts furnished were not proper accounts under the agreement. The plaintiff was entitled to come to the Court and ask for further and fuller accounts; he therefore decreed for the plaintiffs with costs, and that proper accounts be supplied by the defendant to the plaintiffs within one month.

FAIRFAX V. WATERHOUSE.

Mr. C. J. Manning (instructed by Dr. G. J. Sly) appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Lingen (instructed by Mr. Thom) appeared for the defendant. The plaintiff, who is a storekeeper at Strathfield, sued Mrs. A. Clara Waterhouse, as the wife of a man "with no means," for £58 17s. 6d., for goods sold and delivered, she having a separate estate. Plaintiff had made application for payment, and on January 16 last defendant signed a document to the effect that if she had time allowed she would pay the sum in two amounts out of her separate estate. The time mentioned for payment had lapsed, and as defendant refused to secure the amount the suit had been brought. The defence was that defendant signed the agreement under duress, and that the claim should have been proved against her husband's estate, she being in the position of a femme sole. His Honor reserved decision.

In Chambers.—(Before the Chief Judge).

HOLT V. GOBLIN.

In this case an application was made to amend a transcript, and it was decreed that the plaintiff's affidavit of May 25 should be rectified, the costs of the application to be included in the costs of the cause.

In the Equity suit, Proudfoot v. Logan, heard on Monday before his Honor the Chief Judge, Mr. C. J. Manning, instructed by Messrs. M'Donell and Moffitt, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Walker and Mr. Campbell, instructed by Messrs. Fisher, Ralfe, and Salwey, for the defendant.

BANKRUPTCY COURT.—Tuesday.

(Before his Honor Mr. Justice Deffell.)

CERTIFICATE HEARINGS.

Re George Prosser. This was an adjourned application for a certificate of discharge in which his Honor had reserved his decision. His Honor found the proceedings were so faulty that he ordered the application to stand over until the 10th proximo.

Re James Lock. Certificate to issue upon payment of the Court fees.

Re James Floyd. In this case it was stated that the bankrupt had not complied with the order of the Court, and as there was no one present to support the application the case was struck out.

Re Morris Duschnitz. In this case an affidavit had been filed, but as further information was required in reference to a sale the application was ordered to stand adjourned.

Re Alexander M'Naughton Bowden. The application was ordered to stand adjourned to October 2.

Re David Goodman. Certificate to issue upon the payment of the usual fees.

Re James Kennan. The application was ordered to stand adjourned for a week.

Re Henry Rousell. Certificate to issue.

Re Thomas James Stutchbury and E. Edgar Hyland, ex parte Henry Rogan Hyland. Certificate to issue.

Re the same, ex parte Clarence Gilbert M'Kenzie. Certificate to issue.

Re William Buxton. This application was ordered to stand adjourned for three weeks, and the bankrupt to explain within 14 days why he had not more than £14 in his possession, as, according to his sworn schedule, it was shown that he had £37 7s.

Re John Westhead. This case was struck out.

Re Bernard C. Rooney. This case was struck out, as it was found that an application was made to the Court in 1869.

Re William M'Kenzie. No parties appearing in this case, it was struck out.

In re John Augustine Moore. His Honor said that in this case an application was made as far back as the year 1880. The report of the official assignee at that time was to the effect that the insolvent had sent goods to Tamworth and had not accounted for the same. He had not filed a statement of his affairs, as he was required to do. His Honor directed the insolvent to state by affidavit why he had not complied with the previous orders, and why he had not prosecuted his application for a certificate. He adjourned the application to October 9.

Re Robert Curtis. The application was adjourned to October 16, the insolvent to file an affidavit within a month.

APPLICATION UNDER RIDER.

Re Samuel Pesch Hoff. The application in this case was supported by an affidavit signed by the majority of the creditors. The hearing was adjourned to September 26th, notice in the meantime to be given to the objecting creditors.

(Before the Registrar.)

EXAMINATION IN PROOF.

Re Ernest Royer. In this case Mrs. Sarah Royer, wife of the bankrupt, was examined in proof of a debt against the estate of £500, money advanced to the bankrupt out of the separate estate of the witness. Mr. Burcher appeared in support of the claim; and Mr. Lloyd, the official assignee, opposed the claim. Mrs. Royer stated that she lent the bankrupt £500 in December, 1887. The amount he promised to repay. The amount was realised upon the sale of a house at Moss Vale. The sale was to a Mr. Paten, and the money was paid into the E. S. and A. C. Bank in Sydney. The property was purchased by her husband and settled upon her by deed, and a trustee was appointed. Mr. Lloyd said that the property was sold in 1876, prior to the passing of the Married Women's Property Act, and he contended that a married woman could not prove against the estate of her husband until all the creditors had been satisfied. He relied upon the cases, re Jenesse (2 Morrell Report, 283), re Nottingham (4 Morrell Report, 116), re Tidswell (4 Morrell Report, 219); 56 Law Journal, Queen's Bench, 548; and he contended that, upon ex parte Green (2 Deacon, ch. 113), a married woman could not prove against her husband's estate for money advanced while she was living with him. He also held that the trustee under the deed of settlement should have made an affidavit. Mr. Burcher replied to the objections, and cited the case of Lindley v. Gourley (2 Supreme Court Reports). The matter was adjourned for judgment.

SEQUESTRATION ORDERS.

William Frost, of Bowral, on the petition of debtor. Mr. L. T. Lloyd, official assignee.

Frederick Mansfield Mills, of Woodstock, near Armidale, on petition of debtor. Mr. E. M. Stephen, official assignee.

Harry Williams, of Mort-street, Balmain, plumber and gasfitter, on petition of debtor. Mr. A. Morris, official assignee.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT COURT.—Tuesday.

(Before his Honor Judge Wilkinson and a jury of four.)

WOOD V. CAMPBELL.

Mr. Gibson, instructed by Messrs. Laurence and Rich, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Field, with Mr. Owen, instructed by Messrs. Deane and Deane, for the defendant. This was an action by the plaintiff, Ramsden Wood, physician and surgeon, to recover the sum of £15 8s. 6d. for medical attendance by him as physician and surgeon upon the late wife of the defendant, W. D. Campbell. The defendant pleaded "Never indebted," and also filed, as a defence by way of cross action, that the plaintiff, in breach of an agreement entered into between him and the defendant, wholly neglected his duty, and conducted himself carelessly and unskilfully in the performance of the same, and was totally incompetent and unfit to perform the duties of physician and surgeon, and the late wife of defendant died because of the incompetence and want of proper skill and care on the part of the plaintiff, and for these reasons the defendant sought to recover the sum of £200 from the plaintiff. To this the plaintiff answered that the defendant had admitted his indebtedness for the amount claimed, and had also promised to pay it; and that at the time of the operation the defendant found no fault, and in fact thanked the plaintiff for his kindness.

Mr. Gibson, having stated the plaintiff's case, put in a copy of the Medical Gazette as evidence of the qualification of the plaintiff as a registered medical practitioner.

Mr. Field objected that this was not evidence. They had pleaded that the plaintiff was not qualified, and it was for the plaintiff to prove that he was so. According to the Medical Practitioners Act it was necessary to have a certificate from the Medical Board of New South Wales.

His Honor overruled the objection.

Mr. Field asked that the witnesses be ordered out of court.

Mr. Gibson said there were some experts present who were called to give medical evidence, and, though he did not object, he did not think it was necessary to order them out of court.

Mr. Field particularly requested that all witnesses should be ordered out of court.

His Honor: I refuse to order the experts out of court.

Dr. Clubb, medical practitioner residing at Randwick, stated that it was not accepted that chloroform should not be used where other anæsthetics were available. It was usual for two medical men to be present at operations, one to administer the chloroform and the other to perform the operation. It was the duty of the man who administered the chloroform to remain and watch the patient whilst under the influence of chloroform. To leave the patient when fully under chloroform would be negligence.

W. D. Campbell, the defendant in the action, said that his late wife was 34 years of age. He had been married nearly eight years, and had three children. He first employed Dr. Wood to attend his wife on the 28th August last year. Dr. Wood and Dr. Foreman examined his wife, and the former suggested that she should be taken to his (Dr. Wood's) hospital, for fear of septic poisoning after the proposed operation. He (witness) took her to Dr. Wood's hospital, where she remained for the operation. He saw her on the morning of the operation, and she was very drowsy from the effects of a sleeping draught given the previous night. After the operation he spoke to Dr. Wood, who said that when the piercing needle was used a discharge of water came out instead of pus, and added, "Then we knew we were wrong." Dr. Wood explained that the painful nature of his (witness's) wife's complaint was due to inflammation, and that when the part was pierced they therefore expected pus.

Dr. Tring, who was present at the post-mortem examination on the wife of the defendant, said that there was a tumour and pus beyond it, but not in the exact position where it was expected to be—it was separated by anatomical boundaries from where it was expected; he considered Mrs. Campbell died from heart failure.

The case stands as part heard.

METROPOLITAN QUARTER SESSIONS.

Tuesday.

(Before his Honor Mr. District Court Judge Dowling.)

Appeal Cases.

POLICE V. ABRAHAM.

A court for the hearing of appeals against the decision of magistrates was held at Darlinghurst Courthouse. The first case called upon was that of the Police v. Johann Abraham. The appellant, an elderly man, was represented by Mr. Wallace. The appellant some months ago was sentenced by Mr. Delohery, D.S.M., at the Central Police Court, to six months' imprisonment, with hard labour, on a charge of vagrancy. At the trial it was stated that he had represented himself as a priest of the Roman Catholic Church in Persia, and as such had solicited subscriptions towards the completion of a monastic institution in the land from which he hailed. A gentleman upon whom he called for the purpose of soliciting a donation, having some doubts as to his bona fides as an ecclesiastic of the Roman Catholic Church, questioned the man for his authority, which he in response stated was a verbal one, received from the Vicar-General of the Diocese of Sydney. Information was given to the police, and accused was arrested, and charged with obtaining money by means of false pretences. Whilst imprisoned awaiting trial, a girdle containing a large number of gold pieces was found strapped around his waist. After the evidence in the case had been taken the charge was altered to one of vagrancy, and accused was convicted on the evidence adduced in the previous case. Mr. Wallace contended that the conviction was against the weight of evidence. His Honor intimated that he believed the man had been rather harshly treated, and he quashed the conviction. The money which was found upon the appellant, and which was handed over to the custody of the Persian Consul in Sydney, will now be restored to Abraham.

POLICE V. WALTER SMITH ALIAS THOMPSON.

Walter Smith alias Thompson appealed against a magisterial decision sentencing him to three months' imprisonment, with hard labour, on a charge of being a suspected person, found frequenting King-street tram waiting-place. Mr. T. M. Slattery appeared in support of the appeal, which was upheld, and his Honor at the time of delivering his judgment informed the appellant that if he again appeared before the Court in a similar position he would be more severely dealt with.

POLICE V. ELLEN IRWIN.

This was a case in which Ellen Irwin appealed against two convictions recorded against her at the Central Police Court. Mr. M. Williamson watched the case in the interest of the appellant. In the first instance she had been sentenced to be imprisoned for a period of three months for an offence committed under the Vagrancy Act, and in the second a similar punishment had been awarded her for stealing. In both cases the convictions were upheld.

POLICE V. SUB YOKE.

Sub Yoke, a Chinaman, appealed against a conviction recorded against him on July 20, at the Water Police Court, by Mr. Addison, S.M., on an information charging him with acting in the capacity of banker in a common gaming-house in George-street, Sydney, and under which he was ordered to pay a penalty or fine of £50, with costs. Mr. Moriarty, instructed by Mr. W. Roberts, sen., appeared in support of the appeal; and Mr. Fitzhardinge watched the case for the Crown. Inspector Attwell having been called, gave evidence as to the arrest of the appellant under the warrant he produced, which was granted on an information on oath. Mr. Moriarty then took exception to the validity of the warrant and the formality of the information; and contended that the whole of the proceedings were illegal and a nullity. The learned counsel raised the following points, which constituted the grounds of the appeal. 1st. That defendant did not act, and was not acting, in the capacity of banker, and was not guilty of the offence alleged against him, and in respect of which he, with others, was unlawfully taken into custody, and brought before the magistrate at the Water Police Court. 2nd. That no complaint on oath, in the first instance, was required by law whereon to ground the special warrant, nor was any special warrant issued in terms of or pursuant to the first section of the Act 14 Vic., No. 9. 3rd. That no information was duly sworn, nor was any warrant lawfully issued before the entry by Inspector Attwell and other members of the police force on the premises. 4th. That the evidence in the case did not establish any offence in law against defendant. 5th. That defendant was not, either alone or with others, gaming or playing at any unlawful game either before or at the time of entry, or when he (with others) was arrested, nor were the premises used as a common gaming-house. 6th. That the warrant, together with the information or complaint used as evidence on the charge against defendant was bad, void, and of no force or effect in law. 7th. That defendant (with others) was illegally arrested—imprisoned by the justice who heard the case, who under the circumstances had no jurisdiction in the matter of such charge and proceedings. 8th. That the conviction was against law and evidence, or the weight of evidence. 9th. That the conviction and all other proceedings were a nullity. The counsel for the Crown argued that neither the warrant nor the information was necessary to give the magistrate jurisdiction in the case. His Honor, considering the importance of the objections raised, reserved his decision, it being agreed between the counsel that his Honor should read the evidence taken at the trial. Judgment will be delivered in the case at 10 o'clock on Saturday morning.

Mr. T. K. Abbott, S.M., dealt with the business at the CENTRAL POLICE COURT yesterday. Henry Howlett alias Jameson, for having insufficient lawful means of support, was sentenced to six months' hard labour. Samuel Gray, 20 years of age, was charged with assaulting Susan Reid, by striking her in the face in a violent manner without any provocation. He was mulcted in a penalty of £5, or the option of two months' imprisonment. Mr. C. Delohery, S.M., disposed of the business in the Summons Division. Annie Anslowe, for behaving in a riotous manner, was mulcted in a penalty of £2, with 2s. 6d. costs, or the option of 21 days in gaol. Jacob Orth, licensee of the Open Anchor Hotel, Druitt-street, was fined £3, with costs, or in default, 21 days' imprisonment, for keeping his licensed premises open on Sunday. Thomas C. Haywood, for using insulting words to one Kate Crocker, was fined £1, with 4s. 10d. costs, and 21s. complainant's costs, or the option of 14 days in gaol. Robert James Cook, for deserting his lawful wife, Lena Cook, was ordered to pay 15s. per week for 12 months towards her support.

Mr. Fisher, S.M., presided in the Charge Division of the WATER POLICE COURT. Mary Ellis, on remand for having a shawl in her possession reasonably suspected to have been stolen, was sentenced to one month in gaol, with hard labour; and for the further offence of stealing a coat, valued at 10s., from No. 300, Pitt-street, the property of Annie Dawson, was sentenced to six weeks' imprisonment with hard labour. Charles Wilkinson, 30, traveller, for refusing to pay the sum of 6d. for liquor supplied to him by Nicholas Jurgensen, of the Cricketer's Arms Hotel, Fitzroy-street, was sentenced to three days' imprisonment with hard labour, and for the further offence of assaulting Nicholas Jurgensen was fined 20s. or 21 days' gaol. Eliza Lawrence, 40, a married woman, for being an habitual drunkard, thrice convicted within the preceding 12 months of drunkenness and behaving in a riotous manner in Botany-street, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment with hard labour. Mr. Addison, S.M., presided on the Summons side.

Mr. Marsh, S.M., dealt with the business of the BALMAIN POLICE COURT. Patrick O'Brien, for being drunk and disorderly in Evans-street, was fined 20s., or seven days. Nellie Ward and Annie Jacobson were charged with stealing a tin of biscuits, valued at 6s., the property of R. Woods. The former was sentenced to one month in gaol, with hard labour, and the latter till the rising of the Court.

At the REDFERN POLICE COURT, before Mr. Benjamin Lee, D.S.M., 23 persons were fined for drunkenness. William Williamson, convicted of having assaulted Walter Bradwell, was fined £2 with the option of one month in gaol. James Shields, an old offender, was sentenced to six months in gaol, with hard labour, for having, in company with another, stolen two chairs and other articles from Johnson's Family Hotel, Cleveland-street. John Henry Newton, charged on warrant with having deserted his wife three days after marriage and remaining absent for 18 months, was ordered to pay 15s. per week, and to find sureties in the sum of £80 for the payment of the money, in default to be imprisoned for a term not exceeding 12 months. Thomas Kelly, 40, charged with stealing a large number of floursacks, the property of his employer, John Coslem, was ordered to be imprisoned for one month, with hard labour. Philip Tideswell, for the use of obscene language, was fined £1, or 14 days in gaol. William J. Scott, licensee of the Hereford Arms' Hotel, was fined £3 and costs, or one month in gaol, for selling liquor on Sunday. Mary Ellen Harris, found leaving the above hotel with liquor in her possession, was fined £1 or 14 days. Jesse Baxter, charged with having assaulted John Davis, was fined £1 6s. 8d., or 21 days in gaol. William Donovan, for riotous conduct, was fined £2 with 2s. 6d. costs, or in default one month's imprisonment. John Sullivan, for an offence against decency in a public place, received a similar sentence. James Vincent Hanrahan, licensee of the Fitzroy Hotel, was charged with keeping his premises open during prohibited hours. The evidence of the police showed that from midnight on the 17th instant until 3.30 a.m. on the 18th instant a constant stream of men were admitted into defendant's hotel in open defiance of the constables, who saw the men served with liquor through cracks in the bar door, and cautioned defendant about his conduct. In Court defendant declined to enter the witness box, but produced a number of certificates of character, and stated that he thought he was acting within the law. He also called two witnesses to prove that it was impossible for the constables to have seen through the door as stated. Defendant was fined £5 (to enable him to appeal if he thought fit), with 5s. 6d. costs, or one month in gaol.

Messrs. H. Byrnes and G. Wickham, Js.P., disposed of the business at the PARRAMATTA POLICE COURT. Richard Paton, charged with assaulting Constable Sinclair while in the execution of his duty, was sent to gaol for one month, with hard labour. It appeared that the defendant had on Sunday tried to rescue a man named Fitzgerald from the constable, he having taken him in charge for obscene language.

LICENSING COURT.

A Licensing Court was held at the Central Police Court yesterday. Messrs. T. K. Abbott, S.M., C. Delohery, S.M., and Mr. J. Macintosh, L.M., presided. Transfer of publican's license was granted from David D'Arcy to John Williams, of the Darling Hotel, Harbour-street. Brewer's license granted to John Stevenson, of Shepherd-street, Marrickville. Booth licenses were granted to Charles Stratton, J. J. Phelps, J. B. Bassetti, and A. M'Donald. Music permits granted to Alexander Fraser, David Turnhill, D. O'Connell, James Bryan, Daniel James, J. F. Whiting, W. Inkendang, F. Spencer, A. Thompson, G. Cope, N. May, J. Sturt, J. Sawyer. The license of Esther Mooney, of the Pottery Hotel, Riley-street, was cancelled on account of the licensee not complying with sec. 58—viz., "failing to maintain accommodation." Auctioneer's license granted to Henry Pollock. Hawkers' licenses were granted to Ellen Wakeham, Alfred Peterson, Maris Goldberg, Richard Kelly, and Monshee Bux.

A BANKRUPT IN TROUBLE.

At the Water Police Court yesterday, the adjourned case of William Goward, charged by warrant with having disposed of certain goods—to wit, boots—by public auction, after his estate was duly sequestrated, was resumed. Dr. Sly appeared on behalf of the prosecution, while Mr. T. M. Slattery appeared on behalf of the accused. This case was brought under the Bankruptcy Act, 1887, under clause 122, which reads as follows:—"A bankrupt who with intent to defraud his creditors or dishonestly to conceal the state of his affairs or otherwise to violate or defeat the law shall in each of the cases mentioned in this section be guilty of a misdemeanour, and shall be liable to imprisonment with or without hard labour for any time not exceeding three years;" and subsection M, "If within four months before sequestration he pledges or disposes of, otherwise than in the ordinary way of trade, any property which he has obtained on credit, and for which he has not paid." Several witnesses were called whose testimony tended to show that the accused had considerable dealings with Messrs Enoch Taylor and Co., and that goods bought of that firm had been sold at auction. The evidence being concluded,

Mr. Slattery submitted that no case had been made out against the accused.

Mr. Addison thought that so far a prima facie case had been made out. There was a new principle, and a very important principle, involved, and it was time that the law should step in and decide as to the points brought forward. Although he said it was a prima facie case, yet he did not think it was altogether a very strong one.

Mr. Slattery submitted that the accused had no fraudulent idea in doing what he had done. If he had wished to defraud there were other ways of doing so which would have supported that theory. It was only fair that this side of the question should go forth to the public, in view of the paragraphs which had already appeared in the press in connection with the case. In four months the accused had paid to Messrs. Enoch Taylor and Co. alone the sum of £641 16s. 1d., and in the month of March also he had paid £187 3s., showing throughout his bona fides. A man who for 18 years had been in business in Sydney, would not be likely to suddenly do wrong in the way in which he was charged.

Dr. Sly stated that the accused had received certain moneys and had not paid his creditors.

Mr. Addison said there was a still more important point, namely, whether the transactions of the accused in this particular case were in the ordinary course of trade or not.

Dr. Sly urged that the accused went to Messrs. Taylor and Co. and bought the goods at a certain figure, but did not pay for them, and subsequently disposed of the goods and pocketed the money.

Mr. Addison stated that the two points in the case were that they were not sold in the ordinary course of trade, and that there was an intent to defraud.

The accused, who reserved his defence, was thereupon committed to take his trial at the next Court of Quarter Sessions, bail being allowed.

THE FISH MARKET DELUSION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The contribution of "Wollamai," under the above heading, which appears in your issue of this morning, should have the effect of bringing pressure to bear on the City Municipal Council in re the fish market question. I need add but very little to what "Wollomai" so graphically and truthfully describes, and I quite endorse his remarks with reference to the Fisheries Commission; but perhaps neither he nor the great majority of your readers are aware that the commissioners have in reality something to do with the "fish market delusion," because they subsidise the municipal inspector to the tune of £75 per annum, in addition to the salary he receives from the corporation. It may be inquired why and what for is the sum mentioned taken from the public treasury, and for what purpose is it paid to the inspector and auctioneer of the "fish market delusion"?

I am, &c.,
PHILIP COHEN.

THE AUSTRALIAN ASSOCIATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF SCIENCE.

THE FIRST MEETING.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

The inaugural meeting of the Australian Association for the Advancement of Science was held in the Great Hall of the University last evening. There were fully 700 persons present. Lord Carrington presided, and among those present were the president of the association, Mr. H. C. Russell; Sir William Manning, chancellor of the University of Sydney; Sir James Hector, director of the New Zealand Institute; Professor W. C. Kernot, president of the Royal Society of Victoria; Dr. H. N. MacLaurin, vice-chancellor of the University of Sydney; Professor E. H. Rennie, president of the Royal Society of South Australia; Sir Alfred Roberts, president of the Royal Society of New South Wales; Sir Edward Strickland, president of the Royal Geographical Society of Australasia, New South Wales branch; Professor Liversidge, Dr. George Bennett; Mr. J. R. Ashton, president of the Art Society of New South Wales; Professor W. H. Bragg (South Australia), Captain E. E. Brett, Hon. Dr. Campbell, M.L.C., Dr. J. C. Cox (Victoria), Mr. S. H. Cox (New Zealand); Mr. W. D. Cruickshank, president of the Engineering Society of New South Wales; Mr. R. L. J. Ellery, Government Astronomer, Victoria; Mr. J. J. Fletcher, Mr. J. F. Mann, Mr. C. Moore, Mr. J. A. Pond (New Zealand); Mr. Thomas Rowe, president of the Institute of Architects, New South Wales; Mr. S. Percy Smith (New Zealand), Professor W. Baldwin, Spencer (Victoria), Professor Anderson Stuart; Mr. R. Teece, president of the Australian Economic Association; Mr. H. Tryon (Queensland), Professor Warren, Mr. Thomas Whitelegge, Professor Threlfall, Professor Black (New Zealand), Mr. W. M. Hamlet, Professor Tate (South Australia), Mr. W. A. Haswell, Dr. Bancroft; Hon. J. Inglis, Minister for Education; Dr. Wilson, Dr. Ashburton Thompson, &c.

Lord CARRINGTON on rising to open the proceedings was received with loud and prolonged applause. He said: Ladies and gentlemen,—My first duty is very pleasant, it is to return to you my grateful and respectful thanks for having been allowed to take the chair this evening. I consider it a great compliment, and I am grateful for so high a compliment having been paid me. I believe that the Australian Association places the best knowledge of the best men at the disposal of all who care to avail themselves of it, and it puts special information into general circulation, and increases the popular sum of knowledge on scientific subjects. (Applause.) The formation of this association was brought forward in 1879 and in 1884, and the centennial year sees its inception, with, I am proud to be able to say, my friend, Mr. Russell, the Government Astronomer, as the first president. He is a gentleman who was born here, was educated here, and he is in every way a credit to this great colony. (Applause.) The association is thoroughly Australian. Meetings, I am told, are to take place in all the colonial capitals, the executive officers being chosen from the colony in which the meeting is held. Now I have nothing more to do except in the name of the colony, with which it is my pride to be so closely connected, to offer a most hearty welcome to all the strangers from the other colonies who have honoured us with their presence this evening. (Cheers.)

Professor Liversidge announced the receipt of apologies for absence from Sir Henry Loch (Governor of Victoria), Baron von Mueller, the Chief Justice of South Australia, the Mayor of Sydney, Mr. S. Kent, Mr. Litton (Victoria), the president of the Royal Society of Tasmania, Mr. Thompson (Queensland), Mr. Wilkinson (Government geologist), Mr. M'Donald (Victoria), and a number of other gentlemen.

Mr. H. C. RUSSELL was received with loud cheers when he rose to deliver the presidential address. He said: It was not without serious misgiving as to my fitness for the office that I accepted, in the early days of this association, the honourable position to which you elected me; and could I have foreseen that your choice would call me to preside at such a great and representative gathering as this, held in the great hall of our University, within which all the associations are so enobling, I must have declined the honour which your kindness has conferred upon me. I can only assure you that I am deeply sensible of the importance of the duties you have asked me to fulfil, and that it is my earnest desire to do everything I can to further the object for which we are met together. I must ask you to look kindly on the many shortcomings which I know will mark my efforts. In July, 1831, just 57 years ago, Mr. (afterwards Sir) David Brewster wrote to the secretary of the Yorkshire Philosophical Society, and proposed that the society should call a meeting of all the scientific men in the United Kingdom, with a view to the formation of an association for the advancement of science. The proposal was approved and encouraged by the society, and received the most zealous and effective support from Sir John Herschel and Sir Roderick Murchison in London, and from Mr. Robison, Mr. Forbes, and Mr. Johnstone, of Edinburgh. A committee was appointed to consider how it should be done, and they reported: "That they were of opinion that the invitations for the first meeting, which was to be held in York, should be co-extensive with whatever desire there might be throughout the country to promote science." Invitations were accordingly sent out in the form of a circular letter, dated July 12, 1831, to the presidents and secretaries of all the scientific institutions in the United Kingdom and known to the committee, asking them to give a general invitation to all the members of the societies to join the association and attend the first meeting at York. At this time there were 39 scientific societies, 13 in London and 26 in other parts of the kingdom. As indicating how very comprehensive was the invitation issued by the promoters of the association, I quote its last paragraph, which reads:—"All persons interested in scientific pursuits are admissable to the meeting." The meeting was accordingly held in the hall of the Philosophical Society of Yorkshire on Tuesday, September 27, 1831. Three hundred and fifty-three persons attended, including most of the scientific men of the United Kingdom, and it was thereupon decided to form the association, and that it should be called "The British Association for the Advancement of Science," the objects of which shall be to give a stronger impulse and a more systematic direction to scientific inquiry; to promote the intercourse of those who cultivate science in different parts of the British Empire with one another, and with foreign philosophers; and to obtain a greater degree of national attention to the objects of science, and a removal of any disadvantages of a public nature which impede its progress. Such was the first stage in the history of the British Association; the foundation had been laid, and it was broad enough to support the imperishable structure that has been raised upon it. It was a conception worthy of Sir David Brewster, and has done more for the advancement of pure and applied science than any other institution in the United Kingdom. It has won the confidence of Governments, who have adopted and acted upon the recommendations of the association, and regularly placed in its keeping sums of money for the promotion of science. How the work has been carried out, and what has been done, I cannot pretend to tell you now. It is the story of the advance of science in all the sciences during the last 57 years, and would occupy at least the rest of this week. I regret my inability to condense the story into the limits of this address, for I can conceive of no stronger incentive to the formation of a similar association here than the history of what has been done for science by the disinterested labours of those who from time to time have formed the working members of the British Association. If one turns over the back volumes published by them, they are full of invaluable reports upon almost every subject one can name. The mere list of titles makes a volume. Is there any scientific subject that needs investigation by a number of persons: a committee is at once formed, men found willing to take a share in the work that in some cases lasts for years; they have but to ask and hundreds of men all over the kingdom will give willing help. For instance, underground drainage is a subject that requires for its investigation the united labours of hundreds of people, who will patiently gauge their wells all over the country and report the result: without hesitation a committee of the British Association took up the work and carried it on for years to a successful report. Is it desirable to investigate the phenomena of shooting stars; a committee again takes up the subject, works out all the results, tells us a mass of invaluable facts bearing upon their phenomena. Is it necessary to form a grand star catalogue out of all the labours that have gone before; the association at once appoints a committee and give grants of money for the publication of their invaluable catalogue. Is the theory of ship-building in a state of chaos; a committee of scientific and practical men collects the results of experience, reduces them to order, to the improvement of ship-building. And so on. Hundreds of subjects, scientific and practical, have been thoroughly investigated, and the information brought up to date by the voluntary labours of the members who have made the British Association true to its charter. It has advanced the sciences all round—mathematical, chemical, physical, mechanical, physiological, and botanical. It found thousands of fellow workers in science separated by distance and different associations, and it abolished distance by itself going about the country, and made a common ground upon which all could meet and work for the promotion of their common object without losing their individuality as workers in their own sphere. It brought as it were to a focus the science of England; made it possible to see at glance what had been done; opened up the vista of a grand scientific progress, and marshalled the men who were to move forward; the best men in each subject were called to work side by side with their equals or betters, and necessarily when each subject came to be treated in this special way, there was a great advance; but it is not a thing of the past, it is a living principle of to-day. Last year the meeting at Manchester included 5000 members. Not all workers it is true, but all learners, and the most humble contributing something towards the publication of the labours of those who are leaders in the van of workers. Its influence has come across the ocean, and brought us here to-night, and we hope before the end of this week we shall have a number of preliminary reports upon scientific labours in these colonies in the past. At the very time that Sir David Brewster was using his pen and his influence to stir up the scientific men of England to greater effort in the cause of science, and to the formation of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, the British Government were sending to Sydney one of the most energetic scientific men that ever set foot upon Australian soil, with a view of keeping alive the dying embers of the first attempt to plant science in this part of the world. And I think it most fitting that, at this first meeting of the Australasian Association for the Advancement of Science, we should remember that first effort to promote science in a country so remote from the home of science. It is difficult now to form any idea of the condition of society in Australia when Sir Thomas Brisbane landed, and nothing but the habit of disregarding difficulties, which a long military experience had taught him, would have made it possible in his mind to form a scientific society under such circumstances. But he had been so accustomed to go into strange places and make his own surroundings that it appeared to him possible to do the same here. He landed in the end of November, entered upon his official duties on December 1, 1821, and by January 2 following he had found out the only scientific men in the colony, formed them into the Philosophical Society of Australia, and had the first paper read. He never seems to have anticipated any difficulty in managing this handful of civilians, who, however, soon got beyond his control. His own enthusiasm for science was very remarkable. In the midst of the harassing marches and all the perils of the great continental war in which he bore a part, even when he had to sleep six nights in the snow with nothing but his overcoat to cover him, and found himself frozen to the ground each morning, and once with 900 men frozen to death around him, he always had his astronomical instruments in his baggage, and brought them into use whenever there was half a chance. It was this intense love for science, coupled with his military ideas, which made him so anxious to get all the scientific men around him in a duly organised society, each to do his duty rigidly or suffer the consequences. But with all his enthusiasm he soon found that a small army of scientific workers was not so manageable as the armies he had been accustomed to. The members of this first Australian Society, according to Judge Field, were:—Alexander Berry, Henry Grattan Douglas, M.D., Baron Field (Judge), Major Goulburn (Colonial Secretary), Captain Irwin (Bengal, N.I.), Captain P. P. King, John Oxley (Surveyor-General), Charles Stargard Rumker (astronomer), Edward Wolstencroft, his Excellency Sir Thomas Brisbane, K.C.B., F.R.S., president. I find no record of the rules of this society, excepting one, and that was if a member failed to read a paper when his turn came he forfeited £10. They met at each other's houses in turn, and the only refreshment allowed was a cup of coffee and a biscuit. It seems that the society was more of a mutual friendly association or scientific club than a formal society. At that time there was no public library, and but one bookseller for the whole of Australia; so the members catalogued their books and lent them to members. With such a strong incentive to write papers, there can be no doubt that meetings seldom lapsed for want of a paper, but they were not published in proceedings, and the only existing record is given by Judge Field, who published four of them in his "Geographical Memoirs":—No. 1. "On the aborigines of New Holland and Van Diemen's Land"—read January 2, 1822. 2. "On the Geology of part of the coast of New South Wales, from Hunter River to the Clyde"—read in the same year by Alexander Berry. 3. "On the Astronomy of the Southern Hemisphere," by Dr. Rumker—read March 13, 1822. 4. "On the Maritime Geography of Australia," by Captain P. P. King, R.N.—read October 2, 1822. Mr. Oxley also read a paper, and Major Goulburn some notes on meteorological observations; and lastly, Sir Thomas Brisbane communicated meteorological observations. We have evidence, therefore, that seven at least of the 12 were workers. Allan Cunningham (botanist) also contributed papers to Judge Field's memoirs—one describing his travels from Bathurst to Liverpool Plains in 1823, and the second on the botany of the Blue Mountains, as observed in November and December, 1822. Judge Field does not say that these papers were read to the society, so that he may not have been a member, but without doubt all the members did good service in the colony. The society which was thus commenced with such flattering promise of usefulness was destined to but a brief period of existence. A question arose between the Government and some of the members as to the value of the dollar—the coin then current—which led to estrangement and the breaking up of the little band of workers who cultivated science. It appears that this was caused by the decree that the dollar, after the centre had been punched out to make a small coin equal in value to sixpence and known as a "bit," should still pass for its original value, the effect of which was severely felt by business people, because it raised the value of the pound sterling 25 per cent. But the great work which Sir Thomas did in Australia, and what I am disposed to think induced him to accept the position of Governor in the distant colony, was his astronomical work. He had applied before taking the appointment for the consent of the Government to start an observatory when he got to Sydney, but that being refused, on the ground that they were then making arrangements to establish an observatory at the Cape, and did not think it necessary to have two southern observatories, he at once determined to take the whole cost and responsibility upon himself, purchased a complement of instruments, and selected two assistants, Dr. Rumker, as a first-class astronomer and mathematician, and Mr. Dunlop, for his great natural ability and enthusiasm in the pursuit of astronomy. He brought the whole with him, astronomers and instruments landing in Sydney in November. The observatory was at once marked out, within 100 yards of Government House, Parramatta, so that he could at any convenient time take a share in the work; but he could not wait for the building. I find, from the observations, that he observed the sun's solstice in December, and he so hurried on the building that it was completed and ready for use by the end of April. He, with both assistants, worked at high-pressure observing until June 16, 1823, when Mr. Rumker, owing to some difference in opinion between himself and Sir Thomas, left the observatory. Dunlop at this time was not a trained astronomer, but he was a ready learner, and a little training from Sir Thomas made him master of the instruments, and then he began that well-known feat of observing which probably has never been equalled. By the end of February, 1826, or in two years and eight months, he made 40,000 observations, and so catalogued 7385 stars. He then left the observatory, and in 16 months at his own house in Parramatta he catalogued 621 nebulæ and clusters of stars, made drawings of the Milky Way nebeculæ, major and minor, and many nebulæ, catalogued and measured 253 double stars. For this he got the gold medal of the Royal Astronomical Society and afterwards gold medals from the Royal Institute of France and from the King of the Belgians. Meantime Rumker had returned to the observatory and agreed to carry out a work that was recommended by Sir Humphry Davy as President of the Royal Society, viz., the measurement of an arc of the meridian in New South Wales (that arc is not measured yet). Sir Humphry Davy urged that "the measurement of an arc of the meridian in New South Wales would not only be of importance to astronomy in affording data for determining correctly the figure of the earth, a matter of great interest to navigation, but would likewise be useful in laying the foundation for a correct survey of our colonies in that great and unexplored country" (dated 20th October, 1823). Five years later, in 1828, things had made some progress, Mr. Rumker had agreed to measure the arc, and he ordered the apparatus; but in January of the following year, 1829, he again left the observatory, and that for the time was an end of the arc of the meridian proposal. Dunlop was re-appointed in 1831, and the observatory lingered on without publishing until 1840, when it was dismantled. One cannot look back at the history of that observatory without pain, owing to the misfortunes which seemed to upset every effort to make it useful. Sir Thomas was evidently a first-class observer with the sextant, but knew nothing of fixed instruments; hence he bought a lot of instruments second-hand, and wholly unfit for the work they were intended to do, and Rumker, who was, without doubt, an able astronomer, had some bee in his bonnet that became very troublesome in the atmosphere of Parramatta. Sir Thomas Brisbane had the command of men and means in abundance, the will and the ability to direct, and so all but the two little ifs was ready for the measurement of an arc of the meridian—a work too long left undone, and one which I hope this association will take up, not with its funds, but with its influence, and urge on to completion. It is a work of the greatest scientific and practical importance. The four great colonies interested in this question have each done a part of the work which will be allotted to them when the arc, which must extend from the south to the north of the continent, is finally measured; and if this association rightly uses its influence, the work will be done. At present our surveys are quietly going on upon the assumption that the earth is a regular spheroid, when it is more than probable, from the arrangement of land and water, that it is nothing of the sort at this particular part of its surface. Sir Thomas Brisbane evidently contemplated this when he left England, for he took with him the pendulum apparatus to determine the figure of the earth, and left his friends in England to bring the necessary pressure to bear upon the Government to get the arc measured under his administration. I have introduced the subject here as one in every way suitable to occupy the attention of the association, or at least one section of it, and I thought the early history of the conception would be new to most of us. And its author is in every respect well worthy of remembrance at our first meeting. He was the first man who can fairly be called a patron of science in Australia, having spent, in furnishing the observatory alone, without salaries, more than £1600. He was the first to form an association of scientific men in Australia, with a view of advancing science, and Sir John Herschel justly said of him, when presenting the gold medal of the Royal Astronomical Society for the Parramatta catalogue, "It will be to you a source of honest pride as long as you live to reflect that the most brilliant trait of Australian history marks the era of your government, and that your name will be identified with the future glories of that great colony in ages yet to come, as the founder of her science. It is a distinction worthy of a British governor. Our first triumphs in those fair climes have been the peaceful ones of science, and the treasures they have transmitted to us are imperishable records of useful knowledge, speedily to be returned with interest to the improvement of their condition, and their elevation in the scale of nations." Amongst the eleven men who formed the first scientific society of Australia there was far more than an average amount of ability. The great weakness of the society, and that which made it impossible for it to exist except under the fostering care of the Governor, was its want of numbers; and, unfortunately, in many branches of science the same difficulty exists to-day, and makes it always difficult, and in some sciences impossible, to keep alive societies for their promotion only. Even in those societies which include a number of subjects, and thereby add to their numbers the workers in each, it is often difficult to find enough original work, and perhaps I ought to say enthusiasm, to keep a healthy amount of vitality at its meetings. I am sure there are many here present who have to do the work of scientific societies who must have felt this, and who have often wished, as I have, for something to put a little additional vitality into the members, and for something also, which would bring together a greater number of workers in each branch of science, so that ideas might be interchanged, and a little healthy emulation aroused. Not something to withdraw members from their own societies and steady work, but something to make us feel that it won't do to go to sleep: because our fellow-workers in the other colonies are very wide awake. The Australian Association for the advancement of science, seems to me to meet our case exactly. Its meetings only last for one week in each year, and therefore cannot take members from their local societies, and by assembling the workers in each branch of science from all the colonies, by asking them to form committees and work side by side for a time, it promotes the exchange of ideas upon the same subject, and the pleasure which that affords. There can be no more fitting time to explain the steps which have led up to our association for the advancement of science than this, our first meeting, when I hope all the members are present. I have no doubt that to very many the information will be new, and under any circumstances we must leave for those who come after us an account of the origin of an effort in the cause of science, which I am sure will have an important and lasting influence on the scientific progress of Australia. The first step was taken by Professor Liversidge, who is himself an institution for the advancement of science, and knows no fatigue in that service. Round him everything has revolved in perfect order to the complete preparation for this meeting. On September 16, 1884, in a letter to the Herald, which was afterwards reproduced by most of the colonial and some of the home papers, he pointed out that the interest created in Australia by the announcement at the British Association meeting in Montreal of Mr. Caldwell's discovery of the oviparous nature of the platypus and porcupine had led to the suggestion that they should meet some day in Australia; but that he thought this was improbable at present, owing to the time it would take and the cost, and he suggested that we should make preparations for the realisation of the proposal by bringing about a federation or union of the members of the scientific societies of Australia, Tasmania, and New Zealand into an association on the lines of the British Association, and that the first meeting should be in 1888, as one of the features of the Centennial year. He had previously, viz., in 1879, mentioned the proposal to a few, but thinking matters were hardly ripe to press it he had not gone further. Nearly two years then elapsed and no one took up the suggestion, so in his address as President of the Royal Society in May, 1886, he said, "I am still of opinion that arrangements should be made for holding a meeting of those who wish to form an Australasian Association in 1888, and I shall be glad if those who are in favour of it will kindly send me their names." "If the proposed Australasian Association for the advancement of science should really become an accomplished fact, as I hope it will, the first meeting should I think, be held in 1858," and he then sketched an outline of the rules for it, based on those of the British Association. On June 30, 1866, came the first support to his proposal; the council of the Royal Society of New South Wales resolved to take a part in furthering these views, then promises of support came in from the other colonies. Thereupon in July, 1886, he sent a circular to the presidents of the various Australasian Societies, telling them that his proposal had been favourably received, and requesting them to appoint members of their council or delegates to represent them at a meeting of such delegates from various societies as soon as possible. The number of representatives or delegates from each society was to be one for each 100 members. On July 28, 1886, the Royal Society of New South Wales appointed five delegates; 34 other societies agreed to join, and 28 appointed delegates for the meeting, which was called for 10th November, 1886. At the meeting 16 delegates were present—7 from New South Wales, 2 from New Zealand, 2 from Queensland, 5 from Victoria. They framed and adopted the provisional rules which we now have, and which are the British Association rules altered to suit our circumstances. It was resolved that the president, hon. secretaries, and hon. treasurer should be elected by ballot from the representatives of the colony in which the meeting is to be held, and the presidents of sections from members in the other colonies, and that the first election shall be held in Sydney in March, 1888; and further, that the first meeting should be held in the beginning of September, 1888, in Sydney. Special appeal was then made in the daily press to all who intended to join the society to send in their names, so that they might be eligible for election to the official positions, officers for which had to be elected by ballot, and the elections were delayed as long as possible to give everyone time to join. The delegates were called together, and met on March 7, 1888, and they elected—H. C. Russell, F.R.S., president; Prof. Liversidge, M.A. F.R.S., and Dr. George Bennett, F.L.S., hon. secretaries; and Sir Edward Strickland, K.C.B., hon. treasurer. Since then the council, composed of the delegates from the various societies taking part in the work, have held 13 meetings, and have found plenty to do in arranging the details for the meeting, electing vice-presidents, presidents, and secretaries of sections, collecting papers to be read, &c., for this meeting, and have caused to be sent out 6000 circulars to members of scientific societies in Australia; they have, in fact, been sent to every member whose address was known to them, and thinking it possible that there were many others who would join an association with such a wide basis, they have appealed to the public through the daily papers of all the colonies, very frequently by advertisement and paragraph, and the result is that to-day our numbers are 750, which, I think, is very satisfactory and encouraging. And I, who have sat at their meetings, seeing all that was going on in the laudable emulation that prompted to greater exertions, the ready way in which heavy correspondence, the writing of guides, information, &c., were undertaken, especially by the secretaries of the sections, cannot allow this occasion to pass without expressing, on behalf of the association, our acknowledgment and warmest thanks to all. I may mention that in Australasia there are only 38 scientific societies known to the officers of this movement. All these were appealed to by letter; 34 expressed their intention of taking part in it, and of these 28 sent representatives to the meetings—this out of a population which may be roughly stated at 4½ millions. In 1831 when the parent society was formed the population of the United Kingdom was 23 millions, and there were in existence 39 scientific societies (I am unable to say what was the number of members). I have endeavoured thus briefly to sketch the history of the movement which has resulted in the present association. Like the British Association, our basis is broad enough to take in "whatever desire there may be in the country to promote science," and those who have joined hope that no man will stand aloof who has any desire to help in the advancement of science. After the experience gathered by a similar institution in the old country I have no fear for the future of this movement. I do not expect the association to emerge from the shell of its first meeting perfect; that would be unreasonable; but I believe that we have accepted a constitution and acquired an impulse which in the course of time will lead us on to the realisation of our purpose. The scientific man works very much alone, isolated from those around him by his peculiar manner of life, and from his fellow-workers by distance, because so far the world expects each scientific man to be a world in himself, to be able to do all it wants of that science, and is not disposed to keep several where one can be made to do. The call of the British Association, therefore, to meet once a year those who are like-minded, appeals to his social instincts in a very effective way. Hence the opportunity of going to the meeting to see and talk with his fellow-workers is not to be lost. It is a real pleasure to have a talk with kindred spirits, and a very effective motive for application all through the year, for no man would choose under such circumstances to neglect his self-culture, and feel at the meeting that he was far behind his fellows. Then these meetings naturally lead to the formation of committees, who must work up all those subjects which the individual cannot manage. One of our first duties will be to work up all the facts known in every branch of Australasian science, if you will allow me to use the term. I mean all those branches of science which are more immediately connected with the material advancement of the colonies. This I hope will not take long, and then we shall be in a position to advance in these subjects. Every worker knows how necessary it is to have all facts in clear and orderly arrangement, as a preliminary and necessary step to any safe advance. It may seem to some that I am asking too much—that we are all hard-worked men, and but few in numbers, and have no time for such work—but exactly the same may be, and has been said, of the men who are the workers in the British Association, yet they are not the men of leisure, but the busy men of science, who do the work, and it is very instructive to watch how they respond to the call of the association; it comes like a call to arms that must be responded to, and is responded to often at great personal sacrifice, and with no other motive than loyalty to the cause they serve. But the parent association has just the same power over hardworked professional and business men; in thousands of cases it has taken from such a man a week of ill-spared time during which he attended the meetings, and by so doing has succeeded in setting him to work for a year, thinking how he can advance the cause of science. As like produces like, so these meetings of workers make many new workers; and as we read down the list of names of those who have been drawn into the great army of workers we find the name of every distinguished man in the United Kingdom—men with a practice or business in which they had no spare moments: Stephenson, Scott Russell, Brunel, Bessemer, Nasmyth, Armstrong, Warren de La Rue, Spottiswoode, Whitworth, Siemens, and so on, through all that grand muster-roll of which any nation would be proud. Now, I do not for one moment suppose that we with four millions can make the same display of talented workers that the United Kingdom can from 37 millions; but we can find some, and I am quite sure that our association will be the means of bringing to the front many men amongst us now scattered through the country who have ability and genius, and who are willing to take up some of the subjects which require investigation and work them out; men whose daily work is of another kind, but who have nevertheless a keen love for science and investigation and the spare time to take up a limited subject and fill up the whole detail. I am convinced that there are many such who require no other stimulus than that of being invited to render services of the highest order. They want to work, but do not know where to begin; while, on the other hand, a crowd of suggestions meet the busy scientific worker at every turn. Ideas that want realising are continually floating in his thoughts. Now it is some promising line of investigation, some experiments that only want making to put the finishing touch to a long line of reasoning, and establish some new scientific fact or some new law of nature. Now it is a new view of an old and well-fought difficulty, some new vantage ground that promises success; but he cannot leave the pressing duties of the present hour to work out the promising future. And for him to meet those who have time and ability to work is like hope in the wilderness, and if our association can bring them together it will have done much to promote science. It has been said that amateurs at science do little in the more difficult subjects of investigation; but those who say so overlook the fact that, when a man does do difficult work, they cease to call him an amateur, and class him with professional men. It is a well-known fact that some of the greatest honours in scientific work were won, and are being won, by men who would be properly classed as amateurs—men who have stolen from leisure and from sleep the hours necessary for their favourite study. It is a mistake to class all amateurs as alike. As well say that all business men are alike. Science seems ever to point forward. The question answered to-day suggests two for to-morrow. There may be no halting place, and none is desired. Obedience to the law of service develops into a service of love, and the search for truth is the pleasure of existence. And if we are true to our colours we will see that truth is not stored away in dusty papers, but published to the world, so that everyone may see what and how it is. The British Association has put the best men to do this, and to publish the known facts in every science to the world, and has found this the best method of helping that great majority who are ready and willing to help if taken up to the front and shown clearly the boundary between what is known and what is unknown. It is this noble example that we wish to follow. The Australasian Association is for the advancement of science, and if it fails in that, it will fall to pieces. But it is not the hobby of a few individuals, or of one colony; it takes in all who wish to advance science in all the colonies it meets here this year. In Melbourne, probably, next year, going to another colony every year, gathering up the enthusiasm of each colony in turn, and will come back to us when we are very glad to receive it. By its charter the association is bound to promote the intercourse of scientific men and lovers of science; to give a stronger impulse and a more systematic direction to scientific inquiry; to obtain a public recognition for the claims of science, and to endeavour by every means in its power to promote scientific inquiry; to grapple with the scientific questions that affect the material advancement of this portion of the British dominions—questions in chemistry, physics, and geology; in mining, mineralogy, and engineering; in meteorology, water conservation, and irrigation; and every other subject that may promote our national advancement. I hope you will not think my subject is running away with me, for the experience of the British Association fully justifies us in believing that we may expect all this and much more from our association. We are often told of the influence of science upon material advancement; but there is another thing that I should like to dwell upon, but that I fear to keep you too long. We hear too little about the influence that scientific work has upon a man's character. There is a science culture as well as a classical culture, and it would be worth while tracing its influence upon those who get it, and through them upon society. And we hear far too little about the influence which science is having upon the young, by exercising their powers of observation and reason on the phenomena of nature around them. Scientific education is spreading through all classes of the community, and slowly, but surely, like the advance of every great truth, the world has learned to recognise the fact that science is the great lever in the material advancement of the people; nay, more, that we cannot have material advancement without a previous advance in science. If we are to have new processes in the arts, new applications of the laws of nature for the wellbeing of mankind, we must first have the study of nature and the laws which govern its operations before we can hope to employ them for our advantage. In a new country like this, with all its local variations in the laws of nature, its uncultivated forest fruits and flowers, its unknown vegetable and mineral wealth, the fact is forced upon us in a thousand ways that we must know or we must suffer. And we use the word science in its comprehensive sense. There have been those who said that the proper study of mankind is man, and who, while strenuously denying to this study the dignity of a science, have thought no other science worthy of culture. And there have been others who have asserted that man's only study was nature in the things around him, neglecting altogether the science of man. But man and nature are correlative, and, therefore, true science must embrace both studies. And even in the things around us we must not take the vulgar view, which only sees the necessity for cultivating those branches of science that are direct producers of gold and minerals. As a well-known politician in another colony once said to me when I asked him to spend a few pounds on pure science, "Will it affect the price of beef and mutton? If not, I won't spend a shilling on it." Unfortunately he is not alone in his opinion; there are many whose only measure for scientific value is a coin of the realm. If there is to be a true advance of science it will not come from one-sided efforts. Each branch must be pushed forward in its own special direction, and in—what is just as important—its relation to all other branches of science. Science stands or falls as a whole; if we limit it to certain purposes or persons, it ceases to be science, and becomes mere empiricism. This association stands as a protest against the short-sighted and utilitarian policy of those who would cultivate only what they characteristically call the bread and butter sciences. Our purpose is the advancement of all the sciences, believing, as we do, that the true advance of one is inseparably connected with that of all the others, and by the advance we do not simply mean the increase in knowledge of its laws, but also in the application of it to the wants of mankind. Too often in the past the advance of science has been checked for generations by those who said they knew that the earth stood still, and who did their best to make it do so, and our protest is against the views of men of the same stamp in the present day who think they know everything and select what is useful. Is that dreamy astronomer to be banished because he sits in some darkened dome peering through his telescope at some distant star, and wanting to know where it is. What has that got to do with the material advancement of the people, says the Utilitarian. Nay, that very quest turned into a demand for better mechanical contrivances, better glass, and better workmen, led Fraunhofer to strain every nerve to meet it. He will examine light in its passage through lenses most minutely, and thus learn how to correct the previous errors in his telescopes, and while he did that he found those definite lines in the spectrum that will for ever be known by his name. He recognised their exact coincidence with those given by well-known terrestrial substances, and so gave the world the spectroscope, that most wonderful instrument working out through the most abstract science, the quickest, most perfect—aye, even the cheapest way of answering a thousand pressing questions in the money-making arts. Has chemistry served its purpose when it analyses our soils and our minerals; when it makes a mixture to take gold from quartz, and money out of everything. Is it not to go into our schools and colleges and universities, and teach those who will never use its solvents—those wonderful affinities in nature, those laws of combination and dissolution, of solution and crystallisation—the laws which formed the water, built up the solid rock, the earth, the flowers? Is the study of pure mathematics to be banished because it cannot find an equation for the locality of a big nugget, when it has found and is finding thousands of equations which are mines of untold wealth in the material advancement of humanity. No, certainly not; for 'tis fitting that man, dwelling in that infinitely complicated organism, his body, which responds on its ten thousand strings to every breath of nature, should study not one or two, but all the laws which govern it for weal or woe, and learn to place himself in harmony with all. (Loud Applause.)

Sir WILLIAM MANNING said: Ladies and Gentlemen,—I am permitted to move a resolution, which is so pleasant and so easy that I should like to give it at once, but I must keep it as a secret for a little while. If I allowed the secret to get out I am afraid you would be so impatient to give expression to your approval that you would not listen to the few words which I have to say. If it were on my own account that I rose, I should feel that I was not the proper person to address such a meeting as this. I am not a man of science, and I cannot pretend to be although I have a great appreciation for the sciences. It is now nearly 60 years ago when I began to learn the little I did learn upon scientific subjects at a new university which discarded the old dislike for science. There I sat under such men as Drs. Gardner, Lindley, and De Morgan—men who have hardly had their superiors in matters of science. I learned enough to enable me to follow the progress of science, and to appreciate all that has been discovered since—the period in which such great developments have taken place. The president, in his address, has told you that in the year 1831 the British Association was founded; but I go a little further back than that—during a time in which there is no doubt that science has made wonderful progress—so wonderful that it is almost difficult for the mind of man to follow the discoveries. But, as I said, I do not stand here as in my own person alone to address you, but I have, I suppose, been asked to move the resolution because of the position I occupy as chancellor of this University. It is in that capacity that I address the august assembly I see before me. Let me express my admiration of the address delivered by the president, but I will abstain from making any remarks upon it, because I think such remarks will come infinitely better from his Excellency, who will no doubt address a few words upon that subject. Such an expression will come with more force, more weight, and carry a greater impression than any words I could utter. This Association does not strictly belong to the University, although I may be permitted to compare it to something like a rib extracted from this place, as there are the president and Professor Liversidge the hon. secretary, who are both members of the University Senate. Well, the rib has been extracted, and it has got independent existence. You know that in the case of the first rib that got independent existence how thoroughly independent it was (Laughter.) And if this association should progress, as no doubt it will, we may expect that independent spirit to grow until this University becomes of comparatively little importance beside it. (Laughter.) On behalf of this University I think I may take upon myself the task of expressing the great gratification we feel at the success which the association has achieved. The objects are undoubtedly good. The association has, I believe, 754 members enrolled. That is remarkable, and gives an assurance of good work in the future. I hope that it will increase in usefulness, and that its career will be a long one. Although the association has no strict connection with the University. The University may, I think, look upon it as a helpmeet—to stand by its side and to help to raise the University and all educational institutions to a higher estimate in public opinion, and that the association may become a material intellectual force in the country. I only hope—and that hope I express on behalf of the University—that the attractions of science will not take the youth of this colony too much away from general education. There is no doubt science has great attractions, which may lead many not to study the writings of antiquity, and the thoughts and actions of those who live in history. There is, I say, certainly a danger that the mind of the youth may be drawn away from general education by this attraction. On behalf of the University I earnestly hope that such a result may never take place. Science has its place, duty, and interest; but general education is of far more importance to the well being of the community. We trust that science will progress year by year, and that new developments may take place which will be of great value to the country; still we hope that general education will hold its own. Side by side with the love for science, let the youth learn to value that which is useful to the country, and love general education, and value it as it ought to be valued. I say again that general education is of more value and of more importance than science to those in the office, in the legislature of the country, to the pulpit and to society. General education is of the greatest importance to the community and the country. I have always had some little fear that the attractions of science might interfere with general education. Still I do hope that it will not be so, and that, as science progresses more and more, general education, which teaches men the things of the world and directs their thoughts and minds, will hold its own. Now I will disclose my secret. It is a vote of thanks to his Excellency the Governor for his attendance to-night and for taking the chair on this occasion. I am sure that when you give expression to your thanks you will not merely thank him for presiding on this occasion, and for his usefulness in helping to inaugurate this society, but you will bear in mind all those occasions, ever since his Excellency has been here, when he could assist any movement for the benefit of the country he has done so, and has been always ready to give encouragement and help. I am sure you will carry with acclamation this vote of thanks, remembering not only his action on this occasion, but the whole tenor of his life since his Excellency has been in this country. (Cheers.)

Sir JAMES HECTOR said: Ladies and gentlemen,—I feel it a great pleasure to have been asked to second the proposition which has been made by Sir William Manning. For the last 20 years I have been intimately connected with a scientific society in a neighbouring colony, and I have invariably found the great advantage it was to that society to have the countenance and support, which has always been kindly and heartily given, of the Governor of the colony, the head of everything political and social. He has lent us his countenance, but beyond that he is a scientific man. It makes the labour light, and the work more easily recognised by the public; they see the drift of what is being done more readily when such assistance is given. For this reason, I think the thanks of this meeting and the association are due to the Governor of this colony for so kindly presiding on this occasion. This leads me to express the extreme regret of the Governor of New Zealand, which regret he expressed to me personally, that political duties prevented him from being present this evening. As an official of the executive of the University of a neighbouring colony, and with some knowledge of the subject, I say that if the minds of the young are to be nurtured as they should be it is absolutely necessary that the teachers of the various colonies should meet and become personally acquainted. The great function of this association should be to teach science throughout the colonies so that we do not have one minerology laid down in New Zealand, one geology in Tasmania, and one chemistry in Victoria, each colony teaching differently to its neighbour. It is for this reason that I say the teachers should meet. I look forward to the work of this association as being one of the greatest factors in spreading educational knowledge throughout the colonies. I heartily second the vote of thanks to his Excellency for presiding.

The motion was carried with loud cheers.

Lord CARRINGTON said: Ladies and gentlemen,—I beg to return you my most respectful thanks for the compliment you have paid me, and to Sir William Manning I tender my thanks for the kind way in which he has spoken of me. I congratulate the colony upon this first meeting of the association, I congratulate the association upon the first president they have elected, and I congratulate the president upon his address. (Cheers.) I am told that 80 members have been enrolled since last night, and upon that we may fairly say that the success of the association is assured. (Cheers.)

The meeting then terminated.

GARDEN PARTY BY MR. AND MRS. H. C. RUSSELL.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. H. C. Russell, Government Astronomer, and Mrs. Russell, gave a garden party in connection with the meeting in Sydney of the Australian Association for the Advancement of Science. There was a very large gathering, both of distinguished scientific men from the other colonies now in attendance at the meetings of the association, and leading residents of Sydney. A considerable number of ladies were present, and there were many charming toilets. The Observatory was thrown open for inspection, and the many complicated instruments were explained. Visits were made to the time-ball tower, from which a magnificent view of the city was obtainable. A marquee was erected on the lawn, in which refreshments were served. There were on view a number of old and obsolete instruments from the Parramatta observatory, which formed a great contrast to the modern ones in use to-day. There was a Mural circle, which was brought out by Sir Thomas Brisbane in 1821, and with it most of the observations were made there. Some 40,000 observations were made, and a catalogue of 7000 odd stars was completed. As far as the work at Parramatta is concerned, it was the principal instrument used there. A transit instrument was brought out at the same time. In use it was supported by massive stone piers; but it was now placed upon a modern stand for the purpose of exhibition. It was the only instrument used at the present observatory for the first 12 months, but was found to be very imperfect. An old pendulum apparatus was brought out in connection with the measurement of the arc of the meridian, which, however, was never made. There were two old clocks, one of which was now in use, and kept good time, although it had been going for 30 years. A repeating circle was now found to be of very little good, because of many imperfections. There was also the equatorial telescope from Parramatta, which has a 46in. focus, and a 3½in. aperture, which looked quite a dwarf by the side of the gigantic one now in use. The afternoon was fine, and the gathering, which passed off successfully, was most enjoyable.

The last vestiges of the house in the upper part of New York where Edgar Allan Poe lived are (says the Pall Mall Gazette) about to be destroyed. The house stands on a rock in Eighty-fourth-street, near Tenth-avenue, and men are now blasting away the rock on two sides of it, using the house as a shop for a smith's forge. The house itself will disappear before the end of the present season, the land being wanted for modern buildings. The locality has for a few years been the scene of enormous building activity. The cottage in question is commonly believed to be the one in which Poe wrote his "Raven."

PARISIAN GOSSIP.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, JULY 20.

The duel between Prime Minister Floquet and the would-be Cæsar (who, it had just been decided by the War Office, is to retain the title, and the right to wear the costume of "General") came off at 10 o'clock of the 14th instant, the Parliamentary quarrel which led to the hostile encounter having preceded the meeting by some 16 hours only, so that no time was lost in bringing the principals within reach of each other's swords. M. Floquet having been so grossly insulted by "the General," it was decided that he had the choice of the arms to be employed; and he accordingly chose the sword, to the General's satisfaction, he considering himself to be specially skilful in the use of that weapon. Count Dillon, Boulanger's devoted partisan, offered the garden of his handsome residence at Neuilly, just out of Paris, as the scene of the encounter. The two adversaries, their seconds, and a couple of surgeons were on the spot in good time, and the preliminaries being promptly settled, the two men lunged at each other with a fury more like that of a couple of enraged wild beasts (so say the seconds) than two men, however angry. M. Floquet received a prick in the right arm, and his sword fell from his hand—two incidents that, by the laws of the duel, gave the seconds the right to end the fight. But the principals both opposed this proposition, being bent on killing, so the General's swords were brought into play, and the fight continued with these; the General at once making a lunge at his adversary with such violence that he lost his balance and fell forward upon the sword with which M. Floquet was preparing to run him through the body, and the point of which entered his throat between the jugular vein and the carotid artery, where it stuck, the violence of the General's fall upon the weapon having forced it out of M. Floquet's hand. The General raised his hand to pull out the sword, and the seconds cried, "Oh, General, you are using your left hand!" for the crisis had come so quickly that they had not understood what had occurred. But the spouting of blood from the General's neck, as he pulled out the sword, cleared their ideas, and, crying their excuses for the mistake, they declared the duel to be ended. The General holding his handkerchief to his neck, walked, aided by the surgeons, to the house, where he was at once taken in hand by those gentlemen—the wound examined, dressed, and declared to be serious, but not hopeless—and put into bed, with Countess Dillon installed as his nurse, a prohibition of speech and every precaution taken against the fever which the medical attendants declared to be the sole danger they feared. M. Floquet and his seconds had gone back at once to Paris, and the Minister, hastening to the Place du Carrousel—where the President was to unveil the monument to Gambetta, in presence of all the Ministers, leading statesmen of France, and an immense crowd of onlookers, filling the splendidly decorated place to overflowing—arrived just in time to occupy the place reserved for him on the Presidential platform. The news of the duel having spread through the town the "plucky" Minister was received with immense cheering "Vive Floquet!" "Vive a République!" resounding on all sides, with only a very few cries of "Vive Boulanger!" and a still greater number of "Down with Boulanger!" mixed in. So thoroughly is duelling regarded in this part of the world as a right, proper, and inevitable element of human society that no one seems to have considered the moral aspect of the affair, or to have seen the incongruity of the action of the Prime Minister in breaking the laws against duelling, which he should be the first to cause to be respected, or the monstrosity involved, on the part of a soldier who has been Minister of War, and expects to take command of the army again, in drawing against the chief of the present Cabinet the sword which he is supposed to consider as sacred to the service of his country and of its Government.

The monument to Gambetta, though somewhat minified by the splendour of the buildings around it, is a fine and vigorous object, consisting of a pyramid over 91ft. high, surmounted by a female figure wearing a Phrygian cap, and representing "Democracy Triumphant," supported by a winged lion, with open mouth; she holds in her hand the Declaration of the Rights of Man. In the centre of the pyramid is Gambetta, his head thrown back, his hand extended towards the horizon, just as he looked when preparing to electrify the Chamber with one of his eloquent outbursts, or mounting the balloon to fly above the German hosts to Tours. Over the orator is a winged figure holding a flag, and representing "the Soul of France" stirred to its depths by his eloquence, whose effects are indicated by a soldier leaning on the breech of a cannon with a broken weapon in his hand, a workman in a blouse stooping to pick up a sword, and another citizen shouldering a gun and ready to march to the battlefield.

Around the base of the monument were large platforms draped with red velvet, tricolour flags, and the sacramental R.F. in gold, for senators, deputies, officials, and invited guests, with places reserved in the centre of these seats for delegations, scholar-battalions, &c. All the civilians wore evening dress, senators and deputies and maires wore their scarves, and the scene was a very gay one. On the arrival of the President and Ministers, the military bands struck up, after a salvo of 21 guns in the gardens of the Tuileries: the sheet which covered the monument was thrown back, and the expected speeches were made, that of M. Floquet being specially brilliant and specially applauded. M. Mounet Sully wound up the affair with a recital of verses written for the occasion, and amid renewed cheers for Gambetta, the Republic, and France, and a grand performance of the Marseillaise, the assembly broke up.

The banquet given by the President to the maires in one of the vast galleries of the Exhibition Building in the Champs de Mars came off with perfect success in the evening; and Paris turned out, and the maires also, to see the decorations of the public buildings and streets, getting ready for the morrow.

The great review, always held on the National Fête Day in the Bois de Boulogne, went off splendidly. The President and Ministers were loudly cheered; cries for Boulanger were only heard at one spot, where his friends had mustered, whereas cries for "Carnot," "The Republic," and "Floquet" were general. Distributions of food were made to the poor in certain quarters of the town on a liberal scale. In the evening the town was brilliantly illuminated, and the display of fireworks from the first landing-place of the Eiffel Tower was magnificent.

Next day the Municipal Council gave, instead of the intended "punch of honour," to the 2700 maires a grand ball and reception at the Hotel de Ville.

The usual number of accidents, from the letting off of petards, guns, and small cannon, took place in the course of the day; about 20 being fatal, and the others more or less serious. The display of bunting in the streets grows less and less from year to year; but the popular balls and dances, in halls, tents, shanties, and on the open pavements, seem to be more numerous and animated every year.

The General meantime has been steadily recovering from his wound. A great quantity of telegrams, letters, cards, and bouquets have been sent from his friends, who are busily working his candidacy in several departments.

The two Chambers, which are perfectly decided not to allow themselves to be "dissolved" unless dissolution is forced upon them by a popular movement, which is altogether improbable, closed their sessions a couple of days ago, leaving unsettled a good many important questions, happily of domestic interest only. The next session will occupy itself with the strengthening of the principal seaports, the settling of the guns to be adopted for the army, the use of balloons in war, various questions connected with colonial affairs, and the winding up of other questions which the dispersion of the legislative body has left unsettled. M. Carnot, accompanied by M. Floquet, and with a numerous body of native and foreign journalists, graciously quartered in the Presidential train, is making, through the eastern departments, a visitation of the principal towns, that promises to be as brilliantly successful as his tour in the north-west. The welcome everywhere prepared for his arrival has been of the most cordial character. Decorations, banquets, receptions, and addresses, assuring M. Carnot of the confidence with which his occupancy of the chief post of the present régime has inspired the country, and the hopes entertained of his ability to aid all practical attempts at the amelioration of the general state of things, and the maintenance of order at home and peace abroad, have given him an incessant succession of ovations, in which Prime Minister Floquet has had a liberal share. Scarcely any cries for Boulanger have mingled with the enthusiastic applause which has been accorded to the President at every point yet reached by him; and, despite the excitement that has been got up by Boulanger and his party, the country in general is evidently desirous to avoid violent changes, desires neither the Count de Paris nor either of the Imperial candidates, repudiates the idea of a plebiscite, recognises in M. Carnot a man without ambition, sincerely desirous of promoting the prosperity of the country and the maintenance of peace in Europe—one, in short, whom they are glad to see at the head of affairs, and desirous of maintaining in his present position. Before separating, the Chamber authorised the President to reside with his family during the summer in the old palace of Fontainebleau, of which he will only occupy one modest wing, leaving the more palatial parts of the building to the soldiery and school by which they are now utilised, and to the visits of the public. A few hundred pounds are being spent from the public funds in repairs, of which the palace is terribly in need. M. Carnot will pay for the lighting, cleaning, furnishing, and general care of the wing he will occupy; and he will live there for a time with the utmost simplicity. So many industrial centres, however, are urgently inviting the President to visit them, in order to enlighten him concerning their needs and wishes, that he will hardly be able to spend much time with his family in the quarters which masons, plasterers, carpenters, and upholsterers, are busily engaged in rendering habitable.

Much sympathy is felt for the Queen of Servia, who has just passed through this city on her way to her family (in Roumania). It is understood that, if the divorce demanded by her husband is accorded by the authorities of the Greek Church, she will settle in Florence. She is remarkably beautiful; tall, elegant, with great natural dignity, and wins the respect and admiration of all who approach her. King Milan is coarse, ugly, brutal, profligate. He demands a divorce from his wife on the ostensible ground of "an unconquerable aversion," the real reason of his hatred being her profound and active affection for Russia, which is declared by the king and his courtiers to have created dangers for Servian independence. The king having demanded of the German Government to allow of his taking possession, by force if necessary, of the only child of this ill-assorted union, the eleven-year-old Crown Prince of Servia (whom the Queen had hitherto insisted on keeping in her own hands), and Bismarck having given her to understand that, much as he regretted the necessity of acquiescing, he could not refuse the King's demand for the restoration of his son and heir, the unhappy Queen was obliged, a few days ago, to let her son be taken from her by the Servian General and officials sent to Wiesbaden by King Milan to bring him back to Belgrade. The scene was a most painful one: Queen Nathalie weeping like a Niobe, protesting strongly against this violent seizure of her child, and the boy crying his eyes out, embracing his mother, and declaring that it was cruel, wicked, "an infamy," to tear him from his mother whom he loved, and to send him back to his father when he did not love." But the King's commands being formal, and German protection against them being refused, the boy was carried off, and conveyed by his captors to the railway, by which he has returned to Belgrade, where he has been received in state by his father and the Servian Ministers, and where everything will be done to counteract the influence of his mother, de-Russianise him, and inspire him with an interest in Servia. One-half of the Servian people and the army are believed to be warmly in favour of the Queen, and opposed to the project of divorce which the King is pushing forward, and it is regarded as quite possible that his obtaining his divorce may cause a revolution that would drive the King from Servia, and cause the country to raise another family to the Servian throne. The Russian press is already declaring King Milan to be a victim of mental hallucinations, caused by the assortment of vicious habits in which he habitually indulges.

Great interest is naturally felt in regard to the circle of visits to the crowned heads of Europe which William II. has begun by his journey to Russia, where his four days' stay is to be filled with all the magnificences that it may be possible for his Imperial host to cram into them. The notion has got abroad that the two Emperors will join forces for bringing about a partial disarmament, not only in France, but throughout Europe, the German Chancellor commencing this campaign by obtaining the consent of the Sovereigns to sign a convention engaging each to content himself with his present army and war budget, interdicting all increase of either. He considers that a barrier will be thus erected against the ruin now threatening all nations by the incessant increase of heir warlike outlay in time of peace, and that this measure will peacefully prepare the way to a reduction of the standing armies of Europe. French opinion is in favour of accepting this arrangement.

Meantime the two manifestos of the Count de Paris and Don Carlos appear destined to exercise but little influence in their respective countries, an appreciation the correctness of which is especially evident in regard to the latter, as the brother of the Spanish Pretender has recently made his submission to the Queen Regent, and has obtained permission for the entry of his two sons into the Spanish army.

The accounts of the hostility of the Emperor William II. and Bismarck to the Empress Victoria appear to have been wildly exaggerated. The present exasperation of unfriendliness is due to the refusal of the Imperial widow to give up certain papers, written by her husband, which she has placed in the hands of Queen Victoria, and which her son and the Chancellor are anxious to obtain possession.

Among other arrivals here is that of the Prince of Montenegro, who was received by the President just before he left. The aim of this visit is, as yet, a mystery for the inquiring minds of this region. Prince Taieb Bey, brother of the Bey of Tunis, is also here.

Everybody who comes to this city, no matter what their rank and nationality, visits, as a matter of course, the wonderful preparations of the Champ de Mars, where the Eiffel Tower has already reached an elevation that places it at the top of the list of the marvels of this planet.

SCARCITY OF WATER IN THE WESTERN DIVISION.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

WILCANNIA, TUESDAY.

Much consternation has been caused at Tibooburra by the Government well, two miles from there, on which the population depend for water, having given out and proved a failure. Several parties went out with tanks a few days ago, and found it quite dried up. This is a very serious matter for the township, as now all the water for domestic purposes will have to be carted some distance. The Government promised to start a bore near town, but commenced operations four miles away, and within a hundred yards of Whittabrennah homestead well, where water is not so much needed. There is every prospect of the drought continuing for some time, and already a number of people have left Tibooburra. Those remaining are very badly off, as no work can be done at the mines until the weather breaks. They intend bringing the matter of the water supply before the Government, and asking them to start a bore immediately close to town. 320 mixed cattle, from Bulloo Downs, Queensland, passed Tibooburra en route for Adelaide, via Silverton. Three more mobs of cattle are on the way down in consequence of the Government well going dry. Two loads of wool passed through Tibooburra for Adelaide.

DISGRACEFUL CONDUCT ON THE SABBATH DAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Would you kindly allow me the use of the columns of your influential paper to direct the attention of the police and the public to the disgraceful scenes witnessed every Lord's Day at the corner of Margaret and Sussex streets? For months past this place has been the resort of a number of loafers and blackguards, who not only set law and order at defiance, but also take complete possession of the footpath at the south-east corner of the above streets. But it is on Sunday, when the respectable portion of the community are at their homes or in their churches, that those blackguards (for that is their proper name) render their presence most obnoxious. Every Sabbath morn there can be seen about a dozen big hulking fellows, devoid of coat or vest, in a half-intoxicated condition, leaning against the wall of a public-house, smoking dirty, black pipes, expectorating over the footpaths and insulting the passers-by. In the afternoon, they are mostly all drunk, when one or two fights in the public street occasionally take place. On last Sunday, what might be called a full-dress rehearsal of the above programme took place—fighting, swearing, and dancing in the middle of the street being the order of the day.

I am, &c.,

AS YOU LIKE IT.

"Ay, marry! now unmuzzle your wisdom."—ROSALIND.

More than a column of the Osservatore Romano of the 12th of last July is given up to an important Australian prelate—"Sua Eminenza Roma il Sig. Card. Moran, Arciv. di Sydney, Primo Cardinale Australiano"—who had then just arrived in Rome; and to a still more impostant Australian citizen, who is, curiously enough, designated "l'Illustrissimo Signor Dalley, membro del Ministero Inglese." The writer of the article—who, I think, must have written with a copy of the Sydney Morning Herald or some other Sydney paper before him—was deeply impressed by the account of Cardinal Moran's departure from Sydney on his mission to the Pope, and by Mr. Dalley's eloquent valedictory; and he must have been more than a little astonished to find that with us the Protestants mingle in the functions of their Catholic brethren, and are not ashamed to help them with their money. "Fra i cattolici si mescordono numerosissimi i protestanti" (writes the Roman Clerical "Observer") "pieni di ammirazione anch 'essi per l'Emo. Moran"—("'anch essi' is a phrase that we should not ourselves much appreciate; but we must remember that the writer was addressing the Catholics of Italy).

From the spectacle in St. Mary's, which he says was attended, in addition to a very numerous gathering of the Australian clergy, by "Molti dignitari civili o militari e gran parte del fiore della cittadinanza di Sydney," the writer passes to Mr. Dalley: "Il Signor Dalley lesse uno stupendo discorso, interotto, quasi ad ogni periodo, da applausi fragorosi. Bisoquèrebbo riprodurlo qui per intero-tanto esso è bello!—e ci dispiace al sommo che lo spazzio non ci corsenta di accernane che soli alcuni punti." I don't, myself, think that the "Observer" has been altogether happy in his selections from Mr. Dalley's speech, but he reproduced that singularly apt quotation from St. Hilaire, and in the very words ("inaspettati daovero su tali labbra") of Mr. Dalley's interjection. And he reproduced (it must have been somewhat of a surprise to his readers) the catalogue of four years' work by Cardinal Moran, which exhibits an expenditure of 10,717,500 lire (£428,700). "Tutto cio in soli 4 anni," is the "Observer's" comment on that catalogue, and a genuine expression of his wonder it must have been. A reference to the Cardinal's reply, and to the applause evoked by it, to the ensuing benediction, and the departure of the Cardinal in the Orient, and to the "cinque steamers noleggiati perfore compagnia di orore a sua Eminenza," brings us to a moral the point of which, I confess, is not very visible to me. "Ecco come si apprezza l'azione della Chiesa in paesi dove il progresso moderno non difetta daovero, ma dove non è ancora giunta la peste del liberalismo a tipo Italiano o massonico." But this is neither the place nor the time to be censorious. And if the writer could but have foreseen how far a mob-ruled Government and industries suffering from the cancer of Trade Unionism could carry our "liberalism" in a few short months, perhaps he might not have said such complimentary things about "il progresso moderno" in New South Wales.

* * * * *

I am glad of the opportunity which the Roman newspaper gives me of saying something about Mr. Dalley not perhaps within the knowledge of its editorial staff. Only a few years ago, Mr. Dalley was the most widely considered and keenly observed man in all Australia. Other politicians and public men seemed to be, or to be thought, comparatively insignificant and uninteresting. But now, the man whose magical imagination had, at a critical moment, and by one happy feat, placed him out of the reach of all contemporary rivalry, is considered and observed principally by those to whom he was an object of admiration or affection long before the despatch of that historic offer of Australian assistance to the Mother land. The general public having apparently satisfied itself that Mr. Dalley's health is permanently impaired, and that he has practically retired from public life, pursues him no longer with its curiosity. Even the professionally comic papers have found somebody else who "draws" better. His is a case—and a rare case—in which the retribution of splendid audacity, and the Nemesis of splendid success have come from within, and not from without. It is said that a day of health or a night of sleep have for many months come to him, when they have come, as an Oasis in the desert of his daily suffering. Nothing has had any interest for him, not even literature; and when he does appear in public (which happens with extreme infrequence) it is a treachery to his medical advisers, and in almost criminal despite of the consideration which ought to be reserved for himself. In Mr. Dalley's present condition of ill-health, it would be an unheard of cruelty to beat the rappel loudly or harshly; on the other hand, it is unreasonable to believe that a man of his power and patriotism can ever be totally obscured except by the remorseless Shadow which one day extinguishes all, whether greater or lesser lights. This, however, is certain: If Mr. Dalley had any enemies, they would not hesitate to join in the prayers of his friends for his early restoration to health, and for the revival of that intense and patriotic interest in public affairs which will always be inseparable from his name. When some of our politicians are temporarily, or even permanently, removed from public life, one feels that they have been restored to their native and natural obscurity; but the withdrawal of others is like the obscuration of a star.

Those who, like Dr. Johnson, prefer biography to history, wiill naturally pay more attention to the anniversaries of men than to the anniversaries of events. Sometimes, it is true, the birth of a man becomes in time the anniversary of an event; but this happens only, I think, in the history of religions. Many anniversaries of events once celebrated as dies fasti in religion or politics are fast fading from our memories. Guy Fawkes Day, Armada Day, the 30th of January, Restoration Day, and even Waterloo Day, are examples. Perhaps when centennially, or tercentennially, or even millennially celebrated, they may revive in us old memories now enfeebled by meaningless repetition, or half effaced by the corrosive acid of this 19th Century. But during the lives of men who are recognised as the "Worthies" of their time, nothing, I think, is a pleasanter human cult than the celebration of their birthdays. We have few such worthies as yet in this colony. But Sir Alfred Stephen may stand for one. On the 20th of this month Sir Alfred entered on his 87th year, and the fact was not publicly forgotten, for many besides his immediate kinsfolk tendered on that day such tokens of respect, affection, and admiration as to them seemed due and appropriate. If men generally outlive their faculties after successfully passing that three score years and ten limit, they almost always outlive their unpopularity, sometimes for the simple reason that they have survived their enemies, but occasionally because they have also survived themselves. But Sir Alfred Stephen is not by any means a man who has survived himself, for in all essential attributes he remains unchanged. Last year, on the occasion of his 85th birthday, I compared him to the Chevalier Bonstetten, who lived long and happily enough to be able to say of himself in reference to his sexa- and septua- genarian periods—"Quand j'étais vieux." He had passed the mere old-age period of life, had survived his senility, and had become the "vieillard rajeuni," having embraced, like Sir Alfred, that "old-age serene and bright and lovely as a Lapland night" of which Wordsworth sang, and which he was also permitted to enjoy. Surely the old age of man is, or ought to be, as (correlatively) beautiful and engaging as his childhood. Yet the hardest test of nobility of character is the test of old age. The serenity of Goethe's old age may be denied to most of us; but the charm and the glory of it can be appreciated by all.

Not many men have left autobiographies such as we care to read more than, or even as much as, once. I suppose that the number of really good autobiographies in the world is below a score. The fact is very few men, however important the parts they have had to play, are capable of telling the story of their lives with perfect simplicity and truthfulness. It is so hard for a man with an important life to write about, not to be affected, prolix, deceitful, or egoistic. I wonder whether it would be thought an impertinence on my part to say that if Sir Alfred Stephen would become autobiographical it would be to the great delight of the people of to-day and the instruction of those that are to follow. His memory is still graphic and vivid, and there must be many "artists' proof" impressions treasured up in it which one would not willingly let disappear. During the past few years I have been much struck by fugitive memorials of old times occasionally contributed to the newspapers by Mr. Suttor, Mr. Obed West, and other gentlemen whose memories were the depositories of historic or interesting events, places, and people. But a volume of memoirs by Sir Alfred Stephen would be more than interesting. It would clothe with life much that is now either a skeleton or a shadow, and it would tell us the truth about many things concerning which there is much ignorance, untruth, or uncertainty.

* * * * *

I dare say the jury may have done their duty when they declared by their verdict for the defendant in Haynes v. Fletcher that the amount of injury, legally valued, which had been sustained by the plaintiff was no more than a £5 note could cover—that being also the sum at which the defendant himself assessed the injury when he paid money into court. But that verdict has about it, as it seems to me, some very serious aspects. Unless the jurors took an extremely low view of the plaintiff's political character, they could hardly have considered £5 as the exact compensation for the mere corporal insult and humiliation inflicted by Mr. Fletcher; for it is absurd to say that the provocation on the part of the plaintiff was such as to make a member of our Legislative Assembly so beside himself with fury as to be irresponsible for his actions. A thousand times have more biting words been hurled across the table of that Chamber, and failed to provoke any breach of the peace. As between ordinary persons outside the legislative precincts, that provocation might have been differently appraised; but the jury had to do with intramural Parliamentary provocation, which is, it appears, quite a different matter. As the Judge left the case to them, it was clearly the duty of the jury to put a pecuniary value on the assault just as if it had happened in George-street Market, or in some slummy pot-house. They took the "slummy pot-house" view of Parliament. How could they have done otherwise? Now mark the absurdity. If the action had been one of defamation, the plaintiff asking for damages for one of those hideous lies which the Parliament man is sometimes not ashamed to put into circulation from his place in Parliament, the same Judge would have been obliged to tell the jury that Parliament was a place quite different from the George-street Market or the slummy pot-house; that it was a sacred and a privileged place where any wretch that had a seat might revile his fellow-men with complete impunity, no matter how demonstrable the lie, or how malicious and damnable the accusation. But if you gouge a Parliament man's eye, or "wipe the floor" with his body, in either Chamber, there is no sanctity either for place or person. In the eye of the law the act is as though it had been done in the slummy pot-house. Or should you prefer the recreation of destroying a man's character for ever by some malignant and outrageous falsehood, uttered in your place in Parliament, then that place becomes a sanctuary, and the lie, the malignity, and the outrage are all privileged. Another proof, my friends, that "Law" is the perfection of human reason!

DEPUTATIONS.

GLEN INNES TO INVERELL RAILWAY.

A deputation representing the residents of Armidale and surrounding districts waited upon the Colonial Secretary yesterday, to urge upon the Government the re-consideration of the scheme of the proposed railway from Glen Innes to Inverell. The deputation was introduced by the Minister for Public Instruction, in his capacity as senior member for New England, and there were also present—Mr. Henry Copeland, M.L.A., Messrs. Hugh Wyndham (Bukkulla), W. Litchfield (Tingha), E. Everett (Ollera), W. Relton (Wandsworth), William Moore (Guyra), W. Stevenson (Guyra), H. B. Solomons (Armidale), W. Proctor (Armidale), W. Drew (Armidale), John Moore (Armidale), W. Butler (Mayor of Armidale), J. T. Rampling (Armidale), Alderman John Trim (Armidale).

The Hon. JAMES INGLIS, in introducing the deputation, said that his opinions as regards railway communication to Inverell were well-known. He had always advocated communication somewhere on the Great Northern line, without specifying any point, to some part that would obviate the necessity for excessive haulage or a circuitous route, and one which would give the greatest benefit to the greatest number of people. It would not be becoming in him as a member of the Cabinet to give any further expression of opinion, but he would leave the deputation to speak for themselves.

The members of the deputation urged the Government to adhere to the original proposal to connect Inverell with some point between Kentucky and Guyra, but not further north than the last-mentioned place, so as to avoid the terrible grades and long detour which would be entailed upon producers by crossing the high range to Glen Innes. The line they proposed would be available for pastoral and agricultural produce, and would specially tend to develop the mineral interests. They quoted statistics to show the present yield and stability of the tin mines which would be benefited by the route they proposed, and in proof of the importance as commercial and producing centres of the principal towns near which the line would pass. This line, they contended would be a national work, and would be a great saving to the public revenue of the country. Within short radius they had nine Public schools, and they could grow from 30 to 40 bushels of wheat, and from 10 to 15 tons of potatoes, to the acre. The timber interest would also be a source of great revenue to this line. The line from Inverell to Glen Innes, and thence to Grafton, they considered would be a great waste of public money, and would benefit only a few persons.

Mr. COPELAND said that if the line were to be constructed merely to Inverell and no further, and the people chose for all time to come to pay for an additional 34 miles of haulage on their passenger rates, the public might have no reason to complain; but when it came to be considered that in working this line, assuming that there was only one passenger train each way per day, and one goods train each way on three days a week, it would be found that every week the train was running by way of Glen Innes instead of Guyra, the department would have to cover a distance of 612 miles of extra haulage per week. This would make 34,824 miles of additional haulage in bringing passengers and goods from Inverell to Newcastle or Sydney. The working expenses per train mile for 1886 was 55d. per mile. Therefore if the Government were to adopt the line by Glen Innes to Inverell, they would be imposing upon the country an additional working expense of £7293 in other words, the average rate per mile would necessitate that expenditure upon the railways simply to bring the people of Inverell 34 miles out of their way. It must be admitted that the people of Queensland were giving strong evidence of following in the footsteps of some of the other colonies, and imposing protective duties. What position would the Inverell people be placed in if the Queensland Government were to put a heavy import rate upon the agricultural produce of New South Wales? Farmers would find that they would have to pay for 34 miles of additional haulage to bring their goods to Newcastle, because they were unable to avail themselves of the Queensland market. He explained with reference to the fact that the late Government, of which he was a member, had supported the Glen Innes-Inverell railway scheme; that he (Mr. Copeland) was personally opposed to it, but, as they were doubtless aware, it sometimes happened that one member of a Cabinet could not have his own way against the majority of the members. He had refused to vote for that line, although the Government of which he was a member agreed to the proposition.

Sir HENRY PARKES, in reply, said he had listened with much attention, and equal interest, to the statements made by the different members of the deputation. So far as the Government were concerned—whether the present Government or any other—they were, or ought to be, the most impartial judges of railway construction, because as a rule they could have no such interest as a resident on a line, or projected line, must necessarily have. Their object was, or ought to be—and generally he believed it was—to do what was best for the general public. At all events, he (the Premier) could say that they were extremely anxious not to play into the hands of any person who wished merely to benefit his property by the construction of a railway, or to serve any other sinister purpose; but were desirous to give to the important town of Inverell the advantages of railway communication, which at the same time would be fairly economical, certainly as economical, to say the least, as any other route, and at the same time to serve the largest number of persons and to contribute to the development of the largest area of country. These, he thought, ought to be the objects of railway construction. The deputation were aware what the Government had already proposed. It would be their duty, and he trusted the Government would be alive to it, to consider the various statements made by different deputations, and by different persons interested in the different routes; but their duty would have to be discharged not only in the light of the convenience of the people of New England, but in the light of what was their obligation to the country in the expenditure of public money; and they should try to carry out what they really believed to be the most advantageous to the largest number of persons resident in the northern part of the country. He was sure the deputation would not expect him to say anything absolutely definite; but if he might trust the good opinion expressed of him by some of those present, the deputation would feel pretty well assured that the Government would not only pay attention to the arguments put before them, but would act on one rule only, and that was to commit the country to a large expenditure only in the interests of the largest number of persons.

The only successful farming in Ireland (says St. James's Gazette) appears to be dog-farming, as a return issued under the Dogs Regulation (Ireland) Act, 1865, shows that there are 356,670 registered dogs in the kingdom of Parnell—25,610 in the towns and 333,060 in the counties. The license duty received last year was £35,667. It is believed that Mr. Biggar will bring forward a motion to extend the franchise to the animals which contribute so large a sum to the Exchequer, as he would like to see the number of illiterates increased. At last election it stood—voters, 194,994; illiterates, 36,722.

THE GROWTH OF THE PAPACY.

The Rev. Canon Kemmis delivered, at St. James's Parish Hall, Phillip-street, last evening, a lecture on "The Growth of the Papacy." The chair was occupied by the Rev. C. F. Garnsey. Amongst the other gentlemen present were the Revs. H. L. Jackson, A. R. Bartlett, Thomas Horton, and C. Frith.

Canon KEMMIS said that the history of the Anglo-Saxon Church as such ceased and determined with Archbishop Theodore. It merged into the great Roman Communion—represented and embodied by the Bishop of Rome. Such an absorption, however, was no detriment either to vitality or identity with past independence or the truthfulness of the English Church, because at that period there were no doctrines peculiar to Rome as over and above those of the Catholic faith. He next dealt with the corruption which grew up subsequently, and observed that the Church was no more exempt from corruption and loss of original essence and spirit than any other institution. It was so with the Jewish Church. It had been so with the Christian. The Church had declined in the purity of her doctrine, in the high tone of her spirituality, and in the character of her government. Now at first, strange to say, the claim of universal headship came, not from Rome, but from Constantinople; and, still more strange to record, the great opposition thereto, on the highest Catholic grounds, came originally from Rome. But the history of the world soon after this event, towards the close of the sixth century, made a great change. Three of the Eastern Patriarchates fell under the inroads of the Mahommedan power, and Christianity was well nigh lost. Then it was that Rome, in her turn, reassumed the superiority of her position, and becoming intermingled with the rising political powers, was eventually the ruling patriarchate of the West. As she received from those powers, on one side, political aggrandisement, she imparted to them, on the other, the sanction of religion. Century after century she advanced with more and more strength in her claim to that very universal dominion which in the person of Gregory the Great she had so forcibly denounced and repudiated. Then, in turn, rose up the Eastern Patriarchs, rejecting the attempts and pretensions of Rome, even as before the bishops of Rome had rejected theirs. Originally the Roman bishop ranked among his brethren without any superiority of jurisdiction being either claimed or acknowledged. Primacy in order was ever cheerfully conceded, but this did not involve supremacy. In the eighth century the kingdoms of the world underwent a most important revolution. Pepin, enjoying the power, but not the title of royalty, had rebelled against his master, the lawful king of the Franks. The last descendant of Clovis survived in the feeble Childeric. The interest of the Pope and his own imminent danger caused him to espouse the side of Pepin, who undertook to defend the church against the Lombards. He drove them out of the cities which they had conquered in the north of Italy; but instead of restoring the regained territories to their lawful emperor in the east, he invested the Bishop of Rome with the sovereignty of the city and some adjacent territory. In that action was laid the foundation of the temporal power of the Papacy. The Patriarchate of Rome derived its great extension of spiritual power from its mixture with, dependence on, and assumption of the kingdoms of the world. Reference was next made to the expansion of the Papal power. The whole essence of the power demanded by the Pope might be summed up in the words of Pope Innocent III., "The Pope is the Vicar of Jesus Christ—the Successor of Peter—the Anointed of the Lord—the God of Pharaoh; short of God, but beyond man; less than God, but greater than man; who judges all men, but is judged by no man." The doctrine of the Papal supremacy, although still held by the great majority of the Roman Catholic world, had been contested, denied, and subverted over and over again. The anomaly of whole countries submitting their faith and churches to a foreign jurisdiction was due partly to the junction of the spiritual power of the priesthood with the temporal power of royalty, and partly to the connection of the feudal system with the doctrines of religion, by which the idea of sovereignty in one bishop was put forward with the subjection of others, in the same relation as feudal princes to the suzerain. It was during the 12th and 13th centuries that the Roman supremacy achieved its greatest height. While the historical fact of the claim made and so long maintained was the proof of the fallibility of the Roman system, the fact of its departure and final cessation in the history of nations was the proof of its falsehood.

At the close of the address a vote of thanks was accorded to the lecturer.

LIFE OF THE REV. WILLIAM HASLEM.

Yesterday evening the Rev. E. D. Madgwick delivered a lecture in St. Simon and St. Jude's Church, Campbell-street, in connection with the Surry Hills Branch of the Church of England Association. The subject chosen for the lecture was "How a High Churchman became a Low Churchman," being an account of the life of the Rev. William Haslem. Although the admission to the lecture was free, the attendance was only of a limited character. The lecturer, who was listened to throughout with the greatest attention, commenced by pointing out the trials which the Church of England had had to pass through during the last 30 or 40 years in seeing important personages pass from that Church to the Roman Catholic Church, and he then proceeded to show how it was possible for a high churchman to become a low churchman, and, as an illustration of this, he instanced the conversion of the Rev. W. Haslem, whose life he traced, showing how, although originally of strong ritualistic proclivities, Mr. Haslem had gradually become a low churchman, one of the most useful servants of God, and had been instrumental in turning a large number of people from darkness to light. The conversion of Mr. Haslem, the lecturer stated, commenced about the time of the issue of the Oxford Tracts, in 1841 and 1842, and was brought about by a remarkable set of circumstances commencing with the death of his fiancée and a serious illness. Mr. Haslem's experiences in an out-of-the-way Cornish parish were narrated in an interesting manner, and his work amongst the rough but earnest Cornish people dwelt upon at some length. The proceeding terminated with a vote of thanks to the lecturer.

THE DRINK TRAFFIC.

At St. Columbkille's School Church, Woolloomooloo, last night a large number of persons assembled for the purpose of hearing the Very Rev. G. Kavanagh, O.P., deliver a lecture on "The Drink Traffic." Mr. Heurigan occupied the chair. The lecturer described in graphic language the great proportions to which the drink traffic in the United Kingdom had attained, no less than £136,000,000 being spent on beer, wine, and spirits last year. This was all wasted, for these liquors did not in reality sustain life; in fact, they actually caused heart disease in the great majority of those who were only moderate drinkers. In this colony last year, of all the inquests that were held, 195 of the deaths were ascribed to intemperance, and this represented only a fraction of the real number. The temperance party were accused of having no plan, but he told them that they had a plan, which to all sensible minds would commend itself. It was this: Let inspectors be appointed to look after the publichouses, see that no adulterated liquor was sold in them, and also that they were kept orderly, clean, and respectable." Then again the hotels should be divided into three classes, viz., the large, the not permitting board and residence. Then again there was medium, and the small; in the last let only liquor be sld, local option which the people had a right to demand. Was not Parliament pledged to local option, and still members did not move in the matter. In conclusion, he would ask them all to become total abstainers, as it was only by this means that they could enjoy good health and remove the plague spots (the public-houses) from their midst. The lecturer, who was frequently applauded throughout, was accorded a hearty vote of thanks for his able and instructive lecture. A vote of thanks to the chairman was also carried.

AUSTRALIAN POETS.

A lecture upon "Australian Poets" was delivered in the Assembly Hall, Summer Hill, last night, by the Rev. W. G. L. Closs. The proceeds of the lecture are to be devoted to the building fund of the Summer Hill Congregational Church. The chair was occupied by Mr. Hutchison, M.L.A. The church choir having sung "Advance Australia Fair," the chairman invited the lecturer to address the audience. Mr. Closs regretted the lack of interest taken in poetry by the Australian people generally. The poetry from the pen of Australian writers was written by men who, for the most part, received their education only by their intercourse with their fellow men in labour. The poetry of the Australians gave evidence of deep thought, while a continual thread of sadness and of hopes never realised pervaded it. It was still, however, poetry of humanity and reality. It was earnest and stirring to life, and lacked the imaginations of other writers. The Australian youth were nobly urged to upright living, honesty, and integrity in the poetic lines written under the Southern Cross. The productions of Kendall, Walsh, Kelly, Bracken, Harper, Halloran, Sladen, Lindsay Gordon, and others were eulogised. The lecturer eloquently praised the works of Mr. Parkes, now Sir Henry, and Kendall. Of the writings of the former, he said, the people little knew their value; these were written in the midst of continual political strife. The poetry was not deep, but its interest, lasting power, and noble sentiments would live and endure long after the other works of the writer had died in oblivion. Tribute was also paid to the works and character of Henry Kendall. At the close Mr. Closs, who was frequently applauded, was accorded a hearty vote of thanks.

The American who manufactured artificial eggs, says a London paper, was hardly less ingenious than the man who is reported to have invented a process for the manufacture of spurious coffee beans. People who wish to obtain the pure article ask for coffee beans and get them ground either by the grocer or at home. But this will not be an absolute protection in future against adulteration, for the inventor presses a mixture of chicory and coffee into the shape of the berry, and that is palmed off on the unsuspecting public. The English palate is so vitiated by mixtures that the deception may be easily practised—but the story must be taken with all reserve.

COCOA DRINKERS are cautioned against those cocoas called pure, but which contain about 4 per cent of added alkali, &c. As an absolutely pure, guaranteed, and delicious strength-sustaining beverage, Cadbury's Cocoa stands unrivalled.—[ADVT.]

MEETINGS.

ANTI-CHINESE LEAGUE.

A public meeting of the Newtown Branch of the Anti-Chinese League was held at the Town Hall Hotel, Newtown, last night, for the purpose of supporting the objects of the league. A very meagre assemblage of the public was addressed from the balcony of the hotel. Mr. G. F. Garton read the advertisement calling the meeting, the manifesto issued by the league, and then called upon Mr. C. E. Coles to take the chair. Mr. N. Hawken, M.L.A., moved the following resolution:—"That this meeting is of opinion that the Government should take the necessary steps to ensure that the bill already passed shall be forthwith brought into operation, and that the attention of the Administration be called to their promise to introduce legislation with a view to regulating the habits and conditions of the Chinese now here; and that they be requested to make such legislation a feature of the coming session." Mr. G. N. Sparkes, Mayor of Camperdown, seconded the resolution, which, on being put to the meeting, was declared carried. Mr. E. W. O'Sullivan, M.L.A., moved the second resolution,—"That, in the opinion of this meeting, the Government should extend the provisions of the Chinese Restriction Act so as to affect Chinese coming to the colony from any part of the British dominions, as it is useless to pass a restricting law which leaves the colony liable to the danger of an influx of Chinese from Hongkong, Singapore, and the Strait Settlements." He said that the 15th clause of the Chinese Restriction Bill was to the effect that no penalties should be enforced on Chinese who were British-born subjects, and the speaker was of opinion that this clause would make the bill inoperative. Mr. Alfred Macauley seconded the resolution, and, on being put to the meeting, it was carried. A vote of thanks to the chairman brought the proceedings to a close.

SUSSEX-STREET MISSION CHURCH.

The annual public meeting in connection with the Sussex-street Mission Church was held in the Church, Sussex-street, yesterday evening. There was a large attendance. The chair was occupied by the Hon. G. A. Lloyd. There were also present the Revs. James Hill, M.A., Henry Macready, Samuel Savage, F. B. Boyce, and Mr. George Lewis (pastor of the Church). The building was tastefully decorated with leaves and bunting. The meeting was opened with devotional exercises, after which a brief address was made by the chairman. The annual report was then read by the hon. secretary, Mr. J. W. Spear. The report showed that the Sunday services and the services held on evenings during the week had been continued, and that there had been a steady increase in the attendance. Improvements in the way of seating accommodation had been made in the church. The Bible class and the Sunday school had been well attended, and a successful effort had been made to revive the tract society. The mothers' meetings had been successfully carried on under the supervision of Mrs. H. C. Russell. The open-air work had been continued, and good results had been achieved. Fortnightly services had been held by the pastor at the Coast Hospital, Little Bay. The library, the penny bank, and other agencies in connection with the mission had also been successfully carried on. The treasurer's statement, which was also read, showed a credit balance of £50 13s. 2d. It was found, however, that the operations of many of the branches of the work had been cramped owing to an insufficiency of funds. The report was adopted on the motion of the Rev. James Hill, M.A., seconded by the Rev. Henry Macready, and supported by the Rev. F. B. Boyce, each of whom delivered an interesting address upon the mission work. An interesting address upon the work of the Mission Church was also delivered by the Rev. Samuel Savage. During the evening the pastor, Mr. George Lewis, was presented with a testimonial in the form of a written address, as a token of the esteem in which his services were held by the workers, the choir, and the congregation of the church. The address, which was beautifully framed, and which had been written by Mr. James Bruce and signed by several leading workers in the church, was presented by Mr. Hooper, and was acknowledged by Mr. Lewis in suitable terms. The proceedings, which were of an interesting character throughout, were interspersed with appropriate hymns and solos by the choir.

The weekly meeting of the Granville Wesleyan Mutual Improvement Society was held on Friday evening. Mr. A. E. Fletcher occupied the chair. The business of the evening should have been a debate "That Trades Unionism is Beneficial to the Community," but in the absence of Mr. James, premier, it could not be proceeded with, and impromptu speeches were resorted to. Among the questions given were—"Which is the greatest man New South Wales has produced?" "Is the action of the miners re Newcastle strike justifiable?" "What is true beauty?" "That protection should be the future policy of New South Wales?" and "Which has the greatest power for good or evil, man or woman?" These were discussed by Messrs. Moss, Curnow, Miles, Symonds, Playford, and others.

A social tea meeting was held in the Botany School of Arts on Monday evening, when farewell was said to Mr. Stuart Pottie, who left yesterday by the Garonne for Scotland, where he intends studying the veterinary art. Mr. Stuart Pottie has occupied the position of Chief Templar, Pride of Botany Lodge, for some time past, and has done good service to the cause in that locality. In the name and on behalf of the members, Mr. Staunton presented Mr. Pottie with four handsomely-bound volumes of Sangster's popular library, entitled "Storehouse of Knowledge," at the same time giving expression to very warm sentiments of esteem and affection. The choir then sang, "God be with you till we meet again." The chairman then called upon the large number of non-members present to unite with them in giving three hearty cheers for the departing brother. This was done with hearty good will, when one of the audience called for three more to be given on the same behalf. Mr. Stuart Pottie briefly responded, and expressed his gratitude for the kindness he had invariably received from all residents in Botany, and concluded with an earnest appeal to non-members to join the ranks of the Good Templars. The meeting concluded by the singing of "Auld Lang Syne," after which three members were initiated.

The annual meeting of the subscribers to the Parramatta District Liedertafel was held on Monday evening at the School of Arts, his Worship the Mayor (Mr. C. J. Byrnes) presiding. The Mayor complimented the members of the society on the success which had attended the first year of their existence, and trusted that the same spirit of earnestness and zeal would characterise their efforts during the following year. The election of officers took place, and resulted as follows:—Patrons, the Ven. Archdeacon Günther and Mr. H. Taylor, M.P.; president, Mr. C. J. Byrnes; vice-presidents, Messrs. W. Bodenham, W. G. Bladon, and J. W. E. Bailie; conductor, Mr. A. Massey; committee, Messrs. J. H. Spier, H. Moore, C. Cowper, S. Goodin, W. Davies, and J. Tetley; hon. treasurer, Mr. J. J. Brenan; librarian, Mr. H. R. Sainty; hon. secretary, Mr. E. J. Brown. Several of the rules, which were found hardly practicable last year, were amended.

The committee of the Local Option League met yesterday. Mr. William Henson, M.L.A., took the chair. It was determined to send a congratulatory letter to the Victorian Alliance, which will hold its annual local option meeting in Melbourne next Thursday. A report was received from the lecturer at present on a tour through the Southern towns, stating that many influential persons attended the meetings and also joined the League. Steps are about to be taken to combine the temperance party, and formulate a plan to place before them the immediate necessity of agitating for a reform in the licensing laws, so that local option similar to the Local Veto Bill, which Mr. Alexander Hutchison, M.L.A., placed before the House last session, may be given to the people. Attention was drawn to the outcry in England against the compensation clauses of the Local Government Bill.

THE RECENT SENTENCE TO DEATH.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—There are in all countries a numerous class of people who without a moment's hesitation raise a wail and agonising cry throughout the land when some hardened scoundrel, for the committal of some bloodthirsty act, is sentenced to suffer the extreme penalty of the law. And generally at such a time, guided by some blind impulse, their sympathies are greatest for the wretched criminal when the crime is the result of some more than ordinarily devilish and deep-laid plan. Now, it may appear passing strange that any person penning the above would come forth and ask you, together with the public to do your best to prevent the death sentence being carried into effect on the man Robert Hewitt, at present lying in Darlinghurst Gaol awaiting execution; but I think—and I venture to assert—that the twelve gentlemen who in this case composed the jury, and whose verdict was accompanied with a strong recommendation to mercy, will agree with me in saying that the ends of justice will not be defeated should the death sentence not be carried into effect, more especially when we calmly consider the state of the victim, and also, that of his assailant, both being stupidly intoxicated; and, moreover, the carelessness of the police should not be lost sight of in hustling both men into one cell without so much as taking the precaution of searching either of them, and through this neglect leaving the weapon, a knife, with which the deed was perpetrated, in the possession of the man Hewitt. Next, the absence of any motive. It could not have been premeditated, for that was their first meeting. Nor could gain be the object. The only logical solution, therefore, is that the murderer is a lunatic, and on the night of the perpetration of the deed that disease was aggravated by that curse of mankind, drink. I do not wish to infer that drink is an excuse for the committal of any crime; but in an insane person it is, for he knows not what he does. And, moreover, far be it from me to vindicate this act of bloodshed; but I, in common with many more, am of opinion that, taking all the circumstances into consideration, this case is one with which mercy should season justice.

In conclusion, I cherish the hope that not a few intelligent men, and amongst such the jury, will, while there is yet time, come forward and use their best endeavours to get the death sentence annulled and a more merciful one substituted, viz., that the prisoner be detained during her Majesty's pleasure in some lunatic asylum.

I am, &c. MERCY.

The Australian Mining Exchange Company report having made the following sales by auction to-day:—250 Centennial Land at 5s. 6d.; 50 Excelsior Land, 56s.; 200 Intercolonial Land at 5s. 10½d.; 100 Land Company of Australia, 46s. 6d.; N. S. W. P. I., paid to £11, at 9¼; 50 Sydney and Provincial Land at 82s. 6d.

The 72nd half-yearly meeting of the Hunter River New Steam Navigation Company was held at Morpeth to-day. The report showed that the available balance at credit of profit and loss account, including balance from previous half-year, amounted to £5012, which the directors recommended to be appropriated as follows:—Insurance account, £1000; new boilers account, £1000; to dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, £2750; leaving at credit of profit and loss £262. The report was adopted. The retiring directors—Messrs. J. E. Wolfe and S. Clift—and the retiring auditors—Messrs. R. Cracknell and J. D. Prentice—were re-elected. Mr. J. E. Wolfe was elected chairman of the board for the ensuing 12 months.

In our special advertisement columns appear the resolutions passed at a meeting of R. Goldsbrough and Co., sanctioning the amalgamation of the company with Mort and Co., of Sydney, under the name of Goldsbrough, Mort, and Co., Limited, and authorising the creation of 300,000 new shares of £10 each, to be issued at such times and places and on such terms as the directors may deem expedient. In referring to the resolutions passed, Mr. Horsfall said that part of the payment to Mort and Co., Limited, will be 50,000 shares of the new issue. When all the shares are issued the subscribed capital of the new company will stand at £6,000,000. He stated that the business of Mort and Co. had been acquired on advantageous terms; that the new firm had secured altogether about 560ft. of frontage at Darling Harbour, with the capacity to double their present warehouse accommodation there, and would thus be able to dispense, at a saving of £10,000 per annum, with the warehouse at Circular Quay. Mr. Horsfall said he regarded the city warehouses of Mort and Co., since the announcement of the intention of the Government to carry the railway to the Circular Quay, as worth the entire amount at which R. Goldsbrough and Co. had agreed to take the business over.

In the Import markets there is very little doing. The flour market has still an upward tendency, other brands having been put up to the maximum quotation of £11, but so far no brand has been raised beyond that figure. Advances of 25 per cent. on the freights from Adelaide and Melbourne have been announced, with every prospect of still higher charges should the strike continue. In tea, we hear of the quittance of some 50 to 70 package lines of low to common teas at from 8½d. to 1s. 3d. per lb. Shipments of low teas by vessels looked for towards the end of this or beginning of next week will replenish the rather bare stocks of these qualities. Sugars are well held, with an upward tendency. At auction a few hundred packages were quitted; low whites at £22 10s., and rations from £16 10s. to £18. In Manila we observe the market is strengthening, the planters being well engaged ahead, and not inclined to settle to any extent at quotations, which Messrs. Warner, Blodgett, and Co. give as £11 2s. 9d. f.o.b. for Manila extra sugar, and £8 16s. 10d. for superior. Trade sales of currants, good fruit, are making at 5d.; raisins dull of sale at late quotations. The demand for fish of every description is small. Sardines, 3s. 3d. to 3s. 7½d. for quarters, and 6s. 3d. to 6s. 6d. for halves, are current rates. Respecting the London market, on July 20 Messrs. De Lissa, Crowe, and Co. write:—"Sardines: Last month we reported good fishing on the French coast, and a fortnight ago this suddenly ceased; the fish deserted the coast, and have not appeared since. In consequence, prices on the spot became firmer, and some good orders have been placed for the colonies in anticipation of a further rise. There is no doubt that present low prices do not pay the packers, and will only continue so long as the keen competition between France and Portugal lasts, and there are symptoms that the packers of Portuguese goods will have to discontinue selling at the late extremely low rates. We quote quarters, 8 to 12 fish, from 2s. 5d. to 2s. 9d.; halves, 12 to 16 fish, from 4s. 4d. to 4s. 10d." Locally there is but little doing in salt. The market, however, is firm at 75s. to 77s. 6d. for Liverpool and Black Horse coarse respectively. In illuminants it cannot be said that there is yet any very marked demand, in consequence of the strike. Stocks of candles are unusually large, and with their disuse in the mines there will be all the more available as a substitute for gas should the supp'y run short. Although kerosene is not excessively supplied, still there are moderate stocks, and large shipments coming forward. Therefore the colony is fairly well off in respect of the principal illuminants that would have to take the place of gas. It cannot be said that there has been the same marked upward movement in prices noticed in Melbourne. Further from the source of coal supply, and not having so readily available other sources of supply so close to the west and south of Sydney, Melbourne importers apparently exhibit more concern on the subject of illuminants than is shown here. Nevertheless, as we learn from the Melbourne Telegraph, there were large supplies of illuminants in Melbourne. Of kerosene, there were in bond on Saturday last 106,933 cases, each containing eight gallons, as compared with 26,141 cases at the same date last year. In addition to the bonded stocks, about 20,000 cases were being discharged from ships; some 30,000 cases were afloat, and should be close at hand; and there are besides 24,700 cases due in about six weeks, so that in all there are unusually heavy stocks. Kerosene, besides being employed as an illuminant, has of late been much in favour for cooking purposes, many improvements having been introduced in oil stoves. Of candles, there were in bond on the 18th 187 chests and 6067 boxes; but there is besides a large quantity here duty paid, and, moreover, the local manufacturers supply a very considerable portion of the demand. Notwithstanding these large stocks, prices of both kerosene and candles were hardening. Locally, at auction, 175 boxes Apollo candles, with all faults, were sold at 5d.; 100 boxes Eclipse paraffin, all faults, 5½d. Among other auction business at the grocery sale, 110 boxes are reported as sold at 6½d. per lb., 300 tins mixed confectionery at 5½d. per lb. Brewers' goods are dull of sale at late rates. In liquids, we note sales of Gaelic and Glen Kinchie whisky at agents' prices; an auction line of 165 cases sold at 9s. 6d. in bond. Geneva is still selling at from 10s. 9d. to 11s., though cable news has been received of an advance in the European market. Jamaica rum sold at 11s. 6d. per case in bond. Business noticed in M'Ewan's bottled and bu k ale at agents' prices; 50 casks Sacell's quart ale at 4s., and 20 casks quart stout, with all faults, at 5s. 3d., sold publicly. Red Baltic deals were sold at last week's auction rates. A parcel of Anchor brand cement was quitted to-day at 17s. 6d.

Messrs. Fraser and Co. advertise for sale to-morrow (Wednesday) morning, groceries, flour, &c.; and at 3 o'clock, Baltic timber and other lumber.

The following reports of to-day's auction wool sales have been supplied:—

Hill, Clark, and Co.—We held our usual fortnightly wool sale to-day, and submitted a catalogue of 44 bales, the whole of which were quitted at full rates. The chief brands sold were:—AP over B, 15 bales scoured combing at 13½d., 4 2nd combing at 10d., 3rds at 7½d., 1st clothing at 13d., crossbred at 12d.; E and FC, 4 pieces at 10½d.; Euiolo skin wool at 12d. A catalogue of station sheepskins was cleared at up to 4¾d. for fair growth; short, from 2½d. per lb.

J. H. Geddes and Co.—We held our usual fortnightly sale to-day at which we offered 170 bales of scoured and greasy wools to a good attendance of buyers and cleared about 90 bales at satisfactory prices. Our principal lots sold were—W, one small parcel of washed fleece at 14½d.; Glen, 20 bales of medium scoured skin, of fair length and rather heavy condition, at from 7½d. to 12½d.; HC over N, 28 bales of medium scoured skin wool from the Western district, first quality at 13d, second at 10½d.; JMCo., 13 bales at 7½d. to 12½d.; also 70 bales of S in diamond, a good parcel of fair scoured skin wool from the Northern district, of which we sold 22 bales second quality at 11½d., failing to reach owners' reserves for other qualities. Several other oddments of scoured and greasy wool were sold at from 3½d. to 10d.

John Bridge.—I brought forward a catalogue of scoured and greasy oddments chiefly for my wool sale to-day, selling the bulk under spirited competition from a full attendance of buyers at prices lately ruling—Scoured, 9½d. to 14½d.; greasy, 4½d. to 7½d.; lambs, to 7½d. I also offered a catalogue of dry and green skins; market ruling very firm, demand both for shipping and fellmongery, account being very strong. I quote:—Best full wools, 4½d. to 5½d.; mediums, 3½d. to 4½d.; short growths, 3d. to 3½d.; pelts, to 2½d.; greenskins, tops, 46d. to 58d.; extra large, to 64d.; mediums, 34d. to 44d.; short growths, 28d. to 33d.; pelts, 14d. to 26d.

The Orient Company's R.M.S. Garonne left to-day for London with the following cargo:—1112 bales wool, 154 bales sheepskins, 68 bales fur skins, 28 bales basils, 4423 carcases mutton, 2683 cases meats, 159 cases gum, 100 sacks peas, 39 bags wheat, 245 casks tallow, 4858 ingots (162 tons 1cwt.) tin, 7556 ingots (162 tons 1cwt.) copper, and 84 packages sundries.

The following was the Customs revenue received to-day:—

Spirits, £1901 11s. 6d.; wine (still), £41 6s. 7d.; wine (sparkling), £81 5s.; ale, porter, and beer (in wood), £20; ale, porter, and beer (in bottles), £117 7s. 6d.; tobacco and snuff, £265 16s.; cigars, £168 1s. 9d.; cigarettes, £49 4s. 5d.; tea, £324 0s. 6d.; sugar (refined), £1; sugar (unrefined), £248 2s. 7d.; sugar (molasses), £14 5s. 9d.; opium, £48 2s. 6d.; rice, £59 11s. 3d.; dried fruits, £1687 12s. 4d. Specific Duty: Bacon and hams, £10 14s. 6d.; bitters under 25 per cent. of proof spirit, £12; bitters over 25 per cent of proof spirit, £9 8s. 2d., butter, £37 6s. 4d.; candles, £106 15s. 3d.; cement, £174; cheese, £2 12s. 6d.; cocoa and chocolate, £9 6s. 8d.; confectionery, £27 17s. 2d.; corn flour, £2 16s.; dynamite, £1 5s.; essences over 25 per cent. of proof spirit, £6 6s.; fish, £114 8s. 10d.; gasoline, £2; galvanised iron, £682 9s. 9d.; galvanised manufactures, £164 14s. 3d.; iron and steel wire, £186 3s. 5d.; jams and jellies, £111 11s. 4d.; milk, £44 4s.; naphtha, £2 10s; oil, kerosene, £169 12s.; oils, in bottle, £26 5s. 6d.; oils, other, £429 14s.; paints, £117 1s. 2d.; powder, sporting, £18; powder, blasting, £41 13s. 4d.; preserves, £113 18s. 2d.; salt, £106 11s. 10d.; spirits, methylated, £77 12s.; semolina, £18 13s. 4d.; timber, dressed, £82 10s. 1d.; timber, undressed, £11 2s. 7d.; varnish, £182 2s. 7d. Harbour and light rates, £102 16s. 4d.; pilotage, Sydney, £138 17s.; harbour dues, £9; excise on tobacco, £563 11s. 3d.; excise on beer, £1158 15s. Total, £10,100 4s. 4d.

MARSUPIAL SKIN SALES.

Mr. John Bridge.—For my usual weekly sale of kangarooskins held to-day I brought forward a catalogue of 21,738 skins, to a full attendance of buyers, both speculators and on orders account. Demand was as brisk as ever, though values on small medium sizes were a trifle lower compared with late sales, which can be accounted for through a very large proportion of these being wallaroo skins, a coarser article than kangaroo. Large and extra large again commanded extreme rates. Several lines on my catalogue selling at 124d, 125d, 127d, 130d, 132d, 135d, 141d, 145d, to 160d, latter being highest price of the day. I quote from my catalogue:—Extra large, 118d to 160d; large, 69d to 104d; medium, 40d to 64d; small, 20d to 38d, extra small to 14d or 15d. Wallabyskins, large, 12d to 17d; medium, 6d to 10d; small, to 4½d. Opossumskin sales on Wednesday.—[Advt.]

MEETING OF SHAREHOLDERS.

R. GOLDSBROUGH and CO., Limited, Melbourne.

AMALGAMATION WITH MORT and CO., Limited.

An EXTRAORDINARY MEETING of the Shareholders of R. Goldsbrough and Co., Limited, was held at their Wool Warehouses in Melbourne on Monday, when the following resolutions were unanimously agreed to (Mr. J. S. Horsfall in the chair), viz.:—

1. That the capital of the Company be increased by the creation of 300,000 new Shares of £10 each.

2. That such Shares shall be issued at such times and at such places within Australasia, the United Kingdom, or elsewhere, and either at par or at a premium, and otherwise on such terms and conditions as the Directors may deem expedient.

3. That the name of the Company be changed to Goldsbrough, Mort, and Company, Limited.

The chairman in referring to the above resolutions spoke as follows —

Gentlemen,—In connection with this proposed new issue of shares, I have to announce to you that your Directors have completed the amalgamation of the business of Mort and Co., Limited, with that of our own, and that the whole will now be merged into one Company bearing the name of Goldsbrough, Mort, and Co., Limited. Part of the amount to be paid to Mort and Co., Limited, will be in shares of this Company in order to give them a large interest in it, and we have therefore arranged to allot 50,000 shares to them, which has rendered it necessary to increase our capital, and having in view the great future before this business, and the probable necessity to increase its capital from time to time, as our operations extend, we propose to take powers to issue 300,000 shares more, including the 50,000 shares to Mort and Co., Limited, which, when all are issued, would increase our subscribed capital to £6,000,000 sterling. We propose to allot a large proportion of future issues to English shareholders in order to strengthen our financial position in London.

The business of Mort and Co., Limited, has been acquired on advantageous terms, and the combination of the two concerns places us far ahead of all competitors in the Australian wool trade. The total sales of the two Companies last season in Melbourne and Sydney being 137,800 bales out of a total of 374,000 sold in Australia.

In addition to this the combined firms shipped about 30,000 bales, making a total of nearly 170,000 bales handled by them in one year, being more than one-sixth of the entire annual export of Australia.

The name of Mort is a household word throughout New South Wales, and the late Mr. Mort was the Goldsbrough of the Sydney wool trade. The magnificent warehouses owned by Mort and Co., Limited, at the Circular Quay, Sydney, are unrivalled in the city of Sydney for position and completeness; but as the site is now likely to become far too valuable to be used for storing wool, your Directors, in conjunction with Mort and Co., Limited, have secured at very small cost during the last few days, an additional 160ft. of frontage at Darling Harbour, adjoining our warehouses there. We have also 120ft. at Darling Harbour at the back of our warehouses, and we take over from Mort and Co., Limited, a further frontage of 280ft., of which 210ft. is freehold, and on which there is a large warehouse occupied by them for grain and station produce. We have thus a total of 560ft. of splendid frontage at Darling Harbour available for building, and we can consequently double or treble our present warehouse accommodation there, and thus be able to dispense with the warehouse at Circular Quay. This will, we estimate, be a saving of fully £10,000 a year in the working of the two places.

For the present season we shall carry on both concerns as at present, it being now too late to make any change for this year.

The Directors of Mort and Co. will hold large interests in the concern, and will take an active part in the management in conjunction with our present staff in Sydney.

The city properties which we acquire by this amalgamation are most valuable, and since we arranged the price and terms a great increase in value has been acquired through the determination of the New South Wales Government (only made a few days ago) to carry the railway to the Circular Quay. We believe we are justified in stating that the city properties are alone worth the entire amount at which we have agreed to take the business over.

The combination of the names of the two great founders of the Australian wool and produce sales is happily made in the name which we have agreed to adopt, viz., Goldsbrough Mort, and and Co., Limited, and the success of their efforts is already evidenced by the rapid and colossal growth of the business transacted in the colonies, the total sales made last season representing about £8,000,000 sterling in value. We believe that this trade is only in its infancy, and that before many years are over nearly the whole of the wool grown in Australia will be sold in the colonies.

So highly were the efforts of the late T. S. Mort appreciated in Sydney that a statue has been erected to his memory, in recognition of his great enterprise and public spirit. The late Richard Goldsbrough well deserved a similar tribute, but these magnificent warehouses will probably form his most fitting monument.

AUSTRALIAN GASLIGHT COMPANY.

COALMINERS' STRIKE.

The Directors of the Australian Gaslight Company beg to apprise the consumers of gas that the supply of gas coal on hand is limited, and they therefore warn all concerned of the necessity that now exists to economise the use of gas to the extent of one-half the usual consumption while the strike lasts.

By this means the Directors hope that the period during which gas can be supplied for all purposes may be considerably extended.

Although the Directors are using every exertion to procure further supplies of coal, they may nevertheless find it necessary in a few weeks to call upon private consumers to forego the use of gas altogether, so that the public lighting of the streets may be maintained until the strike ceases.

Some trouble is apprehended in connection with the combined employment of top men and pit hands at the Ferndale and Hetton collieries. It has been decided to call upon these men to cease work; but it is understood that they will not comply as the mines would soon be ruined if pumping operations ceased.

A petition is in circulation in Newcastle asking the Mayor to convene a public meeting to appoint a fresh negotiation committee, with the view of pressing upon the masters to open the sealed agreement.

Mr. Brunker, M.L.A., has come forward with a fresh proposition for the settlement of the dispute. He says that both parties ought now to be satisfied with the stand they have taken in having sufficiently vindicated their honour and dignity. They should now agree upon a date for making open proposals for an agreement, work in the pits to be resumed in the meantime.

In Sydney the masters remain inactive. There is still a good deal of discussion with regard to the rates paid. A pay-sheet shown yesterday proved that the average earnings of 39 men was £3 7s. 6d. each man per week.

Several meetings of miners were held in the Newcastle district yesterday, and the resolutions passed by the delegates in connection with the recent conference were unanimously adopted in every case. Matters went on quietly in the town, there being no disturbances.

A number of Victorian manufacturers state that unless supplies of coal, which are now rapidly diminishing, can be replenished within the next few days, it is possible that operations will have to be suspended.

The O. S. N. Company's Alameda left San Francisco on Saturday for Sydney. A return prepared by the company show that they spend in Sydney £385 per vessel per month.

Is the situation in which our coalmining enterprise now stands to be accepted as unalterable? Is the strike to be prolonged for weeks or months? A strike is a voluntary cessation of work. Is this cessation—a sudden thing in itself—to merge into a permanent abstinence? If so, parties concerned will do well to reflect with all seriousness upon what will be involved. The miners themselves have probably been calculating for some time past the resources at their own disposal, the assistance they will receive from other trades organisations, the support to be obtained through credit given by the shopkeepers, and their attitude has indicated a feeling of confidence. But is it certain that sanguine expectations will be fulfilled? The stoppage of supplies of a material that is essential to the maintenance of so many branches of commerce and trade may produce effects which may in these calculations have been overlooked. If the voluntary idleness of the miners should force compulsory idleness upon the seamen, the brickmakers, the building trades, the ironworkers—if it should send shopkeepers into the insolvent court, and shop hands to make a new gathering of unemployed, what then? These results, or some of them, are already beginning to show themselves. If the discontinuance of work should last long, they will all become apparent, and dismal prospects will be presented on all sides. But such will not be the conditions favourable to liberal and sustained trade support. Trade union funds are not inexhaustible in times of depression, and men in other trades, whose pay at the best of times is inferior to the miners' earnings, will not cheerfully submit to frequent levies in support of those who have thrown up a livelihood better than their own. As to the sympathy of the public, the miners, as we have before remarked, cannot trust to that. There will be enough of real distress amongst the poorly-paid labourers and the skilled artisans whom the miners by their voluntary action have cast adrift to absorb such assistance as the benevolent, though injured, public may be willing to provide. But the dislocation of interests will extend so far that many more than might be imagined in first glancing at the situation will feel compelled by pressure to look to themselves. The effects of a prolonged stoppage of this great industry—effects produced, not by its mere magnitude, but by its intimate connection with almost every department of civilised life—cannot be calculated. Some we can foresee; as, for instance, the privation and suffering already alluded to. Some we can only look forward to with apprehension. That advertisement by the Gas Company, pointing to a necessary check to private consumption as a means of providing against ultimate darkness in the streets, is not pleasant reading. In such a case precautions must be taken in time, as if the danger were inevitable. In other directions also efforts are being made apparently upon the assumption that the coal famine will be prolonged. New sources of supply are being brought into requisition. No one can justly complain of this, whatever the future results may be. Measures of self-defence must be taken where there is no assurance of a speedy return of peace.

But is there anything between the coal-owners and the miners sufficiently serious to warrant or to necessitate a continued standing apart? The public is in a great measure in ignorance as to the real grounds of dispute. There is a general idea that the miners, or a certain proportion of them, were dissatisfied with the terms and conditions under which they had been working; that, nevertheless, they had been better paid (making allowance for the character of their employment) than the members of many other trades; that they desired to set up a system for the determination of disputes to which the coal-owners objected on the ground that it had been tried and failed. It is also understood that negotiations for a settlement having been commenced, they were broken off midway by the declaration of the miners that unless a certain result were reached there should be a general strike. It is also known—too well—that the strike has taken place. But knowing so much, does the public know of any sufficient reason rendering it impossible for negotiations to be successfully renewed. Before the strike large numbers of miners were working in peace and contentment. Nearly nine hundred voted at the ballot against ceasing work. Numbers took part in the strike under a strange misapprehension of what the associated masters had proposed. The latter had formulated proposals of their own as a basis for negotiation, to be opened and fairly discussed as soon as the miners had agreed to meet them on even ground by the withdrawal of all threats. But many miners struck, in fact, lieving, in direct contravention, that these proposals were submitted under seal to be accepted in the dark. That singular mistake should by this time have been removed.

The efforts of the Conciliation Committee before the strike failed. The circumstances are materially altered now, and some of the obstacles to a settlement have been removed. A correspondent in Monday's Herald directed attention to the changed aspect of the situation, and to the possibilities that should now be in view. The Rev. Canon SELWYN, in a letter to a local journal, starts from a similar standpoint, and more elaborately explains how much under the new conditions might be done now that was suggested last week in vain. The change of situation may be thus described. The coal-owners and the miners were then holding to each other the relations of employers and employed. The employed were then seeking to obtain, by conference with their employers, a readjustment of terms, but, as we have seen, destroyed the possibility of a free conference by naming an ultimatum and publishing a threat. It is certain that a similar course taken on the other side would have led to a corresponding result. Had the masters said, "Accept our terms or we will lock you out," the miners would have said to a man, "The day for a conference has passed." But whilst the threat of striking brought negotiations necessarily to an end, the execution of the threat cleared the way and laid the ground upon which negotiations might begin again. The strike has severed the connection between the parties. They are no longer employers and employed. They have no special relations towards each other. The masters, presumably, want men to work their mines. The men, perhaps, want mines in which to work; or many of them will by-and-bye. Now what is there, if they be reasonable men, free from passion and prejudice, to prevent their coming together and agreeing upon equitable terms. If it is a question of caprice or pride, we have nothing to say. Otherwise, the parties are in a better position to negotiate than before. The masters submitted their proposals under seal because they were themselves under a threat; but, as Canon SELWYN suggests, the draft might now be handed to the lodges for consideration, and, after such consideration, the proposals on both sides might be harmonised by a board of adjustment before final adoption. The parties cannot come together again without an agreement as to terms, and they ought to be better able to discuss the basis of an agreement now than months hence. Which would lose the more by delaying the process is a question for themselves to consider.

It is no secret that difficulty is experienced in obtaining a suitable candidate to contest the Redfern election in the Free Trade interest. The trouble is not a new one. It has been a source of embarrassment both at general elections and bye elections, and it was conspicuously apparent at Central Cumberland recently, when a protectionist was returned for a free-trade constituency because no one came forward to whom the free-trade electors cared to give their votes. Is this sort of thing to go on? It is obvious that if it does go on to any large extent the free-trade cause will suffer serious injury, while the protectionists will gain a corresponding advantage. Whatever the freetraders may do, the protectionists will strain every nerve at this election, as they have done at others. They are fighting hard to bring themselves and their policy to the front, and they will not suffer a single opportunity to escape them. They always contrive to get a candidate; and whatever his qualifications may be, they vote for him to a man. The strength of the party is thus employed to the uttermost. On the other side there is not the same anxiety to win seats; apathy too frequently creeps in, and an election is lost because a suitable candidate cannot be found. This is what we are threatened with at Redfern. The constituency is a free-trade one—at any rate, the protectionists at the last general election were outvoted by nearly two to one—and if a capable man were to come forward on the free-trade side, there can be little doubt as to the way in which the contest would go. But if a capable man is not forthcoming, who can answer for the result? What is to prevent a repetition of the Central Cumberland fiasco?

It is not surprising that men of standing and weight in the community, who are to be found in plenty in the ranks of the free-traders, the men above all others who are wanted in Parliament, should be reluctant to enter into active political life. There is, properly speaking, no leisured class in Australia; and, although this colony is the oldest of the group, it does not materially differ from the others in this respect. Here, as elsewhere, the men whose ability, judged by their success in life, whether in the professions or in commerce, seems to point them out as peculiarly fit for the representative office, are busy men, and cannot enter politics without making some sacrifice. And as things have been going it is not an easy matter to estimate the extent of the sacrifice that may be required. The Parliamentary sessions become longer and longer, and the daily sittings of the Assembly are drawn out in proportion. We have been going from bad to worse, and unless some remedy is applied, we shall soon have Parliament sitting all day and all night from one year's end to the other. What wonder, therefore, that men who have important affairs of their own to look after should be disinclined to take part in the management of public affairs. A merchant or professional man may say to himself, "I think I might be useful in Parliament, and I would not mind trying my hand at politics if I could do so without putting my own affairs altogether on one side; but really, if sessions are so long and recesses so short—if I am expected to go to the House early in the afternoon, and sit up all night two or three times a-week, I must deny myself the satisfaction of legislating for my country." And if a busy worker declines to be put in nomination for reasons such as these, who can blame him? There is another cause which deters good men from coming forward. Some who are eligible have, perhaps, some little time at their disposal, or they might be willing to [illegible] time if there was no other [illegible] gladly give such as these may [illegible] country if I could do so [illegible] my self-respect; but while the Assembly remains as it is, while scenes, squabbles, and brawls are so common, I do not care to enter Parliament; I could not bring myself to make the sacrifice." There is substance in this objection also; it cannot be regarded as a frivolous one any more than the other.

But the matter should be regarded from the general, not from the personal point of view; the interests of the community should weigh heavier in the scale than the interests of the individual. There can be no doubt that, to many men whose services would prove of great value in public life, the acceptance of a seat in Parliament would be a sacrifice, for one or both of the reasons named. But the question such men have to consider is whether they ought not to make some sacrifice, whether they ought not at all events to make a trial of the thing, to devote if not the whole of their life at least a part of it to the service of the State, arduous, thankless, and distasteful though that service might be. It is not simply a question as to the maintenance of free trade or any other line of policy. The issue is larger than that, it goes to the root of our Parliamentary system. We flatter ourselves that as a community we are improving and progressing. Is our representative House, which stands for the community in many things, and the conduct of which has a great deal to do with the estimation in which we are held by the world to improve and progress, or is it to become less and less worthy of the country? The practical answer to the question will be largely determined by the willingness or the unwillingness of the better class of our citizens to come forward to take the place of the good men when they go, or that of the bad ones when they drop out. If those whose presence in Parliament would raise its character and increase its usefulness persist in standing aloof, there can only be one result—the Assembly, instead of improving will deteriorate until it becomes a mere refuge for professional politicians.

It is to be hoped that men of the class that the community wants will no longer show so great a disinclination to enter political life. The trials and the inconveniences of such a life, especially under present circumstances, are not to be lightly estimated; but everyone owes some service to the State, and those who possess qualifications which fit them for Parliament should not refuse to employ their talents because the comforts of private life are more congenial to their tastes. And if there is a disposition on the part of good men to avoid the Assembly because its proceedings offend them, and its personnel is not to their liking, it may be pointed out that the very thing to improve the conduct of the House, and to raise its status would be the election of more desirable representatives. It is true that a few disorderly or obstructive members might occasionally throw any Parliamentary body into confusion, but no one can doubt that if the Assembly were strengthened by the introduction of new and sound blood there would be a sensible improvement in its proceedings. There would be less waste of time, less disorder, fewer scenes. The reasons which now prevent men of standing in the community from taking part in political life would, in a great measure, cease to exist if such men would come forward when they are invited to do so.

At the close of the Metropolitan Quarter Sessions his Honor Mr. District Court Judge DOWLING remarked upon the lengthy calendar of cases now presented at the sittings of the Court. "At one time," he said, "all the cases could be disposed of in one day, whereas now the Court sat continuously for nearly a month. Such a circumstance," he added, "was an indication that there was a prevailing increase of crime in our midst, which was very much to be regretted." We sympathise with his HONOR in this expression of regret if it rests on a sound foundation. But upon that point it seems desirable that there should be some further information. For instance, how long ago is it since one day was sufficient for the disposal of all the Quarter Session cases? and again, what proportion does the increase of population bear to the increase in the length of the calendar? Further, is it possible that a larger number of cases are sent to Quarter Sessions now, instead of being sent to the Central Criminal Court, than formerly? Besides that, is it certain that there has been no increase in the efficiency of the police? It is true that the list of cases for the Metropolitan Quarter Sessions, which we published on the first of this month, was alarming in its length; but was it exceptionally long, or only a fair average for the last few years? All these questions ought to be satisfactorily answered, we think, before it is taken for granted that a great increase of crime is the true or only explanation of the length of the calendar. The last report of the Comptroller of Prisons showed that whilst our population increased in 1887 by 12,157 the number of criminals decreased by 112. Are we then to assume that the process has been reversed within the present year; or that, whilst there is not merely a relative but an actual decrease of crime throughout the colony, there has been a startling increase within the metropolitan district? Mr. DOWLING'S remark is suggestive of some questions of considerable interest, and it would be a service to the public if the Department of Justice, having all the facts at its command, would throw some light upon the subject.

Europe is in such a state of simmer just now that every move on the political chess-board is watched with keen interest. The Bulgarian Question, during the two or three years it has lasted, has kept the Continent in a state of tremor. Hardly a country in Europe is unconcerned in some way or other in its settlement, for besides Austria, Turkey, Servia, and Roumania, which are more immediately interested, Germany and Russia, and through them the rest of the Powers, are all more or less directly involved. The movements of every representative politician are scrutinised with a view to detect the first signs of something definite. The visit of the EMPEROR of GERMANY to the Czar gave merely at Derjava last month between these rulers cemented all to have affected any existing alliances or produced any political results. After that came the Italian movement on Massowah and Signor CRISPI'S despatch to the Powers notifying the annexation of that place, and accusing France of opposing Italian interests in Africa. Then we heard of the Italian consul's suspension of relations with the SULTAN of Zanzibar, and M. GOBLET'S acknowledgment of Italy's claim to Massowah and censure of Signor CRISPI'S despatch. That energetic statesman's flag was next hoisted over Zoulla, a little town on the Red Sea to the south of Massowah, to the extreme dissatisfaction of Turkey, and considerable light was then thrown upon the feeling in Europe on this matter by an article in the Norddeutsche Zeitung, the semi-official Berlin organ, charging France for the quarrel between that country and Italy over the foreign policy of the latter State. M. GOBLET'S circular, protesting against the annexation of Zoulla, and insisting on Massowah being regarded as Egyptian territory, as well as threatening reprisals, seemed to promise something serious, and his statement to the Chamber of Deputies that the proposals for a Franco-Italian treaty were not acceptable, coming just after, was not of a reassuring kind. Then came Turkey's circular note, to the Powers, protesting against the annexation of Massowah as a direct violation of existing international treaties, about the same time as similar action on the part of the KHEDIVE of EGYPT. BISMARCK'S rebuff to the Turkish remonstrance, and the acerbity of Signor CRISPI'S reply to M. GOBLET, next appear to have given rise to a feeling of irritation in France, and a suspicion that Germany is fomenting bad feeling between those statesmen for her own purposes. A certain amount of colour was given to this suspicion by the visit of the Italian PREMIER to Friedrichsruhe to meet Prince BISMARCK, and his cordial reception there. His subsequent visit to Count KALNOKY was taken to augur the conversion of the Triple Alliance now existing on the part of Germany, Austria, and Italy into an offensive and defensive union under which one ally would be entitled to claim the assistance of the others. All this has produced a strong feeling of uneasiness in France. That country is quite as anxious as Italy to strengthen herself on the Mediterranean, and the friction between the two countries over the Tripoli expedition was not lessened by Italy's subsequent action. France has always been too vigilant of her interests in Egypt to allow the annexations in her neighbourhood there by a foreign Power to go on without protest. How far the implied menace of the three Powers has operated to give her temporary pause it is of course impossible to say. M. GOBLET now announces that France never sought to raise grave issues over the annexation of Massowah, and that he now considers that incident closed. Meanwhile, France is equipping eight new ironclads, ostensibly to carry out naval evolutions, and we heard some time ago that Italy is making additions to her fleet. All these things coming at a time when Europe is in such a state of feverish unrest, and while the Powers are prepared, as we are told, to call up 16,000,000 of armed men for service in case of war, seem to loom across the future portentously enough. The cablegrams already to hand seem to disclose the elements of a serious quarrel already, and the danger is not minimised by M. GOBLET'S somewhat undignified and certainly hasty retreat from the position he had taken up.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE English mails, dated London, July 27, per Orient Company's steamer Orova will be due to-morrow in time for delivery at about 2 p.m.

HIS EXCELLENCY LORD CARRINGTON will leave Sydney for Bourke at 8 o'clock this evening. He will be banqueted at Bourke, and after seeing all about that locality his Excellency will proceed by way of Cobar and Wilcannia to Silverton. Thence he will go on to Adelaide, and from there to Melbourne, returning to Sydney about the 14th September. Lady Carrington will not accompany his Excellency on this prolonged tour, great part of which, through the north-western part of this colony, it is understood Lord Carrington will perform on horseback.

THE Executive Council held a long meeting yesterday, at which a large amount of routine business was transacted; in fact, all matters of immediate necessity were cleared off, in view of his Excellency's projected absence from Sydney. In the event of anything of pressing importance occurring before Lord Carrington's return, the Premier is entrusted with the necessary authority for convening a meeting of the Executive Council.

THE negotiations lately entered into by the Government for acquiring some land in the vicinity of the Parramatta Benevolent Asylum, for the purpose of affording additional recreation ground for the inmates, have been completed. About an acre of ground has been purchased by the Government.

ADDITIONAL public holidays were passed by the Executive Council yesterday, as follows:—Burrowa, Thursday, September 6; Temora, Wednesday, September 12.

THE hearing of the action for the recovery of £95,000 damages for alleged libel, brought by Mr. G. R. Dibbs, M.L.A., against the Daily Telegraph Newspaper Company, Limited, was continued yesterday at the No. 1 Jury Court, before Mr. Justice Innes and a special jury of 12. The examination in chief of Mr. Dibbs, the plaintiff, was concluded, and Mr. Rogers spent a considerable amount of time in the cross-examination of that gentleman. Mr. Watkin Wynne, manager of the Daily Telegraph, was also examined, and it was elicited from him that the writer of one of the articles complained of, headed "A Challenge to Mr. Dibbs," was Mr. Brient, leader of the Daily Telegraph reporting staff and news editor of that journal. The hearing of the action will be resumed at 10 o'clock this morning.

THE Full Court was engaged with a number of general motions yesterday, which were, as a rule, not of general public interest. The case of William Whitehouse Collins occupied their Honors for a considerable portion of the day. It was an appeal from the decision of Mr. Addison, stipendiary magistrate, who fined Collins for selling a publication entitled "Besant's Law of Population: Its consequences and its bearing upon human conduct and morals." The arguments were concluded, and the Court reserved judgment. In the No. 2 Jury Court the action Dunlop v. the Borough of Waverley terminated in favour of the plaintiff, damages £100.

IN the list of students who successfully passed the final examination in medicine recently held in Edinburgh are the names of Charles Melville Flide, Patrick James Kenna, B.A., and Alexander Livingstone Kerr, all of whom are natives of New South Wales.

A PUBLIC meeting was held at Granville last night in connection with the proposed extension of the main railway line from Redfern to Circular Quay. There was a fair attendance. Mr. J. Nobbs, M.L.A., Mayor of Granville, presided, and gave the proposal his support. Mr. W. Neilly, the secretary, detailed the objects of the league and an outline of [illegible] endorses the The first resolution [illegible] Railway League to bring about an [illegible] extension of the main line from the present terminus through the city to Circular Quay, and pledges its support thereto." The motion was seconded by Mr. W. Cole, and carried unanimously. On the motion of Alderman Forsyth, the petition for presentation to Parliament was adopted, and it was largely signed.

THIS evening the Mayor will entertain at the Town Hall the members of the Australasian Association for the Advancement of Science. Six hundred guests are expected to be present. The proceedings will be enlivened by musical selections, which will be given under the direction of Mr. C. Huenerbein.

THE first meeting of the Australasian Association for the Advancement of Science was held in the great hall of the University last evening. Lord Carrington presided, and there were about 700 persons present. The president of the association (Mr. H. C. Russell) delivered the inaugural address, which was received with loud cheers. In the course of the address Mr. Russell sketched the progress of the Royal Society (England), and spoke of the work which their society had before it. Sir William Manning, in moving a vote of thanks to the Governor, expressed the hope that the attractions of science would not lead the youth of the colony to neglect general education. The meeting was a great success.

CAPTAIN SUFFINGS, of the schooner Uvea, which arrived yesterday from New Britain, brings news of an attack by the natives of that island upon a party of three men who had gone into the bush on a shooting expedition. It appears that on a German settlement on the island are stationed Mr. Smiele, a gentleman who holds a position of judge or magistrate—an Imperial appointment—and his clerk, Mr. Herring, who, together with a marshal, were out shooting, were surrounded and set upon by the natives. Mr. Smiele was shot through the hand. His secretary received bullet wounds in the back and arm, while the marshal's injuries were spear wounds, but not of a serious nature. By dogged determination the natives were kept at bay, and Mr. Smiele and party regained the settlement. Mr. Herring's injuries were so serious that he was conveyed as soon as opportunity offered to Finchhaven, where medical aid was procurable. The object of the attack appeared to be the desire on the part of the natives to obtain European clothes.

THE sittings of the Metropolitan Quarter Sessions were continued before Judge Dowling at the Darlinghurst Courthouse yesterday, when several appeals against the decisions of magistrates were heard. The man Johann Abraham, who represented himself as a Persian priest, and who was sentenced by Mr. Delohery, D.S.M., at the Central Police Court, to six months' imprisonment for an alleged offence under the Vagrancy Act, appealed against the conviction. After hearing the arguments of Mr. Wallace, who appeared on behalf of the appellant, his Honor quashed the conviction. In the case in which Walter Smith, alias Thompson, appealed against a magisterial decision sentencing him to three months' imprisonment, with hard labour, for being a suspected person, the appeal was upheld. The appeal of Sut Yoke against a decision given by Mr. Addison at the Water Police Court was heard, but his Honor deferred judgment until Saturday morning. The only business set down for to-day is the appeal Australian Gaslight Company v. Michael Lustin Cleary (Cleary appellant).

THE monthly meeting of the State Children's Relief Board was held at the Central Home, Paddington, yesterday afternoon. Present:—The Hon. Arthur Renwick, M.L.C. (president), Mrs. Goodlet, Mrs. Garran, Lady Allen, Lady Manning, Mrs. Jefferis. The usual statistical tables were submitted. They showed the total number of children now under the control of the department to be 2052, of whom 1216 were paid for as boarders, 506 were apprenticed, 124 were adopted, 17 were placed out as boarders without subsidy, 105 were at the cottage homes for invalids, and the remainder were at service. At the date of the previous meeting there was one inmate at the depot, 72 were admitted during August, and 76 discharged, leaving 3 inmates yesterday. Six applications from parents for the restoration of children were granted, and two were refused because of the improper character of the applicants. The following new lady visitors to State children were appointed:—Mrs. Macniah, Murrumburrah; Mrs. Beeziel, Branxton; Mrs. E. Morris, Broughton Creek; Mrs. Isabella Stewart, Broughton Creek. The usual official reports showed that the cottage homes and boarded-out children in various parts of the colony had been carefully inspected during the past month, and that they were generally going on satisfactorily. After the disposal of a good deal of business of a formal character, the meeting terminated.

THE festival of the patron saint was celebrated yesterday at St. Augustine's, Neutral Bay. The holy Communion was administered at 7.30 a.m. and at 8 p.m. At evensong an address was delivered by the Rev. G. North Ash, M.A., who chose as his subject, "The life of St. Augustine, and his influence on his own, and on after ages."

AMONG the works which were taken in hand some 18 months ago in order to afford relief to the "unemployed" those carried out at Cook's River, from the dam at Tempe to Botany Bay, and from Shea's Creek to Ricketty-street, are the most valuable. Before these works were commenced the locality was little better than a mangrove swamp, covered with malodorous mud and slime at low water, and not far short of a malarious fever bed. But all this is now changed. Embankments have been formed by means of fascines, and the watercourse has been dredged and made a fine stream 400ft. wide, which is being extended into Botany Bay. Another channel is also being constructed as far as Ricketty-street, 200ft. wide, and there is now a proposal before the Minister for Works for its extension through the Cooper Estate as far as Eveleigh. The effect of these works has been to reclaim some six or seven hundred acres of swamp and render them tolerably dry at all states of the tide; and in addition to this the river will be dredged to give a depth of 9ft. at low water, and 14ft. at high tide, so that it will be available for navigation. A continuous line of road, one chain wide, is to be made on each side of the river, and has already been commenced. Mr. A. Williams, of the Harbours and Rivers Department, has charge of the works, with Mr. Rogers as resident assistant. It is stated that the cost of these works has been remarkably small, considering the results achieved.

THE name of Sir Alfred Stephen was omitted from our list of those who attended the funeral of the Marquis de Rostaing, late vice-consul for France.

"La Traviata" (Verdi); valse, "Jubilee" (Coote); lancers, "Carmen" (Godfrey). "God Save the Queen."

THE report, for the week ending August 25, of the number of pauper patients under treatment in the metropolitan hospitals at the Government expense is as follows:—Coast Hospital—Remaining in on August 18, 1888, 149 males, 59 females; admissions, 25 males, 10 females; discharges, 14 males, 9 females; deaths, 1 male, 1 female; number remaining, 159 males, 59 females. Prince Alfred Hospital—Remaining in on August 18, 1888, 39 males, 40 females; admissions, 8 males, 4 females; discharges, 6 males, 8 females; deaths, 1 male, 3 females; number remaining, 40 males, 33 females.

VICTORIAN NATIONAL AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY'S SHOW.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

MELBOURNE, TUESDAY.

The annual show of the National Agricultural Society was formally opened to-day. There was a very good number of visitors, and the principal attraction was the collection of machinery and farm implements. The wines were judged to-day, but the results will not be known until to-morrow, when the show will be opened in reality. Owing to the large number of machinery exhibits at the International Exhibition, the display in this respect on the show grounds is somewhat smaller than in past years. Sheep, however, are exhibits altogether. The horses and the other live stock particularly well represented, and everything tends to [illegible] the idea that the show will be a grand success. The entries are made up as follows:—10 blood horses, 131 draught horses, 50 roadsters and trotters, 12 hunters and high jumpers, 23 hacknevs, 30 ponies, and 57 in the miscellaneous class, including some half-dozen competing in the rough riding contest. Among the cattle, Ayrshires are best represented with over 170, and shorthorns number 160 entries, the next being the popular polled Angus, which number 86. Then come Jerseys 91, Herefords 30, Devons 19, while dairy and fat cattle, including a couple of Holsteins and 9 Brittians, number 50. Longwools hold the pride of place in the sheep class. Most owners of merinos are holding back for the Australian Sheep Breeders' Show, which takes place next week. Lincolns number 60, Leicesters 48, Southdown and fat sheep 22, swine 122, poultry 207, and dogs 129 exhibits. There are 180 entries of farm and dairy produce, 139 of carriages and buggies, [illegible] in the wine section, 40 of harness and saddlery, while the [illegible] number 64. ## THE VICTORIAN FISCAL POLICY.

PROTECTION FOR THE NEW SOUTH WALES BORDER DISTRICTS.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

ALBURY, TUESDAY.

The Council Chambers were crowded this evening, on the occasion of a public meeting to consider what steps should be taken to protect the border districts against the operation of the Victorian fiscal policy. Mr. T. H. Mate, the mayor, occupied the chair, and amongst those present were a large number of leading professional men and traders. Mr. John Wilkinson moved the following resolution:—"That, in view of the probability of the Victorian Parliament passing the proposed heavy increase in duties on live stock and cereals imported into Victoria, this meeting desires to urge upon the Government the urgent necessity of adopting such measures as will give relief to the farmers, graziers, artisans, and manufacturers of New South Wales, and would suggest that the tariff be so altered as to give the necessary relief, thereby causing an increase of population, and, as a consequence, creating an enhanced consumption of our own products, and relieving us of the necessity of sending our stock and produce to Victoria." In speaking to the motion he said he would not offer an opinion on the relative merits of free trade and protection in the abstract; but practical experience had shown him the necessity of some radical change in the present condition of affairs. Mr. G. C. Parker seconded the motion. He was not a believer in the policy of protection as exemplified in Victoria; but under the peculiar circumstances of the border districts some alteration was indispensable, and steps to bring about a change had been only too long delayed. Mr. E. Scanlan supported the motion, and in doing so remarked that a marvellous change had taken place in the relative attitudes of the two colonies on the border duties question. Only a few years ago Victoria offered to pay £80,000 a year for free trade over the Murray. Now it was New South Wales that was reduced to strive for such an arrangement. What was the cause of this change? It was simply this: Victoria had fostered her manufactures by protection, and was mistress of the situation. She was the buyer, and could command the market at her own terms. It was time for New South Wales to adopt a similar policy in order to attain a like independence of position. If Parliament refused to take this course it would only remain for the border people to agitate for annexation to Victoria, or for separation as an independent colony. Mr. T. Plummer also supported the motion, and strongly advocated the adoption of protection, not for retaliation, but for the inherent merits of the policy itself, which was making Victoria prosper, whilst New South Wales was declining. Mr. Headly spoke in the same strain in illustration of the benefits of protection. He said that Victorian machinery in the Melbourne Exhibition made a really splendid display, whilst New South Wales exhibits of this kind were not worth looking at. After some further discussion, in which Messrs. V. F. Nagle and T. Whitaker took part, the motion was carried. Mr. A. H. Egerson moved, "That a copy of the resolution just passed be forwarded to Mr. G. Day, M.L.A., for presentation to the Cabinet." Mr. Scanlan seconded the motion, which was carried. Dr. Kennedy, whilst approving of the movement, suggested that there should be some expression of regret at being forced into an attitude antagonistic to the neighbouring colony. No formal resolution was, however, submitted on this point, and the meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chair.

ANOTHER DEATH FROM "ROUGH ON RATS."

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

HAY, TUESDAY.

Henry Anderson poisoned himself to-day by taking "Rough on Rats," on board a river steamer. Poison had been laid for rats, and Anderson, who was at work in the pantry, took some in order, as he said, to end his misery because he was suffering from rheumatism. He lingered for some time after taking the poison, and died in great agony. An inquest was held, and the jury returned a verdict of death from arsenical poisoning.

(From our Correspondent.)

WAGGA WAGGA, Tuesday.

The Wagga Pastoral and Agricultural Association held a committee meeting this evening to arrange the details of the forthcoming show. The entries far exceed expectation, those in sheep including valuable Victorian entries. The local entries would have been larger but for the shearers' disturbances. The approximate entries of horses in all classes are 300, cattle 80, sheep 183, hunters' prize 30. The machinery exhibits are much larger than last year. The farm and garden produce entries are good, considering the dry weather. The miscellaneous sections, including dairy produce, wine, poultry, &c., are fully represented. If rain falls, the show will be the most successful for years past.

KIAMA POULTRY AND FLORICULTURAL ASSOCIATION.

[By Telegraph.]
(From our Correspondent.)

KIAMA, Tuesday.

The first exhibition of the Kiama Poultry and Floricultural Association was held in the Temperance Hall and adjoining grounds to-day. There were 398 entries according to the catalogue, divided into six sections, namely, poultry, pigeons, dogs, canaries and caged birds, flowers, and miscellaneous. In the three first-named sections the exhibits were numerous, there being 164 poultry, 90 pigeons, and 45 dogs. Many of the exhibits in those sections were very much admired. The attendance of visitors was not large, not more than 200 persons being present; but there will probably be a large number of visitors to-morrow, which has been proclaimed a public holiday in the Kiama electorate. The judging was completed about 2 o'clock, and seems to have given general satisfaction. There were numerous competitors in poultry. The principal prize-winners were J. Daley, H. Fielder, R. H. Rudd, Wood Bros., A. Taylor, T. H. Robertson, Rudd and Cousins, E. R. Rigg, and H. M'Anene. The leading prize-winners in the pigeon section were J. C. Tate, G. A. Somerville, H. Maude, T. Cadell, and A. J. Prentice. The committee's dinner takes place in the Royal Hotel to-night and a promenade concert in connection with the exhibition comes off in the hall.

AUSTRALIAN PARLIAMENTS.

[By Telegraph.]
(From our Correspondents.)

VICTORIA.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The meeting of the Legislative Council to-day was of a purely formal character, and lasted only five minutes. The House adjourned till Tuesday next.

In the Legislative Assembly, immediately on the House meeting, Sir Bryan O'Loghlen inquired whether the Premier intended to make a statement acquainting the House with the steps taken by the Government respecting the coal question. Mr. Gillies intimated that he would do so later on. This did not satisfy the House. Mr. Bent thought the coal question was of far more importance than the budget discussion. He pointed out that hundreds of people were losing their employment, and urged Mr. Gillies to tell the House what had been done. The Speaker was proceeding to call on the Government business, when Mr. L. L. Smith moved the adjournment of the House. He echoed Mr. Bent's sentiments that the coal strike was of greater importance than a slight delay in the budget discussion. He considered the proposal of the Government to pay 25s. a ton for Victorian coal was evidence of a change of front and indicated a desire to placate the country for their previous negligence. He thanked heaven that the coal ring, which had continually crushed the development of the Victorian coal resources had been at last broken up. He maintained that the present proposition of the Government was unsatisfactory, and that the State should assist private enterprise to construct a railway or tramway to the coalfields. He stated that Mr. Murray, the Government Geologist, had nearly resigned his position because of the slight put on him in asking gentlemen from another colony to report on the coal resources. He attacked the Premier for his retrogressive policy in developing the natural resources of the colony, and contended that the whole future of the colony depended on the development of the coal resources. Mr. Vale pointed out that the failure of the coal supply would be attended with disastrous results in the event of war. He reminded the Government that elsewhere coal was carried at halfpenny per ton per mile. He strongly blamed the Government for their mean and niggardly policy in only offering the miners 14s. a ton for Victorian coal. He maintained that the existence in Victoria of coal in payable quantities had been abundantly proved. Sir Bryan O'Loghlen considered that the Premier was treating the House disrespectfully in not acquainting them with what steps had been taken. He thought the Government should give speedy assistance to private enterprise. Mr. Bent said he was almost prepared to support the Government on the vote of want of confidence, if they would do something to succour those suffering from the strike. He pointed out that if New South Wales was prepared to assist Victoria in respect to the development of the coal resources, Victoria should reciprocate and see what could be done. He urged the Government to pay Victorian producers what it would cost to bring coal from Newcastle, and pointed out that unless prompt action were taken to develop the proved coal resources, thousands would be thrown out of employment. It appeared that the masters, and not the men, were to blame. The whole trade of the colonies was being threatened by half-a-dozen men in Newcastle, who derived large revenues from the mines, and were putting little into them. It was of paramount importance develop the coal resources, and the Government would be acting criminally if they did not do so. Mr. Gaunson could not understand why a protectionist colony could have allowed itself be so dependant on another colony for its coal supply. He attributed it to the influence of the coal rings. He would support a protectionist tax on imported coal for the development of the Victorian coal resources. After further discussion the motion for adjournment was [illegible] that all the principal on the [illegible] of the colony were in favour of an increase of the stock tax. He maintained that owing to the difference in price of land in New South Wales and Victoria the local farmers could not hope to fatten cattle without the aid of a heavy tax. Mr. Zox could not see any reason for an increase of the stock tax, which must increase the price of meat and engender bad feeling. Before the House rose, Mr. Gillies, in referring to the coal strike, said that the Government believed the railways could be carried on indefinitely. The gas supply also promised to last. The Government proposed to allow 25s. per ton for coal within a certain time, whether the strike continued or not. The Government was also prepared to take during 1889 a certain amount of coal at 22s. 6d. per ton. They expected to spend £100,000 in that way, and that should develop the Victorian coal resources. The House adjourned at 12.5 a.m.

QUEENSLAND.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

[illegible] Council a bill to amend the Companies Act, [illegible]863, and a bill to consolidate the laws relating to prisons and gaols were introduced and read a first time. The House adjourned till to-morrow.

In the Assembly Sir Samuel Griffith gave notice that he would move to-morrow for leave to introduce a bill to amend the Employers' Liability Act, and to extend its provisions to seamen. A message was received from the Governor, transmitting a bill to provide for the further restriction of Chinese. The bill is in all essential particulars identical with the draft bill adopted at the Sydney Conference, but it differs in some matters of detail to meet the special requirements of the colony. Mr. Nelson, Minister of Railways, moved the second reading of the Railways and Tramways Management Bill. The bill reserved all rights and privileges which the Railway servants now possessed, and further conferred rights and privileges which they had not hitherto enjoyed. The Government considered that if the bill were accepted by the House, the railways for the future would be managed more in the public interest, and probably more economically than at present. They wanted to put the three Commissioners in the most independent position possible, so that they could manage the railways altogether outside of party or political influence; but, considering that the colony had invested some £13,000,000 in the railways, they did not propose to hand over the whole of that in an unrestricted manner to the Commissioners. The Commissioners would be endowed with certain powers wholly in connection with the railway management. The Government would always retain the power of stepping in should the actual necessity arise. The Commissioners were appointed for seven years, so as to induce them to manage the railways in the best possible manner, and to secure their re-appointment, but the measure was also experimental and tentative. Mr. Nelson then proceeded to explain in detail the powers and duties of the Commissioners, and the powers reserved to the Government. Sir Samuel Griffith asked what salaries the Commissioners would receive? Mr. Nelson said that would be discussed in committee. After referring to the difficulties arising from the fact that the railways were not centralised here as in the southern colonies, he said it was proposed that the Commissioners should be of the very highest standard. In Victoria the Chief Commissioners had immense powers, but such a plan was not advisable here. Their Commissioners would all three be men of undoubted ability. Provision was made in the bill for keeping in the colony as much as possible that which belonged to the colony. At present Queensland was very much hampered in this respect. If clause 31 were passed, he thought the Commissioners would be able to secure for Queensland the trade which belonged to her. The Commissioners would have control of everything connected with the railway works, and would give orders for the construction of rolling stock, but it was intended to restrict them from going outside the colony, if it was possible that the work could be done in the colony at a satisfactory cost. Sir Samuel Griffith rather unfavourably criticised the bill at some length. He said that, after a careful perusal of the bill, he had been unable to obtain a very clear idea as to the respective positions of the Commissioners and the Government. The railways were naturally a question of policy both in construction and management, especially as regards the railway tariff, and he held that the Commissioners could not be entrusted to decide questions of policy. The Government could not afford to surrender to any Commissioners the determination of questions in relation to the general Government of the colony. On the other hand, he would not object to the administration of the railways by a board of commissioners by way of experiment. The Premier replied in defence of the bill, and spoke against the strictures made by Sir Samuel Griffith upon the measure. He pointed to the success of the system elsewhere, and also stated that though great powers would be entrusted to the Commissioners in framing tariffs and other important matters, the supervision over them would be quite sufficient to prevent anything being done against the wish of Parliament. After some debate, in which the principles of the bill generally were approved, the second reading was passed without division. The House then adjourned.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

The Legislative Council has been chiefly occupied in the discussion of the Local Option and Totalisator Bills.

In the Assembly Mr. Catt stated that the Railway Commissioners had no reason for perturbation as to the effect of the coal strike, because fair provision had been made for fuel. Strong opposition was shown over a motion for leave to introduce a bill amending the Education Act by the introduction of a clause providing for denominational assistance to schools. Eventually leave was given. The bill was not, however, introduced. The Budget debate was continued, and Mr. Playford, speaking a second time at great length, emphatically contended that his estimates were right. Mr. Holder indicated his intention to move the raising of the land tax from a halfpenny to a penny, and substituting a property tax for an income tax. The debate was further adjourned until Thursday. Most of the evening was occupied with the discussion of the Chinese Immigration Bill in committee. No important alteration has been made. The committee adjourned on the main clause in reference to the limitation of tonnage. Several members proposed the reduction of the limitation to 200 tons and the substitution of a poll tax.

TASMANIA.

HOBART, Tuesday.

The Legislative Council to-day decided to adjourn till September 1 to give Ministers time to consider the Government taxation proposals. Most of the speakers held that it was the duty of Ministers to provide for the deficiency, and not allow it to go on.

THE CIVIL SERVICE OF SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

REPORT OF THE COMMISSION OF INQUIRY.

IMPORTANT RECOMMENDATIONS.

[By Telegraph.]
(From our Correspondent.)

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

The first progress report of the Civil Service Commission was presented to the Assembly this afternoon. The investigations have so far been practically confined to the establishments under the control of the Chief Secretary. The commission suggest reductions immediate and prospective in connection with the vice-regal establishment. Referring to the Under-Secretary, the report says: —"There is no evidence to show that the position is more important than other heads of departments; therefore we recommend that the office be removed from the Civil list, and that the salary be reduced to £650. This is £50 more than the other secretarial heads are receiving, but the commission feel it desirable to retain at least one position to which other Ministerial secretaries can look to as a possible step in promotion. In regard to the Audit Department there are one or two directions in which the usefulness of the institution might be extended with advantage, particularly that the office of [illegible] checking the stocks of stores on the officer be expected to exercise [illegible] recommend over the district officers, and see that the correction and completion of the rolls are more efficiently performed." The Sheriff's duties have been considerably curtailed, and it is recommended that the salary be £500. It is recommended that when the present superintendent of prison labour retires his successor shall combine the offices of comptroller and superintendent of prisons labour. At present the superintendent's salary is found to be a cause of dissatisfaction. In respect to the Government Printing Office, the commission heard evidence tendered on behalf of the compositors, who desire to be placed on the fixed list of the Civil Service, and that the men be graded in classes, as in Victoria. The Government Printer is not at present prepared to make a suggestion upon the point, but will deal with it when considering the position of provisional and temporary officers generally. The men are all paid daily wages. The report observes with regret that the Government Printer does not consider it practicable to introduce piecework, having regard to the class of printing done. The commission thinks that no free copies of the Gazette should be sent to hotels. It is believed that the number published weekly can be greatly reduced. A great deal of attention was devoted to the Police Department by the commission, and was the medium for ventilating a great many grievances. The report recommends that £12 be allowed to mounted and £9 to foot constables for uniforms. The North Terrace Barracks are condemned as inconvenient, uncomfortable, and insanitary. It is proposed that a board of three be appointed to deal with the questions affecting appointments, dismissals, and promotions. It is advised that the total number of the police force be gradually reduced by 24. It is recommended that the promoters of private gatherings such as football matches, &c., shall pay 1s. per hour for each policeman on duty whose services are called upon, the money to go to the police retiring fund. Various reforms are advised in the different departments. The report recommends that the salary of the governor of the Adelaide gaol will not be interfered with, but that his successors should receive £280, and that prison labour be utilised in cultivating the area of land about the gaol. The commission think that the authorities of the penal establishments should be empowered to recommend free passes by railway to discharged prisoners desiring to proceed to any part of the colony. In regard to the Yatala labour prison the commission are of opinion that some attempt should be made to increase the opportunities for learning useful trades in the prison, and suggest the possibility of closing two country gaols through faultiness. The number of unvaccinated children is very considerable, and it is recommended that the work be done by the office of the Central Board of Health, and that the Colonial Surgeon be asked to undertake the position of chairman of the board of health, and be allowed a junior medical assistant of the lunatic asylum, who shall also be the medical officer of the labour prison, and generally assist the Colonial Surgeon. The report refers to the defence and other branches, and in closing it says: "We consider the system of granting allowances to Civil servants for house rent, fuel and light, &c., most objectionable, and are strongly of opinion that all allowances, except forage allowances in cases where they are absolutely necessary, should be at once done away with, and the salaries increased in proportion to the estimated value of allowances abolished. We suggest that in future no lads be taken into the clerical branch of the service who have not passed a Civil Service examination. We suggest the establishment of a fund under which a Civil servant retiring from the service through no fault of his own could become entitled either to an annuity or an immediate cash payment as compensation, but will consider the matter further." The result of the recommendations so far shown a proposed extra expenditure of £1490; balance of annual savings proposed, £8405; probable excess of expenditure over savings for sundries, £1000; proposed saving per annum, £9895. In all cases where the carrying out of the recommendations involves the retirement of Government officers the commission strongly urge that the salaries be continued till December 31, 1889.

THE COOTAMUNDRA SHOW.

[By Telegraph.]
(From our Correspondent.)

COOTAMUNDRA, Tuesday.

The show entries number nearly 700. The exhibits in horses, cattle, and sheep are numerous, though the sheep are confined, with one exception, to the farmers' exhibits. The large pastoralists are holding aloof this year. Pigs are scarce, but poultry and dogs are numerous. Farm and dairy produce is slack, owing chiefly to the dry season. Machinery and miscellaneous exhibits are large. The town is full of visitors. Great improvements have been effected this year in the ground.

COUNTRY NEWS.

[By Telegraph.]
(From our Correspondents.)

COOTAMUNDRA, Tuesday.

There has been no rain this month, and the rainfall for the year is only about one-fourth the average. The dry season retards business in stock, principally in sheep. Though feed is not now scarce it must soon become so. There is much anxiety as to the wheat and other crops.

Considerable activity is shown in urging the railway extension to Temora and the Lachlan.

CROOKWELL, Tuesday.

The dry weather is creating alarm in the minds of the farmers and graziers. A large number of deaths amongst stock have taken place in the district. The crops are very backward; some have not yet made their appearance above ground. Rain, if in copious supply, would yet serve the district, on account of its being so late.

The Progress Committee has decided to ask the Government to establish a lands office here, the area to be portions of the Goulburn, Gunning, and Carcoar land districts. Selectors at the present time have to travel from 20 to 40 miles to attend the land office.

DUBBO, Tuesday.

The weather has turned very hot. Water is very scarce.

Wool is coming in fast. The local-wool scourers, Thomas and Co., have commenced operations on Richardson's Curraweena wool.

The river still remains a fair stream, but it is quite clear, and free from mud.

GRAFTON, Tuesday.

As soon as it was known that the miners' strike had taken place, a large firm here increased the price of flour 20s. per ton.

Three different parties claim the plumbago find at Buchanan's Rock, 10 miles south of Yamba. The matter is to come before the Warden to-morrow. Two feet from the face plumbago of fairly good quality shows, and is mixed with what appears to be white chalk.

The weather continues dry, and the continued absence of rain is causing much anxiety.

In prospect of works commencing at the Clarence Heads, a number of men continue to visit Yamba, and experience great disappointment when they are told the position of affairs. It is stated that the contractor is willing to go on with the works at Iluka, and continue till the stone is exhausted, if the Government give him the contract for a tramway to the quarry at Angowrie Point.

GUNDAGAI, Tuesday.

A meeting of the subscribers of the Gundagai Hospital was held this afternoon, for the purpose of electing a medical officer. Four candidates applied for the position, viz., Drs. Freeland and Gabriel, of Gundagai; M'Nash, of Myall Creek; and Moffitt, of Croydon. The two first were proposed, and a ballot was taken, resulting as follows:—Gabriel, 31; Freeland, 12; majority for Gabriel, 19.

MORUYA, Tuesday.

Mr. Woods has been elected secretary to the local hospital.

Bush fires are raging in all directions. The weather is still dry, and if rain does not soon come the cattle must die.

QUIRINDI, Tuesday.

It has been decided to organise a reserve rifle company here, and nearly 30 persons have enrolled themselves as intending members.

TEMORA, Tuesday.

The rainfall during the present year for eight months was 7·15 points, being 13 inches 27 points, deficient of last year's record. There are no signs of rain.

The Railway League here was recently inclined to dispute a suggestion emanating from Cootamundra that the Salt Clay Creek route of line should also be surveyed; but, last night, determined not to oppose the survey. A strong feeling was expressed that the trial survey should be extended to Barmedman. The railway surveyors are in camp within a few miles of Temora.

TENTERFIELD, Tuesday.

A thunderstorm occurred this afternoon accompanied by hail and heavy rain, which will have a good effect upon the herbage. It is still cloudy.

URANA, Tuesday.

The seven prisoners under arrest, charged with the recent riot at Brookong, were brought before the Police Court. The case will probably last two days.

WILCANNIA, Tuesday.

[illegible] not app[illegible] Municipal Council meeting held last night, a thanks for his past [illegible] Mr. Abbott stating his intention of not to come forward again [illegible] for Wilcannia. ## THE UNIQUE HOTEL.

COMPLIMENTARY BANQUET TO MR. J. B. OLLIFFE.

During the past decade the progress of Sydney has been marked by the erection of numerous commodious buildings, which have in a great measure altered the architectural aspect of the city. One of the latest additions to the long list of extensive buildings that have recently replaced more humble and primitive structures is the Unique Hotel, just completed, at the corner of Druitt and Sussex streets, at a cost of several thousand pounds. The site is a most advantageous one, being in a very busy and an increasingly attractive portion of the city. The new edifice, which is five stories in height, is built of brick and stucco, and has upwards of 50 compartments, exclusive of the cellarage accommodation. Externally it has an imposing appearance, being designed according to the Italian style of architecture, and having a frontage of 50ft. to Druitt-street, while along Sussex-street the façade extends for 60ft. On the ground floor are situated the bars and public rooms, all spacious apartments, fitted with the requirements necessary to carrying on a large business. The public dining-room, two elaborately furnished sitting-rooms for boarders, a well-arranged smoking-room, a private luncheon apartment, as well as several bedrooms, are arranged on the second floor. On the story above the whole of the space is taken up as bedrooms, each of which is furnished in a very complete fashion, the furniture being composed of English ashwood, with marble slabs, patent tiles, and bevelled mirrors, all of which were specially imported. The roof of the house is flat, and has been constructed so that it can be utilised as a yard. A layer of asphalt has been laid down, and the whole area is open, presenting a splendid level surface, upon which all the domestic and laundry work of the hotel can be expeditiously performed. Around the centre space are situated the servants' rooms, also the washhouses, besides a large and commodious kitchen, fitted with all the modern culinary appliances, among which are a range capable of cooking for 150 persons, and a very large grill. A large counter-balance hoist connects the kitchen with the dining-room below. All the rooms are lofty, the ceilings being 12ft. high, and ample ventilation is provided by judiciously-placed louvre vents on the walls, and ornamental perforations wrought in the cement ceilings. Communication can be obtained from any room by means of electric wires attached to a gong. On the landing at each floor an electric fire alarm is attached to the wall. When the alarm mechanism is set in motion a communication is established with the manager's room, which it is intended to connect by telephone with the Metropolitan Fire Brigade station. A special feature in the construction of the building is a large square aperture, 12ft. by 14½ft., extending from the basement to the roof, which provides for a free current of pure air, and admits sufficient daylight to all the rooms by which it is surrounded. At the height of each successive floor a small portion of this shaft is encroached upon by a platform, upon which are built the bathrooms and lavatories, in which hot, tepid, and cold water are provided by a mechanical and easy arrangement of various taps. The staircase is a fine piece of workmanship, being wide and almost square on plan, and ascending at a convenient gradient round the well-hole constructed for the accommodation of a hydraulic lift. The cellar is replete with appliances for the storage and manipulation of an extensive stock, and throughout the entire building gas and water are laid on. The lessee is Mr. J. B. Olliffe, formerly of the Hyde Park Hotel, in Elizabeth-street, for whom the building has been erected from plans prepared by Messrs. Knowles and Down, of King-street.

A complimentary banquet was tendered last evening by a number of the most prominent citizens of Sydney to Mr. J. B. Olliffe, to celebrate the opening of his new premises, the Unique Hotel, corner of Sussex and Druitt streets. The banquet, which was served in the dining-room of the hotel, was of a very superior character, and the room, though very large, was severely taxed to contain Mr. Olliffe's numerous friends. The Mayor of Sydney (Mr. John Harris) occupied the chair, and Mr. J. H. Want, Q.C., was in the vice-chair, and amongst the other gentlemen present were Messrs. Dibbs, Riley, Hassall, O'Connor, Chapman, Merriman, Slattery, O'Mara, Ms.L.A., Aldermen Hardie, Hart, Manning, and J. D. Young, and gentlemen representative of all professions and callings. The gaiety of the evening was enhanced by the admirable selections of a small string band. The Chairman having proposed "The Queen and Royal Family" and "The Governor," Alderman Hardie gave "The Parliament." Mr. Slattery was called on to respond, and said he was convinced that all the members of the present Parliament were actuated by the best motives, and strove to do the best they could for the country. Mr. J. H. Want, M.L.A., who was received with deafening applause, gave the toast of "Our Guest." The toast was drunk with great enthusiasm. Mr. Olliffe, on rising to reply, received an ovation. He expressed thanks to the proposer of the toast and to all for the exceeding kindness shown towards him. Among the other toasts honoured were "Prosperity to New South Wales," proposed by Mr. D. O'Connor, M.L.A., and responded to by Mr. Dibbs, M.L.A.; "The Mayor and Aldermen of Sydney," proposed by Mr. F. Gannon, and replied to by the chairman; "The Ladies," proposed by Mr. Hennessy; and "The Press."

FIRE IN GEORGE-STREET.

About half-past 5 o'clock yesterday morning a fire broke out in premises occupied by Messrs. G. P. W. Schulze and Co., at the rear of No. 410, George-street, and rapidly spread to the adjoining structures that formed a part of the main building, and which were in the occupancy of Augustus Andreoli, a billiard saloon-keeper; Messrs. Marshall Brothers, chemists; and H. Hocking, wine merchant. The premises were constructed of brick, iron, and wood, the roof being of slates, and were leased by Mr. L. Foley. In the part occupied by Schulze and Co. the amount of damage done was very considerable, and the entire compartment, with the contents, consisting of printer's materials, machinery, &c., was destroyed, and the roof was burned off. The third floor and attic, which were rented by Marshall Brothers, contained a quantity of stores, which were entirely spoiled, and the roof was totally destroyed. A front room, used as a dentist's operating room, and containing furniture, also a front shop immediately underneath, were severely damaged by water. The rooms on the ground and the first floors contained billiard tables, besides a quantity of furniture, belonging to Augustus Andreoli, and these suffered damage to a considerable extent from water. The basement, sub-leased by H. Hocking, was used as a wine cellar, but the amount of damage done here was small, being confined to an overflow of water from the fire-extinguishing apparatus. The flames, the origin of which could not be ascertained, were extinguished by the Metropolitan Fire Brigade, assisted by several volunteer fire companies. The premises were insured in the London and Liverpool and Globe Fire Office for £2000. Messrs. Schulze and Co. were insured in the Fire, Marine, and Accident Indemnity Company for £600, and Mr. Andreoli's property was covered by a similar amount in the office of the North British Fire Company. Messrs. Marshall Brothers were insured in the Colonial Mutual and the Pacific offices for £1500, and a policy for £1000 in the Imperial Fire Company was held by Mr. Hocking, who will continue to carry on business at the old cellars after the course of a day or two. The business of Marshall Brothers will be temporarily removed to No. 106, Market-street.

THE WEATHER.

Yesterday there were indications of a change in the weather pointing to rain. The sky at intervals during the day was overcast, and shortly after sundown was completely so. However the wind, which throughout the day had been very variable, came away from the south-east and brought up heavy clouds. Just at midnight a shower or two fell, but they did not last long. The weather still remains dry in the country, with indications in several localities of a change.

AMUSEMENTS.

SKATING RINKS.

A plain and fancy dress skating carnival was held at the Summer Hill Skating Rink last evening. The attendance was comparatively small. The necessary music was supplied by the rink band, who were stationed in the gallery at the northern end of the building. The hall was prettily decorated with flags of various nations and coloured lights suspended in all directions. The grand march was performed at 9 o'clock, and an hour later the rollers were laid aside and dancing entered upon, and maintained till the smaller hours. The first and second heats of the two-mile amateur championship race were run at the Elite Skating Rink last evening, in the presence of a large gathering of spectators. The results were:—First heat: Blume, 1; Killian, 2. Time, 7 minutes 21 seconds. Second heat: Carson, 1; Westgarth, 2. At the Crystal Palace Rink, which continues to draw large houses, special attractions are announced for this evening.

WIRTH'S CIRCUS.

Messrs. Wirth Brothers' Circus opened last night in Egan's paddock, off Crown-street, Surry Hills, after an absence of about two months from Sydney, during which time the combination visited New Caledonia, where they had a successful season. Although financially the visit was productive of good results, the company suffered some severe losses, they having the misfortune to lose one of their principal performers by death, and two of the best-trained horses were so seriously injured during the heavy weather encountered by the vessel during the passage to Noumea that they had to be destroyed. During their stay in the French colony the Governor presented the company with a handsome pony, educated to perform a number of clever tricks. The programme submitted last evening to the fairly large audience was a lengthy and varied one, and was carried out in detail by the different members of the troupe, all of whom sustained their parts in a most creditable manner. A cavalcade ride, in which six actors took possession of as many horses, was productive of an excellent display of horsemanship. Several very amusing bending feats were executed by the Wirth Midgets, and an exhibition of fancy five-horse riding was given by George Wirth. Miss Marigles Wirth was loudly applauded for her well-finished juggling act on horseback, also for her clever performance on the invisible wire, when she was accompanied by two trained pigeons that acted in obedience to the calls of their mistress. George Wirth and P. Montgomery appeared in what was called a double bounding jockey act, in which both actors performed the difficult feat of jumping from the ground and alighting on the backs of two horses while going at full gallop around the arena. The programme concluded with a humorous sketch, entitled "Circus Riding Exposed," and during the enactment of it the audience was convulsed with laughter. The company is a very strong one, and all the items on the list were gone through with a precision that stamped all the performers as being adepts in their particular line of business; and the manner in which the acting was received by those who attended clearly showed that the efforts made by the management to please their patrons were well appreciated.

A matinee performance will be given at the Theatre Royal on Saturday next, when "Monte Cristo, Jun." will be presented by the London Gaiety Company.

The Orient Company's R.M.S. Oroya, Captain R. Studdert, from London inwards, passed Cape Borda at 2.45 a.m. yesterday, and arrived at Adelaide later on. The Sydney portion of her mails may be expected here to-morrow.

The three-masted schooner Lord of the Isles arrived in port yesterday from Suva, after a passage of anything but favourable winds, hence its length. The schooner proceeded up to an anchorage in Pyrmont Bight upon arrival.

The following notice to mariners is hereby notified for general information:—"That a buoy with moorings attached has been placed near the jetty for the convenience of vessels trading to Byron Bay. The buoy is moored about 250ft. from the end of the jetty, and about 220ft. W.N.W. from it, with two 7cwt. anchors, in about 18ft. at low water, having 7½ fathoms of 1¼in. chain on each. In consequence of the heavy surf that runs into the bay at times, no guarantee can be given that the anchors will remain in their proper position. Masters are therefore warned against allowing their vessels to pass over the said anchors in such shallow water.—Geo. S. Lindeman, R.N., Secretary Marine Board, New South Wales."

The P. and O. Company's R.M.S. Rome, hence to London, via ports, with mails, passengers, and cargo, arrived at Suez on the 25th instant.

The barque London left Newcastle for Valparaiso yesterday with 1622 tons of coal under hatches.

Yesterday the ship Illawarra was towed to a discharging berth at the central wharf.

Rear-Admiral Fairfax paid an official visit to H.M.S. Orlando yesterday forenoon.

The Oceanic Company's R.M.S. Alameda, with the inward English and American mails, via San Francisco, left the Golden Gate, for Sydney, via Honolulu and Auckland, at 4 p.m. on Saturday last.

A German mail steamer passed Cape Borda at 7.15 p.m. yesterday, inwards. She would in all probability be the N. G. Lloyd Company's steamer Hohenzollern, their next inward boat from [illegible]emen.

[illegible] Ophir arrived in port last evening from Moodyville, wit[illegible] lumber, and anchored in Watson's Bay to await inspection by [illegible] officer. Her captain reports that he left Cape Flattery on Ju[illegible] and for the first eight days he experienced S.E. to S.W. gales a[illegible] N.E. trades, which were carried to [illegible] seas, followed by strong [illegible] Equator, which was crossed on July 18 in 160° W. The S.E. trad[illegible] were shortly afterwards picked up, but the only proved light, and [illegible]mately gave out in 18° S. Thence to port the barque had nothing [illegible] a succession of light variable winds and calms to arrival. The [illegible] was towed in by the tug Geebung, and brought up as stated. The Ophir was here before, but she was then flying the Norwegian flag.

The German schooner Uvea, after an absence of nearly four years, returned to Sydney yesterday from New Britain, one of the Islands of the British Archipelago, with a part cargo of copra. During her absence the schooner has been doing some work in the Solomon Group with varied success. On this occasion Captain Suffings reports that he left the Duke of York Island on the 2nd of July with copra for Sydney, and on the run down has had nothing but a continuation of southerly winds, which of course are diametrically opposed to a quick passage, and the schooner has had to "thrash" the whole way. The land was made off Bird Island at 10 a.m. the day before yesterday, and by the aid of the light N.E. wind that was blowing yesterday morning the schooner was enabled to make the port. Her captain has very little to report in the way of news that has not been anticipated, but he relates a short story of a would-be murder on the island of New Britain which is to be found elsewhere.

To-day some gear will be erected on board the ship Hadoon Hall, in order that she may put some heavy lifts, viz., three boilers, weighing 12 tons each. They are for the Metropolitan Coal Company.

Yesterday the vessel Inch Keith was berthed at the Adelaide Wharf.

The Orient Company's R.M.S. Lusitania was berthed at the company's wharf yesterday, after the departure of the R.M.S. Garonne.

The barque Harold was berthed at Smith's Wharf yesterday afternoon.

Yesterday the steamer Richmond Hill was towed to Mort's Dock, where she will have some repairs to her machinery made good. She has been put on the berth for London.

The ship Macleod was towed from Moore's Wharf to an anchorage in the stream yesterday.

The ketch Gratitude, recently built by Mr. T. Davis, of Terrigal, was registered at the Customs yesterday.

The American ship Fannie Tucker arrived in port yesterday from San Francisco, in ballast, after a passage of 61 days from port to port. Captain Greenleaf reports that his vessel took her departure from the Golden Gate on the 28th of June. The Equator was crossed on July 19. The N.E. trades were very good and strong; the S.E. trades were fresh, but gave out in 23° south. After losing the trades, light baffling winds were encountered. On the 11th of August the main topgallant yard carried away and the mainsail split, which was the only damage to be recorded. The Fannie Tucker goes to Anderson's dock to-day to receive a thorough overhaul.

The M. M. Company's steamer Caledonien, hence to Marseilles, via ports, left Adelaide yesterday. She had on board the French Comedy Company, who are returning home.

The China Navigation Company's steamer Changsha, bound from Hongkong to Sydney, passed Thursday Island yesterday.

R.M.S. GARONNE.

Yesterday the Orient Company's R.M.S. Garonne took her departure for London, after a longer stay in port than is usually the case with the company's steamers. Her delay has been an exceptional one, and one which it is hoped will not have to be recorded for many years to come. It will be remembered that the Garonne was in collision with the steamship Lucinda in the Red Sea, whereby she received the injuries that have caused her the delay mentioned above. Temporary repairs, however, were effected at Aden, and the work then performed was of such a character that the Garonne was enabled to make this her last port of call in safety. The Garonne upon arrival was floated into Mort's dock, and under the supervision of Mr. Anderson, chief engineer, the necessary repairs were commenced. The damage upon inspection was found to be of no small moment, and it goes to prove that engineering work in the shipbuilding line of considerable magnitude can be undertaken with ease by Mort's Dock Company, for the result shows undoubtedly the heavy work they are capable of performing. All yards and top gear were sent down. After removing all the temporary plates repairs were commenced. The whole bow, from the water line to the first watertight bulkhead has been renewed. The original stem was taken out and straightened; it weighed between five and six tons, and consequently was no easy job; 18 new frames were fixed, and 72 new plates were riveted. Mort's Dock Company have done the work to the entire satisfaction of Mr. Anderson, who speaks in the highest praise as to the class of work, which he considers, is quite as good as it could have been done in London. The repairs have been executed in such a way that the surveyors are more than satisfied. The Garonne was cleaned and painted before being floated out of dock; and Captain White anticipates a quick run home. Punctual to her advertised time she hauled off from the wharf yesterday in commencement of her homeward journey. A long passenger list is not looked for at this season of the year, however the Garonne has a fair average number of voyageurs. When well down the harbour Captain White stopped in order that he might adjust his compasses, which action was telegraphed to Sydney, and a rumour was soon spread that the Garonne was ashore. The Garonne did not clear the Heads until the afternoon. She has under hatches 1112 bales wool, 162 tons of tin, and 60 tons of copper, besides a quantity of sundries.

The launch of the new Russian torpedo-armed cruiser Captain Sacken, is, says an English paper, fixed to take place at Nicolaieff, on the Black Sea, towards the end of August. The construction of this vessel was commenced in May, 1886. The Captain Sacken is the second vessel of its class in the Russian navy, the Lieutenant Iliine being the other.

THE NEWCASTLE COLLIERY STRIKE.

MEETING OF THE MINERS' LODGES.

POSTPONEMENT OF THE EIGHT-HOUR DEMONSTRATION.

STATEMENTS BY DELEGATES.

FRESH MEDIATION PROPOSALS BY MR. BRUNKER.

FURTHER ACTION BY THE CITIZENS.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

NEWCASTLE, TUESDAY.

The city was not disturbed in any respect this morning, but the excitement in the suburbs was very great through the holding of meetings by several of the miners lodges at Lambton, Borehole, Wallsend, Great Northern, and Stockton. Large meetings were held, but they were orderly and the business before them was not of very great importance. Fully 600 miners attended the Borehole gathering, which was held in the open air at the rear of the Miners' Exchange Hotel, Hamilton. The delegate from the lodges read over the resolutions adopted at the recent conference, and after a few explanatory remarks put them to the meeting for adoption, and they were carried unanimously. A vigilance committee of 12 men was appointed to look after the interests of the lodge at Glebe, Adamstown, Hamilton, and Wickham, three being told off to reach portion of the district named. In answer to a question put by one of the miners, the mover of the motion stated that the members of the Vigilance Committee were required to see that no dirty work, that is, "black-legging," was attempted at any of the mines. It was then agreed to hold meetings every Saturday morning to deal with matters of general import, it being understood that if anything serious arose they would be required to attend a special meeting. The idea suggested in the first instance was that meetings should be held on alternate days, but this the miners opposed, seeing that it would interfere with their fishing and sporting excursions to Lake Macquarie. The question of holding the Eight-hour Demonstration on the 18th of October was discussed briefly, and a unanimous decision arrived at that it would be unwise to think of fixing it so early in view of the strike. It was eventually agreed to recommend the indefinite postponement of the demonstration. In a general discussion, some regret was expressed that the miners were leaving the district and going in a southerly direction, it being feared, to use the significant words of some of the miners, that it would have a tendency towards unnecessarily prolonging the strike. The speakers were generally very orderly, and they appreciated the presence of the reporters by a few small cheers. The meeting ended very quietly.

The congregation at the Stockton mine was not conducted upon the same lines as at the Borehole and Lambton. No room in the locality being large enough to hold the miners, they were obliged to adjourn to a commodious paddock, where the business was accomplished, after having driven the reporters away. The members of the press who attended this meeting thought there could be no objection to their presence in the open air. They selected the most convenient position for their work, but when attention was drawn to them they were reminded that they had better leave. The chairman refused to go on with the business, and the pressmen left when signs of unpleasantness were exhibited. The meeting endorsed the action of the delegates at the conference with the mediators. The proceedings, viewed from a distance were enthusiastic, but somewhat inflammatory.

The Lambton meeting was a very long one, and most interesting. Fully 400 miners were present, the affair being conducted in the open air in the Lambton reserve, where the famous aggregate demonstration took place a month ago. The press was welcomed, and nothing withheld; on the contrary, publication of the business was courted. After the delegate had gone through the conference minute, he alluded particularly to the motion calling upon the men to cease work at the expiration of the 14 days' notice. He remarked that a number of young fellows were still employed at the mines bailing water and otherwise engaged, and said it was a matter now receiving attention, and he hoped it would not be permitted. A portion of the minutes were then confirmed. Passing to another item, the delegate said that the board expected all non-union men cutting and filling coal should cease work on the 27th, the date of expiration of the 14 days' notice of a strike, and that all who acceded to this request should hand in their names to the local secretary to be forwarded to the delegates. He added, however, that he could make no promises as to their future, but assured them of every consideration. Referring to the impending trouble at Greta, he intimated that men who were filling coal there had the protection of the police, and that the miners were under close surveillance, adding, "And this may be our trouble soon enough." In connection with the non-union hands, the delegate promised that the miners would guarantee their reinstatement before work was resumed anywhere. Every case would be properly considered on its merits, and possibly they would be paid from the strike fund. Upon a motion passed by the delegates, namely, "That seven members, with the district officers, be appointed an executive to act during the present crisis," he explained that during the conference five of the delegates strongly opposed its adoption, and he himself was one of the quintette. He considered that in the appointment of these men they were being placed in absolute power, and might take it upon themselves to settle the dispute. After some discussion, the motion, which, by the way, has taken effect from the delegates, was rejected unanimously. One of the members of the meeting called out, "It's time they were chucked out; we've had enough of that sort of work." The delegate then devoted himself to a few remarks upon Canon Selwyn. He said he had previously alluded to the Canon as being thoroughly disinterested, but he had reason now to change his opinion. Canon Selwyn, he went on, stated when he laid the sealed packet on the table that he knew nothing of its contents, but subsequently the Canon, finding he was not as well received by the delegates as he expected, said he had power to break the seals, and that the delegates would find that it was perfectly satisfactory, and that everything the miners wanted was in the envelope. "Now," said the delegate, "this is a man I thought to be above suspicion. He told us that he did not know the contents of the envelope, and afterwards said that everything we wanted was there. That will show you the sort of gentlemen we have to deal with." There were voices, "They're all alike." The chairman of the meeting got up and remarked that he could not understand why the delegate had formed the very opposite opinion of Canon Selwyn that he entertained last week. The delegate replied, "I am giving you my final opinion of him." A member called out, "Why didn't you tell us that on Friday night; you must have known it?" The delegate answered, "I only found it out since, and I announce it now; and I don't care if it is published; it's my opinion that Canon Selwyn is a fraud, and we at any rate want nothing more to do with him." The delegate then informed the meeting that they were quite prepared for further negotiations, and were only awaiting something new from the masters. He also mentioned an item which is fresh, and that is that a new clause has been added to the miners' agreement, viz., that all men on shift work and wheelers shall be paid 10s. a day of eight hours. It was decided to hold three meetings a week, and it was agreed that no person should be allowed to leave the district without obtaining permission from the lodge.

The CHAIRMAN, in conclusion, said that all having entered into the strike, he hoped the men would now behave themselves peaceably and orderly in the course of the dispute. The delegate had a word to say in this matter, and it was that some of the masters wanted men to fill small coal against the wish of the board. He urged upon the unionists the necessity of prevailing upon non-union men not to work, with a view to inducing them to join the association. The meeting then terminated.

The Wallsend miners adopted the conference resolutions. At South Waratah a large meeting was held. A warm discussion ensued upon the sending of a telegram to W. Burt, the miners' secretary in Newcastle, England, but the minutes were eventually adopted. One of the members made a pathetic appeal to be allowed to work his horse teams, and he was informed that he would not be interfered with so long as his work did not touch upon the collieries.

Several hundred miners went off to Lake Macquarie this evening on pleasure excursions. The rumour circulated yesterday to the effect that the Great Northern Colliery had accepted an offer from the Victorian Railways to supply 100,000 tons of coal at 12s. is confirmed to-day. The acceptance, however, is a conditional one, providing the mine can be worked. With a view of securing correct information on the subject, I rode out this afternoon to the Great Northern mine, at Teralba, 18 miles from Newcastle, and interviewed Mr. Thomas, secretary of the lodge. He informed me that a meeting had been held during the morning touching the question, but nothing in the shape of a definite proposal had been placed before them. Mr. Reece, the delegate, was present, and the matter was discussed in an informal manner, but no decision of any kind was arrived at. The miners view the idea very favourably indeed, and admit candidly that they will go to work for the company at an increase of wages if the other lodges give them permission to do so. They think the offer a splendid one for aiding in the development of the mine, and they state their willingness to give half their earnings to the strike fund. They will not, however, do anything without the full consent of the miners. The Great Northern mine requires opening up, there being only 85 men employed there now, whereas, if the work is allowed to proceed, over 200 additional men will be added. The miners estimate that with 300 men they could raise 100 tons a day, and easily fulfil Mr. Speight's order of 100,000 tons in 12 months. The secretary is very dubious about permission being granted; in fact, he assured me it could not be granted. Mr. Thomas further stated that if the strike continued for another week the miners would use all their efforts to take the miners out of the southern mines, and thus stop all supplies in the hope of getting their demands complied with. The authorities of the Great Northern Coal Company stationed up here are very hopeful of being able to carry out the contract, but the opinion of the delegates is entirely the other way, Mr. Goundry having informed me that the idea could not be entertained at the present stage.

Another development has come about. Mr. Brunker, M.L.A., arrived this afternoon with fresh proposals in the shape of negotiations. He says that both masters and men should be thoroughly satisfied with the stand they have taken up, and the vindication achieved, so to speak, of their dignity and honour; that now each party should accede to a wish to produce an agreement upon a given date, all work to be permitted in the meantime. Mr. Brunker went out to Hamilton this evening in search of Mr. Curley, but the result of his interview is not yet known.

The citizens were called upon to-day to sign a requisition to the Mayor for the holding of another public meeting at an early date. The Mayor being still indisposed, the decision and date are not fixed. The coal trimmers held a meeting last night, and discussed the means to be taken with regard to the trimming of small coal in the loading of vessels chartered to remove special lots to Melbourne. A resolution was unanimously carried that they would not trim any coal handled by non-union labour. The topmen or mechanics and pumping-men at the Hetton and Ferndale Collieries have all been ordered to cease work at once by the miners who have struck work there. It is understood that these men will not cease work, for they feel that the collieries would be ruined by the flooding in a couple of months' time. This high-handed proceeding on the part of the miners is giving rise to much angry feeling in Newcastle. The miners' delegates have convened a meeting for Thursday for the purpose of discussing the Great Northern Company's contract, for 100,000 tons of coal and its bearing upon the miners and the present crisis. At present parties are very reticent, and decline to give any information. The same action taken in regard to the Hetton Colliery has been taken in connection with the Ferndale. No difficulty is now expected in bringing down coal from Greta, although some pretty warm language on the subject has been used. The Railway Department has hitherto relied upon Lambton to supply sufficient coal for the trains between Newcastle and Singleton, but arrangements have now been made to get a large supply from the vicinity of Rix's Creek. The only question which has now to be settled is some minor matter, as to the amount to be paid for haulage rates.

EXTRAORDINARY ACTIVITY IN THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT.

WOLLONGONG, TUESDAY.

Extraordinary activity prevails in the coal trade. Since Monday, Mount Pleasant has extended the hours of labour, the daymen working 10 hours, and are paid accordingly. It is reported that Mr. Nicholson, the miners' secretary, has had a communication from Newcastle, stating that whilst the Illawarra miners carry on their usual trade they will not be interfered with; but if they supply any of the Newcastle contracts they will be forthwith called out. The Fiado, one of Howard Smith's colliers, arrived here to-day for a cargo of coal; but the harbour being full of vessels awaiting cargo, she was obliged, under orders from her owners, to proceed to Bellambi for as much coal as she could get there, and thence to the North Illawarra Company to fill up. Although the Fiado is the largest vessel that has entered this port, there would have been no difficulty in loading her had the coal been available. The dilatoriness of the Government regarding the loopline is severely commented upon. The completion of this work would considerably increase the output of coal from the Brokers Nose Colliery, and possibly in the case of easterly weather other mines might avail themselves of the shipping facilities at Wollongong.

MELBOURNE, TUESDAY.

The question as to the effect of the strike on the Harbour Trust will be considered by that body to-morrow on a report from the Works Committee, which states that the works of the Trust requiring coal can be carried on for about a month. In prospect of the strike at Newcastle outlasting that time the report will recommend that notice be given on the 1st proximo to the men in those parts of the Trust's service which are affected by the want of coal that their services be dispensed with on 30th proximo until the plant can resume work.

Mr. Vasey, secretary of the Gas Company, returned to-day from Sydney. He is more satisfied than ever that the company will be able, with a reduced pressure, to continue lighting for at least a month longer. The reduction of pressure was put in operation last night. So far the company have not heard any complaints.

It is stated that the steamer Nemesis will probably be laid up, but not the Elingamite, as was previously reported. The supply of firewood coming forward is wholly inadequate to the demand. Some 40 trucks only came in to-day, whereas upwards of 200 ought to have come to meet the full requirements. The wood merchants waited upon the railway authorities, and pointed out their necessities. The authorities asked them to indicate where the principal stores of wood were, and the department would endeavour to meet their requirements. Wood advanced 1d. per cwt. to-day.

The coal importers, having suspended contracts, are supplying large contractors at 35s. per ton, being an increase of 15s. on the contract price, and private customers at 44s. to 46s. per ton.

At a meeting of the Employers' Union, to-night, a number of manufacturers stated that unless the supplies of coal, which were rapidly diminishing, could be replenished in the course of a few days, they would have to largely curtail, if not altogether suspend, operations.

In consequence of the strike, the price of firewood at Ballarat was raised 1s. per ton to-day.

HOBART, TUESDAY.

Many orders have been received here for coal from South Australia and Western Australia. Only a portion can be supplied owing to the want of men. Active arrangements are being made at Launceston to facilitate the shipment of coal. Some miners have already arrived from Newcastle, and have proceeded to the Fingal coal mines.

BRISBANE, TUESDAY.

At a meeting of the Trades and Labour Council to-night, it was decided to support the Newcastle miners on strike, and to recommend that the affiliated societies do the same.

Strong complaints are being made by those interested in the coal trade at the want of confederation shown by the Railway Department, and the deficiency of the rolling stock to convey coal from the pits. On the other hand it is asserted that the department, in view of the increased demand, is doing its utmost to ship coal as it arrives as expeditiously as possible. That the Department has always been able to meet the demands for trucks, and considerable delay occurs through the coal being supplied in driblets at the pit's mouth. The traffic-manager has, however, suggested the desirableness of obtaining 100 extra hopper-trucks. It has not yet been found possible to meet the present demand for coal. The steamship Rockton, leaving to-night for Melbourne could only get about 900 tons in place of 1500 tons. The B. I. O. A. Company have ordered 2000 tons for the steamer Waroonga, leaving next Monday for Melbourne. About half-a-dozen Newcastle miners have arrived here, but whether simply with the object of getting employment is not known.

THE SITUATION IN SYDNEY.

The masters still remain inactive, although they do not view with complete serenity the rumoured threats of the men to resist all attempts to work the mines with "foreign" labour. The consensus of opinion is, that the miners are a determined body, and if inflamed by reckless agitators consequences of a serious nature might follow. Still the hope prevails that the men, having forced the fight, will allow wise counsel to sway their actions, and that they will not endeavour to cover their retreat from the position they have taken up by outbursts of passion. Mr. Curley in the message to the labour organisations alleging that the "gist of the whole question was the unequal distribution of wealth," has, so it is believed by the masters, taken a step which cannot be other than fatal to the success of the cause of the men. It has shown that the cause of the strike is not that put forth prior to the crisis, but the present situation is the outcome of a design of serious import. "Mr. Curley having shown his hand," said one master, "has done the greatest service that could possibly have been rendered to us. It is not the master colliers who have to be on their guard against the success of such a doctrine, but the whole colony. If the workingmen are true to themselves and patriotic in feeling, they will not be cajoled into supporting a scheme for upsetting the peace and prosperity of the colony."

Complaint was made yesterday that the masters are too indifferent in the matter. Some think that the time has come when the masters should be called together—associated and non-associated—to fully consider their position. The conclusion is, that as all the collieries are similarly affected, there should be no distinction; all should unite for the common weal. The probable length of the strike does not cause the masters anxiety, but the contention is that when the men do give in, as they must, the masters should be prepared with the conditions under which work should be resumed.

Mr. Chadwick, the manager of the Great Northern colliery, on being questioned as to the terms of the offer made to the company by the Victorian railway authorities, said:—"The offer that has been made to us is for 10,000 tons of coal, the price of which has not been arranged. The acceptance of the offer depends upon the men. An offer has been made to the men to work on the tribute system. That offer the men could not accept until the matter had been submitted to the delegates. I believe the men were willing to accept the offer, but they had to obey the rules of the union. The delegates will not meet until Thursday, when the matter will be settled. We hope the matter will be arranged. Whether it will or not it is impossible at present to say."

A gentleman who was with Mr. Chadwick at the time the above statement was made said: "The men have no liberty. Ours is the best seam of coal to work in the northern district. We offered the men 1s. per ton less than the standard rate because of the ease with which the coal could be won. The men accepted this, but the union stopped them, and so we had to pay the same rate as was paid for the dirtiest seam of coal in the district."

The rates paid to the men still occupy much of the discussion appertaining to the strike. Yesterday a representative of the Herald was shown the pay-sheet for the past week of the West Wallsend new mine. Taking the 39 men on the first part of the sheet, the average earnings for each man was £3 7s. 6d., which average included those men who had not worked full time, and in one case the man had only worked a brief spell, his wage being but £1.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—At the present time the sympathy of the public is being solicited for the hewers or getters of coal in the Newcastle district, in consequence of the difficulty of their work, and the inadequate remuneration received for same. It is not my intention to enter upon the merits of the case, but merely place before your readers certain facts concerning the earnings of the hewers at the Stockton Colliery from the 7th January up to the 4th August. Fully one-third of the men do not remain in the pit full time, having an arrangement with their mates to do the filling, after the coal has been cut, blasted, and fallen, consequently they have their afternoons to build houses, make gardens, or devote to sport. In the pay-sheets hereunder mentioned there are 97 or more men and boys employed waiting upon these 200 hewers, bringing and taking away skips, lifting, screening, and shipping coal, also keeping the mine in an efficient state, so that the coal won can be taken from them with despatch. In taking out the earnings of the men, I have not made any deduction when any two men were off work for a day in a pay-sheet, but given them the benefit of same. Had I done so the average earnings would have been more. The pay-sheets give the following results:—7th to 21st January, 10 days' work, 198 men, £1118 7s. 4d., equal to 11s. 2d. per day for each man; 21st January to 4th February, 9 days' work, 205 men, £1107 15s. 10d., equal to 12s. per day for each man; 4th February to 18th February, 11 days' work, 204 men, £1325 19s., equal to 11s. 8d. per day for each man; 18th February to 3rd March, 11 days' work, 202 men, £1304 11s. 2d., equal to 11s. 8d. per day for each man; 3rd March to 17th March, 11 days' work, 200 men, £1323 3s. 6d., equal to 12s. per day for each man; 17th March to 31st March, 10 days' work, 200 men, £1237 13s. 1d., equal to 12s. 4d. per day for each man; 31st March to 14th April, 10 days' work, 206 men, £1238 10s. 3d., equal to 12s. per day for each man; 14th April to 28th April, 11 days' work, 192 men, £1307 15s. 9d., equal to 12s. 4d. per day for each man; 28th April to 12th May, 11 days' work, 200 men, £1429 6s. 3d., equal to 12s. 10d. per day for each man; 12th May to 26th May, 10 days' work, 204 men, £1498 14s. 2d., equal to 14s. 7d. per day for each man; 26th May to 9th June, 11 days' work, 196 men, £1360 4s. 9d., equal to 12s. 7d. per day for each man; 9th June to 23rd June, 10 days' work, 200 men, £1274 16s. 5d., equal to 12s. 9d. per day for each man; 23rd June to 7th July, 11 days' work, 204 men, £1377 7s. 1d., equal to 12s. 3d. per day for each man; 7th July to 21st July, 10 days' work, 204 men, £1246 1s. 6d., equal to 12s. 2d. per day for each man; 21st July to 4th August, 11 days' work, 204 men, £1369 6s. 8d., equal to 12s. 1d. per day for each man. Making a synopsis of the pay sheet, 7th to 21st January, I find the following:—6 men earn £56 18s. 10d. for 10 days' work, equal to 18s. 7d. per day for each man; 10 men earn £71 12s. 3d. for 10 days' work, equal to 14s. 2d. per day for each man; 16 men earn £107 10s. 5d. for 10 days' work, equal to 13s. 5d. per day for each man; 22 men earn £137 19s. 7d for 10 days' work, equal to 12s. 6d. per day for each man; 42 men earn £241 3s. 4d. for 10 days' work, equal to 11s. 5d. per day for each man; 52 men earn £274 1s. 6d. for 10 days' work, equal to 10s. 6d. per day for each man; 50 men earn £230 1s. 7d. for 10 days' work, equal to 9s. 2d. per day for each man. And if all the other pay-sheets were treated in a similar manner, the result would be equal, or better. The only reason why 50 men earn an average of 9s. 2d. per day is they are inferior workmen, or do not devote their full recognised labour time hewing coal. In conclusion, it is merely necessary to say the labour is conducted under the most favourable conditions of good ventilation, high roads, and a perfectly dry floor. The seam of coal is nine feet high. I am, &c., M. C. COWLISHAW.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—All the efforts made to avoid a strike having failed, it now becomes the bounden duty of all interested and disinterested (and they are few) parties to do what they can to end the devastating war now begun between capital and labour in the Northumberland district. The means to carry on the war on behalf of the mine-owners has no doubt been long since subscribed, in the shape of reserve funds put away at each half-yearly meeting of the shareholders of the many companies who own the same. Add to this the great loss that must take place through the mines standing idle, and who can count the cost to them? But however great their loss may be, it will be small in comparison to that of the miners, and the thousands who are depending on the fruits of their labour to keep them fully employed; and I am afraid that neither parties have calmly and fully considered their position before taking the final step. For six thousand men and their families to live means at least £8000 per week to be found; and where is this to come from at this period of depression in every trade in New South Wales? Those only who have been connected with strikes know the fearful amount of suffering and misery through which man, wife, and child (especially the two latter) have to go when a strike continues for any length of time, and I am fully convinced that would capitalists—amongst whom are some of our most warm-hearted and generous men, men who are ever ready to put their hands in their pockets and reply most liberally when the cry for help is made—I say that would they just enter for one minute the homes of those who are the real sufferers by this baneful curse, and have the doors of the safe thrown open before them, and see, as I have, nothing but a dry crust of bread for the wife and little ones to live upon and keep body and soul together, all source of supply cut off but the miserable pittance of 7s., 9s., and 12s. per week, supplied from that most uncertain source called the strike fund (starvation fund would be a more appropriate name)—capital, I say, would not stand so much upon its dignity, but would meet labour more willingly than it has done in the past, and above all in the present dispute, and by so doing they would be the gainers, for they would get the majority of their employees to stand up and defend them, which at present they cannot do on account of the chasm that divides them. This spirit of independence—or, more truthfully speaking, I-know-thee-not-ism—requires to be taken by the neck and strangled, not only by the employers but by the employes, and the sooner it is done the sooner will capital and labour find their level, and work harmoniously together for each other's good. I have asked above the all-important question to the miners, Where are they to get the sinews of war to carry on the same? I know not the amount of funds in the hands of the miners' executive body. I only know the amount of British pluck and endurance many of them have shown in the past when called upon to stand up for and defend what they believed to be their rights; but the cost of all their past struggles, if put together, will not amount to the cost of this one, should it continue but for a few weeks. I am connected with no trades organisation in New South Wales, and, in consequence, may not be in possession of many facts that prominent trades unionists may know; but I am in possession of one fact (and would it were not so for the miners' sake), that the cry for help has been sent forth to the world, and couched in such terms as cannot meet with the approval of many trades unionists who are such in the true spirit of the word, and who, like myself, are willing to help a just and righteous cause to the end, however remote that end may be. If the words used about "the more equal distribution of wealth," and "working the mines to their own advantage," are those of Mr. Curley or Mr. Goundry (and I have my doubts, for often words are put into the mouths of chairmen and general secretaries by way of motions and communication by the majority vote of members, that they may totally disagree with, but to which they are compelled to put their names, and therefore are credited with being the authors of the same), if such words are theirs, I say unhesitatingly that another grave mistake has been made, and their cause will no doubt suffer thereby. If the statements made in the Herald's issue of the 25th inst. and to-day are true regarding wages, the miners are the very last men in our land that should have issued to the world such a manifesto as the one referred to, for they have no cause to ask for themselves a more equal distribution of wealth. In speaking thus, I, no doubt, shall be accused by many trades-unionists as doing the cause of the miners no good, and shall, no doubt, reap my reward. Be this as it may, I have only one desire, and that is that the public, be they trades-unionists or not, shall have laid before them the fullest information as to the real cause of the dispute, and judge for themselves who are the parties deserving their support. Wrongs, I know, require righting in connection with the miners, and I ask the miners to withhold nothing from those who are asked, morally and otherwise, to assist them. Four-fifths of the public know nothing about the many duties connected with their work—the many dangers and heavy responsibilities that rest upon their shoulders, and, no doubt, place them in the same rank as the common labouring man, and only entitled to the same remuneration for their toil; but I hold that there is no labourer in our land, skilled or not, that should receive more consideration and pay than the man who, by his daily risk of life and limb, contributes so much to the wealth and comfort of the world; and I ask the public to take this view of the miner and the remuneration he receives; and not only the public, but his employers, especially those who, no doubt, have never known only by imagination what a coalmine is. They, having so many shares, receive their dividends on same, and are satisfied with the risk they have incurred. Those who remember the late Lambton strike know full well how damaging to the miners' cause was the pay sheets that were repeatedly published of the earnings of many of their number in certain portions of the Lambton mine, and there is no doubt that the same end is desired by placing the two referred to before the public, and that end will be gained if other pay-sheets are not forthcoming to counterbalance them, and any support that would have been forthcoming on the score of low wages will not be given. I would then say to the miners, make known through the press your every grievance you require removing, publish every pay-sheet for the past three months, and let us know from whom you have asked for help, the why and wherefore you require the same, and there is no doubt, if your cause is a just one, you will by so doing receive a far greater share of support than you would by having everything you do under a bushel, and keeping all but a favoured few in the dark. Actions speak stronger than words, and I trust that some of our disinterested men, so far as the mines are concerned, of Sydney, men of determination and large hearts, will speedily take up the settlement of the matter. It requires your willing co-operation as much as a flood, a war, a cotton famine, or a Bulli relief fund. Nip the evil in its bud, and that as speedily as possible: it is, as Mr. Perry says, "of such national importance, and should not be delayed." Let there be a meeting convened at once, and from that meeting a committee appointed, to obtain from both parties the fullest information that can be obtained as to the cause of dispute, and let the public know from them who are deserving of support, and there is no doubt this will be one of the many levers they may use to bring to a speedy end this war of desolation.

In conclusion, let me say with other correspondents that the time has come when something must be done to put a stop to the unsatisfactory state of things at present existing between capital and labour, and I would humbly submit the following (to be improved upon)—That a board of conciliation be appointed by the Government, consisting of five persons, two nominated by the Chamber of Commerce and two by the electors of Canterbury, Cumberland, North Cumberland, and Illawarra, and one by the Government, the said board to hear all disputes between capital and labour; and, I will even go further, to arbitrate between contractors and the Government, as in the late dispute between Cobb and Co. and the Government, each of the parties having a dispute to place in the hands of the Colonial Treasurer the sum of £100, the same to defray the expenses of same; and another duty I would impose on them would be that all bylaws of trades-unionism should be submitted to them, so that they might say whether they were worthy of governing the body by whom they were made or not. I am, &c., JAS. COOK.

August 27.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The question of a strike occurring in a country a quarter of a century ago was not considered to be a serious matter, except to the parties immediately concerned. Generally the question in dispute was speedily settled, long before any serious injury was inflicted and caused a permanent loss to trade. At the present day a strike is of greater importance—at least we in Australia have found so by experience. The unions in every branch of trade and labour have so organised themselves as to present so formidable a power against capital, that those immediately interested should face the question in such a manner as to settle the question of wages, so that the prosperity of the colony shall not be effected or injured. Working men deserve remuneration for their labour which should be sufficient to enable them to bring up and educate their families so as to fit them to cope with any other individual in the country. Should it so happen that a genius can be found among the labouring class, there is ample opportunity for him to rise above the dependence of a daily wage. But the large majority of mechanics and labourers will have to be content with a fair day's wage, and give in return a fair day's work. When we compare the condition of the mechanic and labourer of to-day with those of half a century ago, it will be obvious to the most obstinate agitator that there is a vast change for the better. For this we, as Englishmen, have every reason to be proud. But there is a limit to all good things, and the agitators of to-day may by injudicious and idiotic measures undo much of the good which has been effected in the position of the working man. What is attempted to be done in New South Wales at the present time by these agitators deserves more than passing notice, and requires those who have the prosperity of the colony at heart to face the question in a determined manner and deal with it from a broad point of view. Though we congratulate ourselves as colonists on the excellent condition of our mechanics and labourers, we must not shut our eyes to the fact that this prosperity is mainly owned by English-speaking workmen. In the four corners of the world men, women, and children are paid very moderate wages, in some cases utterly insufficient. On account of the vast strides made in steam communication and the facilities afforded to the countries of the world by commercial treaties, this low-paid labour is brought into competition with that which is well-paid in this colony. Thus have we been increasing the wages of English-speaking workmen, while those of the Continent and Asia remain low, enabling the manufacturers of those countries to be in a position to undersell Australians. Hence we are brought face to face with the fact that the price of labour rules the price of the exports of each country, consequently there is very slight hope that Australia will export manufactured goods under existing conditions. But the present strikes among the miners and shearers is attacking our mineral and pastoral wealth. If labour demands such an exorbitant price that it appears the coal proprietors and pastoralists cannot pay, these sources of wealth will eventually retrograde. How far the present demands are within the bounds of justice is a matter deserving the serious consideration of the colonists generally. If the bush lawyers and miners' agitators are to be the guides what eventually will be the result? Nothing short of increase of wages. Where will it stop? If the wages of Australian workmen are compared with those of any other country in the world it will be found that the Australian labourer is the best paid. Why, then, will the honest labourers who are thus paid be misled by the creatures who are leading them and this fair country to destruction? At the same time these agitators are living like parasites upon the wages of the honest sons of the soil. Surely, the bitter strife and destruction of the iron trades in this colony ought to be a warning to those who are susceptible to warning. Toilers of this fair country, beware! I am, &c., JUSTICE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—At this juncture, when the action of the Newcastle miners has to a great extent paralysed the coal trade of the colony, it is meet that the public of New South Wales, and indeed, all our coal customers in the neighbouring colonies and in foreign ports should know what are our coal resources, and to what extent and for how long the Newcastle mining interests are likely to jeopardise our trade. Independently of the Newcastle field there are several inland districts in the colony where coal is more or less abundant, viz., Lithgow, Mudgee, and New England; but there is only one coalfield occupying a similar position in relation to its distance from a seaboard. The district I refer to is that of Illawarra, whose coalfields, it may not be generally known, have a proved area greater than those of Newcastle and Lithgow combined. The Illawarra coal measures exist, and their quality has been proved from the Holt-Sutherland Estate, 14 miles from Sydney (where the top seam was found at a depth of 2500ft.), to Jamberoo Mountains, about 79 miles south (where they are found over 1000ft. above sea level), a total distance of 56 miles; and for 35 miles of this distance, commencing at Clifton (34 miles from Sydney), and going south, the coal is above sea level, and worked by adit into the ranges. The qualities of these coals have been satisfactorily tested, and it is acknowledged that for the purpose of generating steam they are unsurpassed by any coal in Australia. They have for many years, in consequence of this quality and by reason of their economy, been exclusively used by all the large ocean mail steamers. As can be seen by the difference in the levels, the Illawarra coal dips towards Sydney at an average fall of about one chain to one mile. They also dip in a westerly direction; consequently it is impossible to say the extent of the area in which they are to be found. It is sufficient to know that in the longest drive westerly in the district (1½ miles) no difference has been found in the size or quality of the coal seam. It is estimated that the aggregate thickness of the Illawarra coal measures exceeds 80ft., the top seam, best known as the Bulli, being the only one at present worked to any extent. This seam varies from 5ft. to 10ft. in thickness, and is free from the bands peculiar to the Newcastle coal.

The soft character of the Illawarra coal renders the hewing of it a far more easy operation than that of the more hard and bituminous coal in the northern district, and enables men who have had no previous experience in mining, after a few weeks' practice, to earn as good a wage as the majority of the miners, so that skilled labour is not a necessity. It has been estimated that, in the consumption of coal, four tons are used for generating steam to every one ton used for gas and household purposes, consequently the Illawarra coal, were it always available, would be in the greatest demand, and in the opinion of those best acquainted with its enormous coal resources the Illawarra field will, when better shipping facilities are provided, become the principal mining district of the colonies.

The want of better shipping facilities is, however, the main drawback. At present 600 tons of coal is about the extreme cargo taken by any vessel from either the open roadstead jetties, or the port of Wollongong, and the heavy cost of transhipping into larger vessels in Sydney, to say nothing of the damage done to the coal by the double handing, places the coal interest of Illawarra in a very handicapped position. A movement was started in Wollongong in December last (which has the support of the present Government, and particularly that of Sir Henry Parkes and also received the strong approval of the leading daily papers) for the formation of a Wollongong Harbour Trust, with power to deepen the entrance to Wollongong port, and by canal and excavation form a large dock in the direction of Tom Thumb Lagoon. Sir Henry Parkes pledged himself to pass the necessary bill for the formation of the trust, and but for the hasty conclusion of last session this measure would probably ere now have become law. It has been carefully estimated that the expenditure of £250,000 will not only make a harbour of refuge at Wollongong, but will provide a safe dock of sufficient depth of water to allow for the loading of vessels up to 4000 tonnage, and provide facilities for wharfage sufficient for an output of 2,000,000 tons per annum, and that the extent of the coal area is such that this large output will make little impression on the resources of the field. In conclusion, I may state I consider, in a matter of vital importance to the community, that no delay should occur in the carrying out of the proposals of the promoters of the Wollongong Harbour Trust, as a safe coal port of the dimensions noted would be a source of immense wealth to the commerce of the colony, and would by the dissimilar character of its coal from other fields prove a great factor in preventing strikes such as that now occurring in Newcastle. I am, &c., ILLAWARRA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—With a view to avert the threatened calamity that may occur to the public should we continue long without coal, I beg to suggest, through the medium of your valuable paper, that the Government at once purchase a coal mine, and employ prison labour in working the mine, so as to enable the supplies of coal for railway and other Government purposes to be kept up. Coal-mining is employment that prisoners could well be employed at with great advantage to the State. I have no doubt that sufficient skilled miners could be found among our prison population to at once start mining. Had the Government a State coal mine long-time prisoners could be taught the art of mining with advantage to themselves and the State. I am, &c., ONE OF THE PUBLIC.

THE TURF.

The August re-union of the Sydney Driving Park Club, Limited, takes place at Moore Park this afternoon, when a varied programme, comprising half a dozen events, should provide good sport. The liberal support accorded to the club of late has encouraged them to introduce a number of improvements in connection with the track and its surroundings, due attention having been given to the comfort and convenience of their patrons. Visitors to the ground can reach there by tram or 'bus, and will be landed at the entrance gate by either conveyance. The proceedings will start punctually at 2 p.m., and should be concluded at 5 p.m., so that the interest will be sustained throughout. There are 26 acceptors for the Time Handicap Trot, and with such performers on the track as Little Dick, Grey Echo, Cyclone, Chanticleer, L. Jeanne, Native Cat, Minnie, and Duchess, a capital contest should be witnessed. The most interesting performance, however, should be the attempt of Dr. Slate's trotting horse Huon (imp.) to break his colonial record of 2.33½, and for which the club offer a stake of 25 sovs. The horse will be accompanied by a runner, and Mr. George Hill has been appointed as timekeeper on behalf of Dr. Slate, while the official timeist (Mr. F. Skinner) will act for the club. The effort will be well worth witnessing, and, judging from the form shown of late by the handsome son of Almont jun., he should accomplish the task. The galloping races should also prove interesting. The New South Wales Naval Volunteer Artillery Band has been engaged for the occasion, and will render a programme of popular music during the intervals between the races.

Jack was struck out of the Canterbury Park Spring Handicap yesterday.

The hurdleracer Minstrel Boy has been purchased by Mr. Anthony, and Mr. T. Sampson has secured the racehorse Mitchell for £150.

In connection with the race meeting at Rosehill on the 19th of September, in aid of the Carrington Centennial Hospital for Convalescents, we are informed that Messrs. R. Beeston and Co., the sole agents in Australia for the Waltham Watch Company, have presented a trophy, in the shape of a handsome 50-guinea watch, to be run for. It is proposed to give the prize for a two-mile welter handicap, amateur riders. The event is included in the programme, and should attract a long list of competitors.

Mr. J. Toohey's nomination of Diomed for the A. J. C. Second Hurdle Race did not reach the office until 9 o'clock yesterday morning, and consequently could not be accepted.

The weights for the Murtee Point Handicaps are due to-day.

Business in the betting market was quiet yesterday, and was principally confined to the Rosehill Cup, Hawkesbury Handicap, V. R. C. Derby, and Melbourne Cup, while the A. J. C. Derby, and Metropolitan Stakes, and V. A. T. C. Caulfield Cup attracted little or no attention. Some transactions were written at the following quotations:—Rosehill Cup: 6 to 1 v. Keith, 10 to 1 each v. Rebel and Lamond, 12 to 1 each v. Invader and Frisco. Hawkesbury Handicap: 8 to 1 v. Osprey, 10 to 1 each v. Plutarch and First Flaneur, 12 to 1 each v. Keith and Touchstone, 14 to 1 each v. Lyndhurst and Locksley, 15 to 1 v. Harold, 16 to 1 each v. Lancer and Frisco, 20 to 1 each v. Cardigan and Leichhardt. V. R. C. Derby: 3 to 1 offered (4 to 1 wanted) v. Volley, 6 to 1 v. Lonsdale. Melbourne Cup: 100 to 7 v. Malua, 100 to 6 each v. Carlyon and The Australian Peer, 100 to 5 each v. Bravo and Matador, 100 to 4 v. Bowmont, 100 to 3 to 100 to 1 v. any other.

The second forfeit for the V. A. T. C. Caulfield Cup was due and payable yesterday, but the defections from the list have been very light, and, with the exception of Niagara and Lady Betty, the malcontents were not of much importance. Those that remain in are published in another column.

A thick fog overhung the course at Randwick for some time yesterday morning, and it was difficult to tell what was done by Here's Luck, Sloth, the Clarence River pair, Stephanotis and Falsetto, and some others, who were out early. Elsie rattled over a mile and a-quarter with the Queensland trio, Pirate, La Grange, and Lyndhurst; and Jeremy Diddler went down to Recruit at the end of a pretty fast five furlongs. Theorist and Greywing from Bananaland, went average work, and so did The Miner, Monarch, and Malta. Frisco, who is in great heart, went a mile and a-half, and he will be a bad horse to beat when in the entire possession of the confidence of his immediate friends. Matador performed the same kind of task and is very well, while Aristocrat, who still goes very short, was sent left-handed on the sand track. Phaon and Pasha performed creditably over a mile and a-quarter, and the pair are rapidly getting into form. Lady Marion and The Gift were sent their usual task, and the lucky little mare appears none the worse after her exertions on Saturday last. The Jewel did a strong twice round, and Honeydew also performed a solo over the same distance. After the usual canter, The Queen and First Flaneur were sent along for a mile and a-quarter, and "Her Majesty" appeared to have the best of the bout, though such was not the case when they performed together last week. Mitchell did a serviceable once round, and it may be mentioned that the son of Glorious has been disposed of by Mr. Kennedy to Mr. T. Sampson for 150 guineas, with winning contingencies. Thetis had Lord of the Lake for a companion over a mile and a-quarter, and Lamond rattled over the same distance alone in great form. Pearlshell ran a pretty fair mile; and Golddust beat Whisper Low over a strongly run mile and a-quarter. Tuscarora, Bonnie Spec, Pentagon, Cinaron, Glen Elgin, Ganymede, Glentworth, Rosebud, Albion, Sentence, Southerly Buster, The Wreck, Lancer, Keith, Amina, Maggie, Faith, The Rebel, Pastmaster, Bluenose, and a great number of two-year-olds also worked; while the tan was occupied by Abercorn, Plutarch, Volley, Carlyon, Ensign, The Australian Peer, Arsenal, Melos, Touchstone, and others.

THE MELBOURNE BETTING MARKET.

MELBOURNE, TUESDAY.

The following is the betting on the Caulfield Cup:—Chicago, 1000 to 60 taken; 1000 to 50 taken about Meteor, then 1000 to 60 wanted. The Melbourne Cup and Derby are quiet; 1000 to 60 was offered on the field for the Handicap, with offers to take 20 to 1 about Malua. For the Derby 3 to 1 is wanted about Volley. The only others inquired about are Lonsdale and Lady Betty.

PEDESTRIANISM.

In the 440 yards to be decided this afternoon at Botany, there are 51 competitors, comprising all our best men. The race will be run in six divisions. Special trams are advertised to run during the afternoon to Botany. The first heat of the 440 yards will be started at 3 o'clock.

The Kiama Athletic Club has been registered under the Sir Joseph Banks rules.

BURWOOD HANDICAP.

The running of the Burwood Handicap was concluded at Ireland's running grounds, Burwood, yesterday afternoon, in the presence of a large crowd. The running of several of the competitors was of a peculiar character in several instances. The frown of the judge, however, was sufficient to cause the defaulters to hurry away from the finishing post at the conclusion of the respective races. In the final heat the name of the fourth man was given as C. Donohue, whereas Donohue was run out in the 24th heat on the previous day. The following is the result of the final heat:—

G. Stettler, 25 yards, 1; E. A. Martineer, 21½, 2; W. Gosher, 30, 3; C. Donohue, 17, 4. Time, 15 2-5 seconds. At the pistol shot Gosher broke away with a good lead, but was soon passed by Martineer and Stettler, the latter breasting the tape several inches in front of Martineer.

RIFLE SHOOTING.

The Newington College Cadets and the Scottish Regiment fired a most interesting match on the Paddington Range on Saturday afternoon. The conditions were 10 men a-side, with seven shots at 500 and 600 yards. The wind was not at all favourable to good shooting, yet the aggregates for both teams were excellent, and the match concluded after a most exciting finish in a victory for Newington by one point. This is the first occasion on which the Scottish Regiment has been defeated this year. The following are the scores:—

THE MARITIME DISPUTE.

THE SEAMEN'S UNION AND THE COLLIERY STRIKE.

A LEVY TO SUPPORT THE MINERS.

The Oceanic Steam Navigation Company's R.M.S. Alameda left San Francisco on Saturday last for Sydney. Besides conveying the usual English and American mails, passengers and cargo for Australia, the Alameda also brings back the 21 seamen shipped on the 11th July from Sydney, pursuant to the agreement between Captain Morse and the Maritime Council. The arrival of the men will no doubt be a matter of considerable interest in trades union circles. The unions are rather reticent as to their position at present generally in regard to the maritime dispute. At the regular weekly meeting of the Seamen's Union on Monday evening at the Maritime Hall, Sussex-street, the position of the union in connection with the Hunter River miners' dispute was discussed. It will be remembered that the secretary of the union, and likewise of the Maritime Council, Mr. T. M. Davis, on a recent visit to Newcastle, assured the miners that the seamen would support them in maintaining what they claimed to be their rights. At last evening's meeting the press was not admitted, but we are informed that the Seamen's Union resolved that a levy of £1 per man per month should be struck towards the support of the Hunter River miners; and it was also recommended that the various branches of the Union throughout Australasia should adopt a similar course. As the federation has a membership of about 12,000 seamen, it will be seen that a considerable sum will be raised for the miners should the various branches decide to follow the example of the Sydney branch. The vote of the recent meeting, we are informed, is applicable to about 2000 seamen. Upon the adjournment of the Seamen's Conference recently held at the Maritime Hall, Sussex-street, it was understood that among other questions to be decided upon by the various branches of the union, that of a general strike was to be dealt with. How far the balloting has proceeded in the various branches and with what results we are not officially informed, but it may be inferred that all of the branches have not dealt with the strike question. We are informed that at the meeting of the Seamen's Union on Monday evening it was resolved,—"That the ballot now being taken in connection with the maritime dispute be withdrawn, in order that the union may more effectually assist the miners while out on strike."

It has been claimed by many trades unionists in Sydney that whilst the Oceanic Steam Navigation Company take money out of the colony by way of subsidy, they do not expend any appreciable amount of this subsidy in New South Wales. It appears, however, that a considerable amount is expended in labour alone on the arrival of each vessel at Sydney, and although the seamen are not directly benefited, yet other branches of maritime labour receive some advantage, over £385 being expended per vessel per month.

We have been furnished by the Oceanic S. S. Company with the following statement of expenditure for labour at Sydney on account of San Francisco mail steamers:—

TRADES MOVEMENTS.

A meeting of the board of management of the New South Wales Typographical Association was held at their rooms, Victoria Arcade, last evening. Mr. W. Dunshea (president) occupied the chair. It was decided to engage a band for the forthcoming eight-hour procession, and to invite the master printers to send exhibits. The strike of the Northern coal-miners was briefly discussed, and it was decided to send a letter of sympathy and promise of monetary assistance. The speakers were unanimously of opinion that there was no other course open to the miners than to strike, in the face of the fact that the only step towards conciliation which the masters were prepared to make was the placing before the mediation committee of a sealed document which might, after all, have contained a proposal to work at a very low rate. The following applicants for membership were admitted:—Messrs. J. Nuris, A. Merchant, A. Atkins, C. Houseman, A. A. Wall, J. Booth, J. Starr, J. Stewart, A. Ormes, F. Chapman, W. Elliott, W. M'Arthur, C. Jacobs, H. Ranwell, E. F. Drake, W. Cresswell, G. C. Gillespie, S. Kean, A. V. Hanchard, A. Gorman, W. Banfield. Admitted conditionally:—Messrs. R. Smith, J. Utting, L. Ettore, A. Nelson, J. J. M'Carthy, W. H. Black, H. Hamilton, H. D. Page.

THE QUESTION OF MUNICIPAL TAXATION.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

BATHURST, TUESDAY.

Considerable public interest has been excited here by the publication of interviews with each member of the Bathurst Council, for the purpose of ascertaining the views of that body on the subject of municipal taxation, in order that the delegates to the forthcoming annual meeting of the Municipal Association might know how to vote when the question comes up. Every member of the council denounced the present system of taxing improvements as manifestly unfair, and as calculated to discourage enterprise, while all were in favour of taxing land alone, irrespective of buildings and other improvements. Aldermen Spencer and Halliday represented the council three years ago at the Municipal Conference, and supported resolutions which were unanimously passed in favour of taxation by frontage—that is, taxation based on land irrespective of improvements. Alderman Spencer said the Municipal Association was not an influential body, and the resolutions had produced no effect. The promise of a Local Government Bill had also blocked the way of reform in municipal taxation, as everything was kept waiting for that. Another alderman said that taxation by frontage instead of on property was the main point for which the country would have to strive in the Local Government Bill. If that were denied the Local Government Bill would not be of much account.

Elsewhere will be found the prospectus of the Barrier Ranges and Broken Hill Water Supply Company, Limited. This company, which is to be registered under the Companies Statute, 1864, announces a capital of £250,000, in 250,000 shares of £1 each. The object of the company is to provide Broken Hill and the surrounding district with water for domestic and other purposes. It will be seen from the report of Mr. J. D. Derry, M. Inst., C.E., annexed to the prospectus, that an ample supply of pure water can be obtained by conserving water in the rocky gorges of Stephen's Creek, about 10 miles from the township of Broken Hill. Messrs. T. J. Thompson and Sons, 92, Pitt-street, are the Sydney brokers for the company.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

This was the dullest day experienced for a long time, and the only stocks which in the least varied the monotony of the falling prices were Long Tunnel Extended and Rose of Denmark gold-mining companies, both of which sold rather higher. Ophir Deep Lead, Tasmania, were especially passive, and closed at a much lower buying price owing to the absence of a leading speculator for whom several brokers had purchased, and who are left with shares on their hands. All silver companies' shares were lower. Broken Hill Proprietary fell £2 17s. 6d., British 3s., South Broken 6s, and Block 14 2s. per share. Tin companies were little dealt in. Lower prices were accepted for Lion's Den.

Share Report.—Sales: Federal Bank, 71s.; Tramway Omnibus, 51s. 6d., 52s.; Broken Hill, £236, £235; Block 14, 60s., 55s.; Junction, 29s., 27s. 6d.; South, paid, 70s., 65s.; British Brokens, 42s., 39s.; Centrals, paid, 18s., 17s.; Costigan, 12s.; Lewis Ponds, 14s. 3d., 14s.; New North Broken, 24s. 9d.; Pinnacle Tribute, 9s.; Round Hill, 57s.; Mount Morgan, £16 2s., £15 15s.

BROKEN HILL, Tuesday.

At the Lost and Found claim in the shaft on the ground there is a good lode, with a vein of ironstone, and rich lead and chloride ore. This seems to be carrying down the well, although it is richer in places. The lode goes almost vertically, and looks like permanent. The Southern Cross is producing a very considerable quantity of ore, both galena and carbonate, looking altogether well. The ore heaps are increasing in quantity, and the quality looks better. At the Terrible Dick mine a large amount of work is being carried on at the 50ft. level. The drive on the course of the lode to the south is in a distance of 168ft. Galena, with a little chloride, is being got at the 107ft. level. The drive is in to the south 159ft., yielding fair ore, with an increased proportion of lead. In the 180ft. level the south drive is over 60ft. in, on fair lead ore, with a small amount of native silver in the matrix. A large quantity of ore charged with native silver will be raised when stoping is begun. The smelter is now ready, but some connecting pipes for the new boiler are still wanting. These are expected to arrive within ten days. The capacity of the smelter is equal to 25 to 30 tons of ore daily. There is a good stock of coke on the ground. The Mayflower Mine has produced from the underlie shaft excellent ore, but water having stopped work, the main shaft is now being sunk to cut the lode, at an estimated depth of 100ft. This shaft has reached a depth of 69ft., through hard quartzite. The country now shows signs of changing to a more favourable class of rock for sinking. At the original Victory the underlie shaft is being carried down to the lode formation, carrying a vein of galena. The ore being raised consists of galena and carbonate lead. The vertical shaft is now down a depth of 112ft. At the Great Britain Mine the underlie shaft is a depth of 49ft: a small vein of galena is being followed down. It has hitherto been rather flat, but it is now taking a turn in a more vertical position. The Victoria claim has been stopped for the present. A good parcel of ore has been bagged, and some has been sent away. At the Model Republic some parcels of ore of good quality have, at various times, been sent from the mine. A considerable amount of work is being done. The shaft is down a depth of 50ft. The lode has been followed on the underlie for 15ft. It contains ironstone and chloride, and looks well. Three of the new and two of the old furnaces are now in full work at the Proprietary mine. A third old one will be put in blast soon. The output of bullion for this week will be to the usual amount, notwithstanding that one furnace is not working. The leakage of the dam has been partly remedied, and the supply of water is gradually rising. The water in Jamieson's shaft is also on the increase since sinking was recommenced, but the quantity is not yet so great as formerly. The water in the main shaft on the Brisbane Blocks is decreasing since the repairs were made to the Proprietary dam, thus showing that the presence of water there is due to soaking from the dam. At the North mine a change for the better is coming in the ore; in fact, in the north drive, silicious galena has given place to galena of higher grades and better adapted for concentrating.

CARCOAR, Tuesday.

At Root Hog on the Hill End a syndicate has taken up 40 acres of ground along the Macquarie River. Some weeks ago O'Neill and party discovered there payable gold. The reef is on the surface, some 12in. in width. A party of men are now engaged in working it. On the adjoining lease is the Golden Fleece tunnel, with gold-bearing veins on the surface, which some 18 years ago went about 20oz. to the ton. At Gully Swamp Rowe's battery is now engaged in crushing stone, which is looking well. 105oz. of gold arrived here yesterday from a crushing at Mount M'Donald. Owing to the want of rain most of the sluicing claims in the district are now idle.

CROOKWELL, Tuesday.

The mining industry is again looking better in the Binda and adjacent districts. Quartz showing gold has been found near Markdale.

MORUYA, Tuesday.

It is reported in town that a very rich deposit of gold has been struck in the Mount Coman reef at Nerrigundah.

BOURKE, Tuesday.

The following assay has been made by an undoubted authority of two parcels of stone from Mount Billygoe Prospecting Company's mine:—No. 1. Gold, 12oz. 6dwt. 8gr.; fine silver, 199oz. 10dwt. 18gr. per ton. A portion of this stone was previously considered unpayable. No. 2. Gold, 74oz. 19dwt. 10gr.; silver, 394oz. 2dwt., all the free gold having been removed before assay.

MANAGERS' REPORTS.

Hero Freehold Silver and Gold Mining Company, August 18.—No. 1 tunnel has been extended 12ft.; total from point of striking lode, 64ft. The formation is about the same size as last reported. No. 2 tunnel extended for week 5ft.; total from crosscut, 55ft.; formation about 2ft., showing good silver ore, and from appearances carrying nearly 2oz. of gold to the ton. Am assaying a few samples. Stoping is being carried on in back of this tunnel in order to send down firsts for smelting. Have called for tenders for driving main tunnel.

Costigan South Extended Silver and Lead Mining Company, No Liability.—A further distance of 9ft. in the tunnel, and still passing through serpentine slate country. Am working with two shifts in the 4 Shaft through the gossan lode. The western wall in this drive is turning at a sharp angle to the east. The crosscut in No. 2 shaft has had two hands working on the small copper lode.

Great Western Gold-mining Company, Limited, August 25.—Main shaft has been sunk 9ft., and timbered 35ft.: total depth, 106ft. Reef in prospecting shaft slightly improving in quality. Thirty tons at grass.

Alexandra Hill Gold-mining Company, No Liability (by telegraph), August 27.—Crushing started Saturday. Stone from back shaft. Looking for 2oz. From main workings about 1½oz.

Elsie May Silver Mine, August 17.—Have finished cutting down shaft, and fixed skids and resumed sinking on 3rd instant. Depth of shaft then, 19ft. below 61ft. level; distance sunk up to 13th, 10ft. Have let a contract to sink 40ft. to a party of good miners, at a satisfactory price. The contractors have sunk 7ft. up to date; total, 16ft. for fortnight. The lode for the last 10ft. has opened from a few inches to 2ft. 6in., and carries a fair percentage of fine ore (galena). The formation is excellent, and has every appearance of making larger quantity of ore lower down. The water at present about 600 gallons per day.

Bulga Gold and Silver Company, August 25.—Resumed sinking No. 1 Big Blow shaft. Sunk for week 9ft.; favourable ground. Commenced to drive to west from end of north drive on course of lode. Still shows likely-looking gossan. Raising ore from Alford's shaft which assays satisfactorily. About 10 tons to surface.

Picton Broken Hill Silver Company, August 20.—Crosscut in No. 1 shaft driven 7ft.; total, 23ft. A few patches of hard quartz have been met with. Crosscut in No. 2 shaft driven 7ft. 6in.; total 52ft. Have passed through a soft silicious formation, which may be the hanging-wall, as the crosscut, to all appearances, is now in clear country.

Mount Costigan Lead and Silver Mining Company, Limited, 27th August.—At 45ft. level I am stoping out carbonate ore from back of western lode. The lode is 6ft. wide. At 9eft. level commenced stoping. Black ore in the eastern lode, the direction continuing E.S.E. On the western lode we are crosscutting the lode, and have cut 6ft. of ore solid; we have other 6ft. to cut to get to a shaft. In the north end of the western lode the width is 18in.; we are probably near a bunch of carbonate lead ore. The new main shaft has been sunk 8ft. for the week.

The Mount M'Donald Caledonian Extended Gold-mining Company, Limited, August 22.—Main shaft: Have driven crosscut west 3ft.; ground black slate. New shaft sunk depth 3ft. 6in.; total, 46ft. 6in. We have got a large reef, and showing payable gold.

Alpha Gold-mining Company, Limited, 25th August.—Have sunk the shaft 2ft., making total 66ft. from the 100ft. level; ground black slate running down alongside of reef. Have broken down the stone from the fortnight's sinking, which shows fair gold; present indications show we are getting down on to another shoot of gold; more water is making in bottom of shaft, indicating softer stone.

The Broken Hill Block Silver-mining Company, August 24th.—The diamond drill has sunk a further depth of 8ft. during the past week, making the total depth to be 656ft. Only two and a half full days' work was accomplished in consequence of the machinery being out of order. The ground passed through has proved very hard, composed mostly of glassy quartz, therefore the depth attained has been very small. The main shaft has been sunk 6ft. deeper during the week; making total depth to be 102ft. Water is flowing in in large quantities, but still there is no increase since last report. The country is very hard, which greatly impedes the speedy sinking of the shaft. The hauling machinery and the main engine are both placed in position, and the work of building the engine-house is being pushed on with all possible speed.

COMMERCIAL.

PRODUCE MARKET.—Tuesday.

This morning at Darling Harbour sales limited consignments of forage were to hand, comprising in all, 18 trucks. The auctions were well attended by the trade. For both hay and chaff, there was strong competition at high values, but straw was slack. Business in wood was also fairly animated. At the wharfs small arrivals were forward, principally from the Hunter River, Southern ports, and Tasmania. Business assumed a more active tone than for some time past. Best well-saved green lucerne hay, maize, and potatoes were dearer; other lines unchanged. The following were the quotations realised at Darling Harbour sales:—

LEATHER AND SKIN SALES.

At the weekly auction leather sales yesterday business was slack. The continued dry state of the weather has greatly interfered with country orders, and also many factories are at a standstill in consequence. Kip was easier in price. Tweed was dull of sale. Sole, owing to shippers not operating, was quiet. Messrs. Hill, Clark, and Co., and Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Limited, report sales, prices ranging as follows:—Sole, 7½d to 9½d; kip, best, 12d to 12½d; medium, 10½d to 11d; tweed, 13d to 17½d; yearling tweed, 13d to 18½d; calf tweed, 19d to 21d; waxed calf, to 24½d; harness, brown, 10d to 12d; black, 11d to 11½d; bag, 8s to 10s 6d; bridle, 7s 6d to 10s 3d; basils, 4s to 7s. Large supplies of marsupial skins were brought forward to a full attendance of buyers. The demand was animated for large sizes of kangaroo skins, which maintained late high prices, but small sorts, and also wallaby and opossum skins, were easier in value. Messrs. J. Bridge, Mort and Co., Limited, F. L. Barker, Hill, Clark, and Co., the New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency Co., Limited, and J. H. Geddes and Co. report having transacted business. Quotations: Extra large kangaroo, 100s to 130s per dozen; exceptional heavy and good, to 160s; large, 70s to 95s; medium, 40s to 65s; small, 12s to 30s; very small, 1s to 9s. Only limited catalogues of sheepskins were submitted. Strong competition was manifested throughout the sales, and prices were firm. Messrs. J. H. Geddes and Co., Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Limited, and Hill, Clark, and Co. report:—Best full-woolled skins, 56d to 63d; good butchers' lots, 37d to 52d; medium, 26d to 34d; short, 12d to 20d; lambskins, 9d to 34d; crossbreds, 24d to 30d; good dry skins, 4½d to 5½d; medium, 3d to 4d; short and faulty, 2d to 3d.

It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well-fortified with pure blood, and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold in ½-lb. packets, by grocers, labelled thus—James Epps and Co., Homoeopathic Chemists, London.—[Advt.]

NOTES EXPLANATORY OF MAP.

In the list of stations, the column headed W.T. gives the state of the weather at 9 a.m., b standing for blue sky; c, detached clouds; d, drizzling rain; f, fog; g, gloomy; h, hazy; m, misty; n, frosty; o, overcast; p, passing showers; r, rain; s, snow; t, thunder; u, threatening. The next column, M'x., gives the maximum temperature for previous 24 hours. M'n. the corresponding minimum temperature; R'n. the rain for the previous 24 hours. The symbols used in the map are explained on the margin. At each station the wind symbol points to the direction in which the wind is blowing, is in fact an arrow flying with the wind. A clear circle with it means fine weather, a circle with bar, cloudy weather; and a black spot, raining. Next to this symbol are placed figures denoting the number of miles the wind is moving per hour. Next, a symbol showing the state of the sea; and, lastly, figures denoting the shade temperature at 9 a.m. The barometer curve shows the state of barometers round the coast from Perth to Cooktown:—Pt, Perth; Ay, Albany; Ea, Eucla; CB, Cape Borda; A, Adelaide; Ro, Robe; P, Portland; M, Melbourne; WP, Wilson's Promontory; Go, Gabo; E, Eden; Ma, Moruya; CG, Jervois Bay; WG, Woollongong; S, Sydney; N, Newcastle; PM, Port Macquarie; C, Clarence River; B, Brisbane; R, Rockhampton; Ct, Cooktown. Inland, the state of barometer is given in figures at Albury, Deniliquin, Wentworth, Menindie, Bourke, and Alice Springs. The barometer curve enables one at a glance to trace the depressions, beginning with Western Australia, and passing along eastwards; northerly winds preceding them, and southerly following. The rainfall on Sundays and holidays, when the map is not published, is in all cases included in the quantities shown by the next following map.

WORKING MEN'S TRAMS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I am one of the other two passengers referred to by your correspondent "Ordinary Propriety" in this day's Herald, and I must say that a more barefaced perversion of facts I have seldom seen.

There is no doubt but you attach some importance to the petulant grumbling of this bilious individual, or you would not have given space to his letter. In justice to the men who are in the habit of travelling by this particular tram, I trust you will allow me through your esteemed journal to state that on Friday evening the men who came into the tram were as well conducted as the same number of black-coated gentlemen possibly could be. There was no over-crowding or crushing; there was certainly some cheerful laughing, conversation such as healthy men in body and mind would indulge in, but no roughness.

There is a kind of shabby gentility too prevalent in our public places and conveyances that affects to look down on the working man, forgetting that the most exalted men in this free democratic community have risen from the ranks of the working men. As to his reference to the men being in their working clothes, "O. P." surely did not expect them to come home in evening dress. For my part, I shall feel less contamination in sitting with working men in their working clothes than with a good many frowsy persons of either sex, who think no small dirt of themselves.

Having published "O. P.'s" letter, I trust, sir, you will, in justice, give this room. I am, &c.,

August 28. ANTI-SNOBBERY.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated publicly in court that Dr. J. Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne.—The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, December 31, 1864.

"H.M. Gunboat, Netley, Wick, Scotland. "Dear Sir,—Having had a most distressing and severe cough, which caused me many sleepless nights and restless days, I was recommended by his lordship the Earl of Caithness to try your most invaluable Balsam of Aniseed, and I can assure you with the first dose I found immediate relief, even without having to suspend my various duties, and the first small bottle completely cured me; therefore, I have the greatest confidence in fully recommending it to the million. IMITATIONS. Only articles possessing some special and acknowledged excellence are worth imitating; and thus, induced by the unprecedented success of Powell's Balsam of Aniseed, dishonest traders with reckless audacity have tried to pass off on the public utterly worthless imitations, or to offer a "Balsam" of their own crude compounding. In order, therefore, to protect the public against such fraudulent imitations the well-known Trade Mark—"Lion, Net, and Mouse"—is conspicuously printed on the wrapper of every bottle of Powell's Balsam of Aniseed, and any imitation of the same is forgery, and a breach of the law relating to Trade Marks.

The following letter has been received by Mr. T. Powell, from William Boards, Esq., an eminent agriculturist and land agent, residing at "Nightingale Hall, Edmonton. "Dear Sir,—I have recently suffered much from a most violent cough, proceeding from a tickling in my chest, which no remedy out of many I resorted to could allay. My head was constantly aching, and my whole frame was entirely shaken. Having seen the good effects of your Balsam of Aniseed in several members of my family, I purchased a small bottle, and when going to bed at night took a teaspoonful in two tablespoonfuls of water just warm. The effect was immediate; it arrested the tickling in my chest. I slept well, and arose perfectly restored in the morning, with the exception of debility arising from fatigue by incessant coughing for some days previous. My cough entirely left, and has never returned. Having since heard of a lady in the neighbourhood who for a long time had laboured under a most distressing cough, and who had resorted to every remedy within her knowledge, I sent the remainder of the bottle to her, and that long-standing, obstinate, and (as she thought) incurable cough was perfectly cured.—I am, dear sir, yours very truly, "WM. BOARDS."

FOR GENERAL USE IN PLACE OF SUGAR SACCHARIN. One Pound equals about 280lb. of Cane Sugar. One of the chief uses of SACCHARIN will be in the enrichment of the diet of those persons who are forbidden the use of sugar, and who will now be able to enjoy a sweet flavouring in the various articles of diet formerly denied them. It is particularly applicable to those suffering from diabetes, gout, rheumatism, dyspepsia, obesity, and liver complaints, or any form of disease where the use of sugar is objectionable. It cannot "create acidity," as sugar often does, since it is non-fermenting and antiseptic—characteristics of very great importance. Agents for N. S. Wales, ELLIOTT BROTHERS, Limited.

TO SYNDICATES, MINING SPECULATORS, and OTHERS.
HILLGROVE MINES, near ARMIDALE.
THE CELEBRATED and FAR-FAMED SUNLIGHT REEF.
After innumerable delays and vexatious law suits, the Title Deeds under the Real Property Act have at length been issued to the legitimate owners—JOHN MOORE, JNO. M'BEAN, and PETER SPEARE.
The property consists of 80 acres freehold, through which the famous Sunlight Reef runs, admitted by all parties to be the largest and richest reef yet discovered, not excepting the well-known and justly celebrated Baker's Creek Reef, which it adjoins. Also, 180 acres mineral conditional purchase, adjoining the 80 acres freehold, taken up in 1881, and on which over £3500 have been spent in sinking shafts, tunnelling, &c., and from which over 1000 tons of antimony have been obtained, which assayed before shipment 35 to 65 per cent. of antimony and from 2 to 4 ounces of gold per ton; and there are undeveloped reefs as rich as the reefs on the 80 acres.
The whole block of 260 acres is impregnated with gold and antimony reefs, and is beyond all doubt one of the richest and most valuable mineral blocks of land in Australia.
For cogent private reasons, which will be explained to any purchaser, Two-thirds (⅔) Interest in the Whole Block are now submitted for Sale.
Offers and applications addressed to the undersigned will receive prompt attention. All information will be supplied by JOHN MOORE, care of Heyde, Todman, and Co., York street, Sydney, up to WEDNESDAY, the 29th instant. After that date address JOHN MOORE, Sen., Armidale.

UNIVERSAL PROVIDERS. FAMILY DRAPERS.
CLOSE TO THE RAILWAY STATION.
PREPARATIONS FOR OUR SPRING TRADE proceed apace.
In the CARTHAGE, which arrived a week or so ago, was a good share of SPRING LINES, and the JUBILEE BOAT, OCEANA, has a MOST WELCOME CONSIGNMENT to our order. THE OROYA will follow in a few days, and from then till the end of the season each mailboat will bring us a complement of NEW SPRING GOODS.
All over the house there is evidence of a change of season; dark colours are disappearing, bright shades take their place; the thick, warm garments which are in vogue during winter are pretty well all sold, and fixtures and shelves must once more do duty for lighter fabrics and apparel for the spring.
Most ample supplies are already forthcoming in every department, and from what we have already seen of OUR NEW SPRING GOODS we are convinced that our London friends have lost none of their skill in the art of selection, and that our fixed principle of paying CASH DOWN for everything is as potent in its influence as ever.
OUR PRINTS DEPARTMENT, dealing, as everyone knows, with every description of WASHING MATERIALS, is coming out extra strong this year, and the big piles and enormous stacks of new goods which are mounting upwards and upwards speak well of our ability to supply every demand, however great and varied it may be. Some VERY BEAUTIFUL GOODS have been selected for this branch, and whilst expressing a scrupulous regard for our orders in respect of regular goods and lines of everyday requirements, our buyers have shown a most consummate taste in the selection of novelties, for which we always give them large open orders.

These roads are fenced off on both sides by wire fencing, and the freehold frontages between these roads and the river are completely enclosed into two paddocks. The back portions of the freehold, together with the leasehold lands, form another large paddock. Altogether, about 10 or 11 miles of fencing, all wire, fall upon the freehold lands, either as boundary fences or fencing on the roads mentioned. The whole of the freehold land has been ringbarked.

SPLENDID CITY PROPETIES,
viz:—
(1) KING and SUSSEX STREETS
(2) CASTLEREAGH-STREET, South of Market-street
(3) MARLBOROUGH-STREET, SURRY HILLS.

ESTATE of late WILLIAM HOLT, Esq.

1.—KING AND SUSSEX STREETS,
70 feet to the former, south side, extending along Sussex-street to a passage. On it are four premises, occupied by CITY BANK, WESTERN BRANCH, GOVERNMENT POST and TELEGRAPH OFFICE, low rentals, £808 per annum net, created under old lease. This is an already vital commercial part of our city, and every year witnesses a marked development in the importance and value of the position, so close to the very heart of the financial and business centre, and the active and enlarging shipping interests at the many extensive wharves close by. The expected railway route must very largely enhance this SUPERIOR CORNER BLOCK.

2.—CASTLEREAGH-STREET,
west side, north of Park-street.
Grand Block of Land, 51 feet frontage, by the exceptional depth of 139 feet. On it is KERRIDGE'S COACH FACTORY, with a short time yet to run to conclude a very old lease. The building is not in keeping with the locality, and good use to be made of the land. This street, it is confidently predicted, will within the next few years manifest an altered aspect in the character of buildings and extent of stirring business.

3.—MARLBOROUGH-STREET, SURRY HILLS,
Corner Allotment, 20 feet to Miles-street and 80 feet to Marlborough-street and 20 feet to lane at rear. On it is erected No. 38, Marlborough-street, a two-story HOUSE, of brick, cemented, on stone foundation, verandah and balcony in front, and containing 6 rooms and kitchen, weatherboard bathroom and washshed. Rental (reduced) £1 per week.
. A good position on the heights of Surry Hills, near tram.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions as above to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, on FRIDAY, 7th September, at 11 o'clock,
The above valuable city properties, strongly recommended to the notice of trustees, capitalists, and speculators, the various positions giving warrant of reward to those who may become the fortunate purchasers. (2376)

To the RETIRED CAPITALIST
CITY MERCHANT, PROFESSIONAL MAN or YACHTSMEN,
SPECULATORS, and OTHERS,
this is an opportunity of acquiring an almost UNIQUE PURCHASE (ISLAND).
It is known as MUD ISLAND, apparently not an appropriate name, for it is high, rising gently from the broad sheet of water at this place up to a ridge running almost from end to end.
It could be profitably cultivated for ORANGERY or ORCHARD apart from being used for the delights of a capital home or SUBDIVIDED to SELL TO PROFIT.
The area is 76 ACRES, with Water Frontage all round, and the situation is one of the most picturesque among the many noted spots on this world-renowned and almost matchless River. Here there is a spacious get away for the fresh waters, and therefore the drawback of flat localities is not realised here.
The HOMESTEAD is very well located, and commands views up and down the river, and also of the South Channel. It contains verandah, hall, 6 rooms, detached kitchen, and dining-room. There are two small slab dwellings not far off, each 2 rooms, cowshed, boatshed, and loft over, excellent wharf.
STEAMER PASSES FREQUENTLY.

facing the South Channel waters of the river, and one extends up to the point opposite the aforesaid island. The respective areas are—

Castlereagh-street, near Bathurst-street, opposite Protestant Hall. Through over patronage and overwork (teaching at 30 schools), besides managing academy, his health compels him to give up part of his work.

TO MINING SPECULATORS,
SYNDICATES, and OTHERS.

FOR POSITIVE SALE.

By order of the Proprietor, R. HARGRAVE, Esq.,

ELEVEN LOTS of FREEHOLD LAND, varying in area from 7 to 26½ acres.

Situated at HILLGROVE,
about
23 miles from the CITY of ARMIDALE, by the GRAFTON-ROAD.

These parcels of land are situated on the tableland immediately adjoining the great falls into the gulch through which winds BAKER'S CREEK, on both sides of which, reaching from water level to the tableland about 1500ft. above, have been discovered several of the most remarkable gold-bearing reefs yet found, and which are only waiting machinery to make HILLGROVE rank as one of the richest goldfields in the COLONY of NEW SOUTH WALES.
The land to be offered for auction is situated on the same plateau, and only a short distance from the noted ELKANORA MINE, now proved to contain both antimony and gold, while the stone of many surrounding leases has given extraordinary assay results for gold per ton from specimens of outcrop only.
The Proprietor does not pretend to be an expert in mining, or to be acquainted with gold-bearing rocks, and, consequently, he declines to express an opinion as to whether the land proposed to be offered for sale is auriferous or not. As to antimony, its presence is too evident to be questioned, and from No. 2 of the blocks a mine of that metal has been opened and worked, and large quantities sent to England for sale.

In order that MINERS, SPECULATORS, and others may have an opportunity of judging for themselves of the mineral wealth of the lands to be offered for sale, the proprietor has sanctioned the issue of leases, by way of permits, at a nominal rental, for the months AUGUST, SEPTEMBER, and OCTOBER, 1888, by virtue of which persons holding them will be authorised to prospect the land, by shaft or otherwise, as they may think fit, so as to determine for themselves the prices per acre at which they may feel satisfied on bidding for each block of land.

TITLES UNDER REAL PROPERTY ACT.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from the proprietor, RICHARD HARGRAVE, Esq., to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, Sydney, on MONDAY, the 5th day of NOVEMBER, 1888, at 11 o'clock,
Eleven freehold blocks of acknowledged mineral land, subject to the conditions mentioned above.

balance in cash on completion of the transfer.

PLAN on view at the Rooms, Pitt-street, where copies in LITHOGRAPH may also be obtained; as well as from Mr. HARGRAVE, at ARMIDALE; and Mr. HARGRAVE, Jun., at HILLGROVE.

PROSPECTING LEASES or PERMITS may also be obtained at the Rooms of the Auctioneers; or from Messrs. HARGRAVE, sen. and jun., at the addresses abovementioned. (2271)
